Central's marching band performs one of many routines that proves that long hard practices make perfect routines.

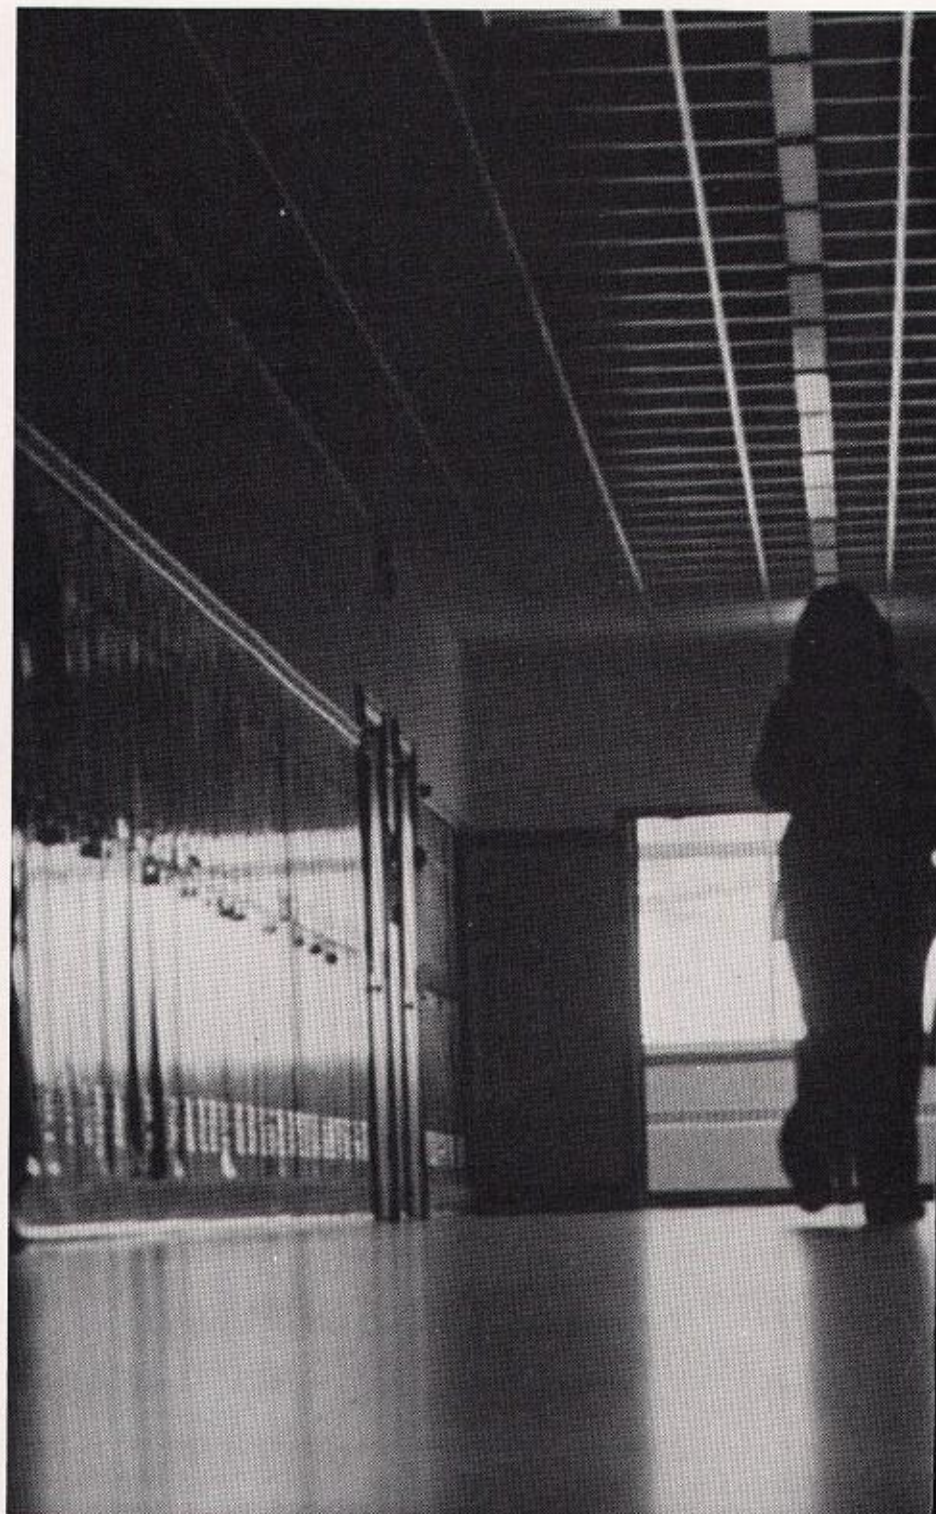

School Life Goes On With Serenity

Learning, growing and exploring are all necessary segments of our youthfull path through high school.

We acquire knowledge from our academic courses. We also learn to make judgements for ourselves. But each responsibility that we are given gives us valuable insights into the society of our nation.

We grow intellectually as well as physically with each step we take. Looking into the future, we have to decide what step we'll take, either to go onto college, find a job or enter into an armed service.

Each day is an adventure at Central as we come closer to reaching full mental and physical maturity.

On a quiet serene afternoon, two girls brave the odds by sneaking up on third floor during their lunch hour, where they are not supposed to be.

Baseball games sometimes can be rough, but life can be rough too.

Keeping things neat and clean are a necessary part of Central's total atmosphere, as Mr. Baker displays.

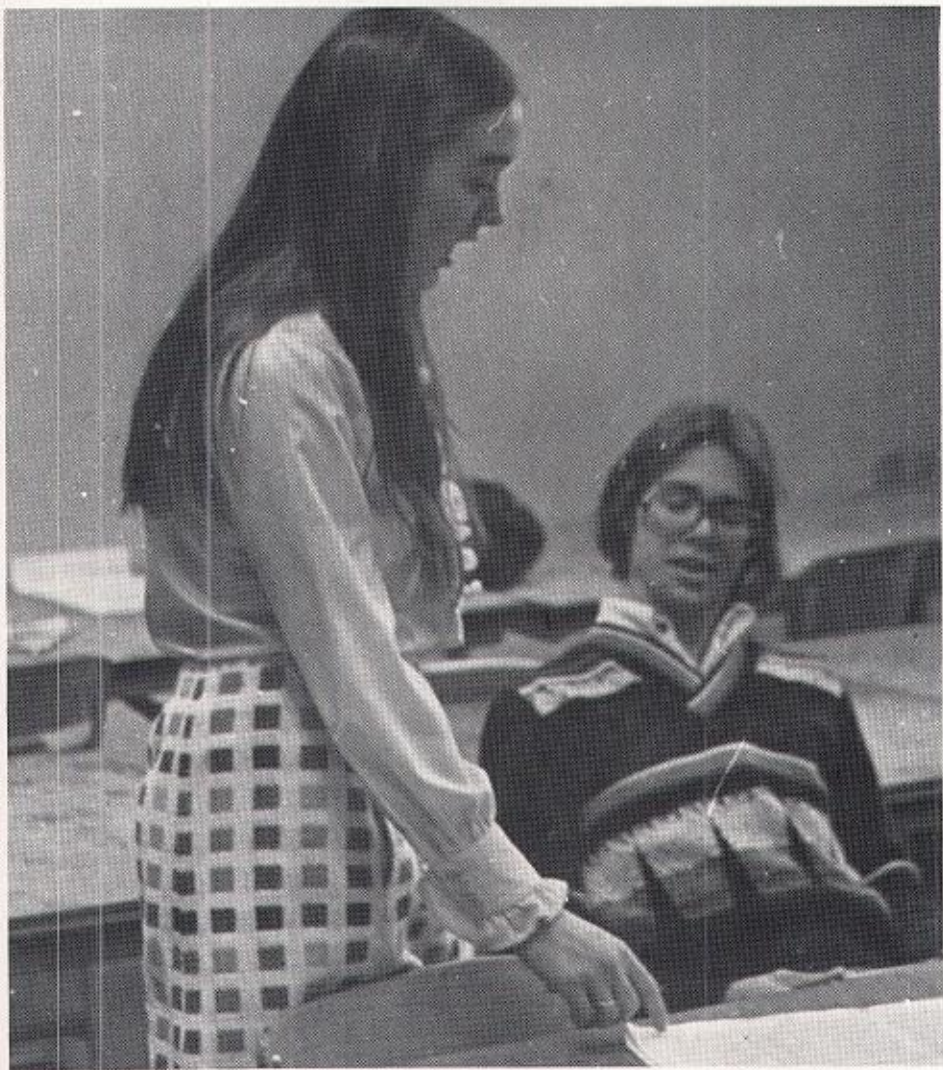

Casualties not only hurt the person, but injures the whole team.

You'd duck too, if you were being fired upon with flying snowballs. Mike Shotwell takes cover behind the nearest car.

Learning Plays An Important Part

With a few disagreements, Co-editor Mary Jo Rosebush discusses various page layouts with staff member Pete Northcott.

Thespians present one of their scenes from the play, "Wild and Wooly West."

Many Talents Directs Student Activities

Determination is what scores that winning run.

If it's not Halloween and it's not a dress up party, then what is it? It's Dan Weist, Beverly Ruhlig, and Mike Allabaugh styling the fashions of the 50's.

With a snowball at hand, John Luce heads the beginning of a battle shortly after the first snowfall.

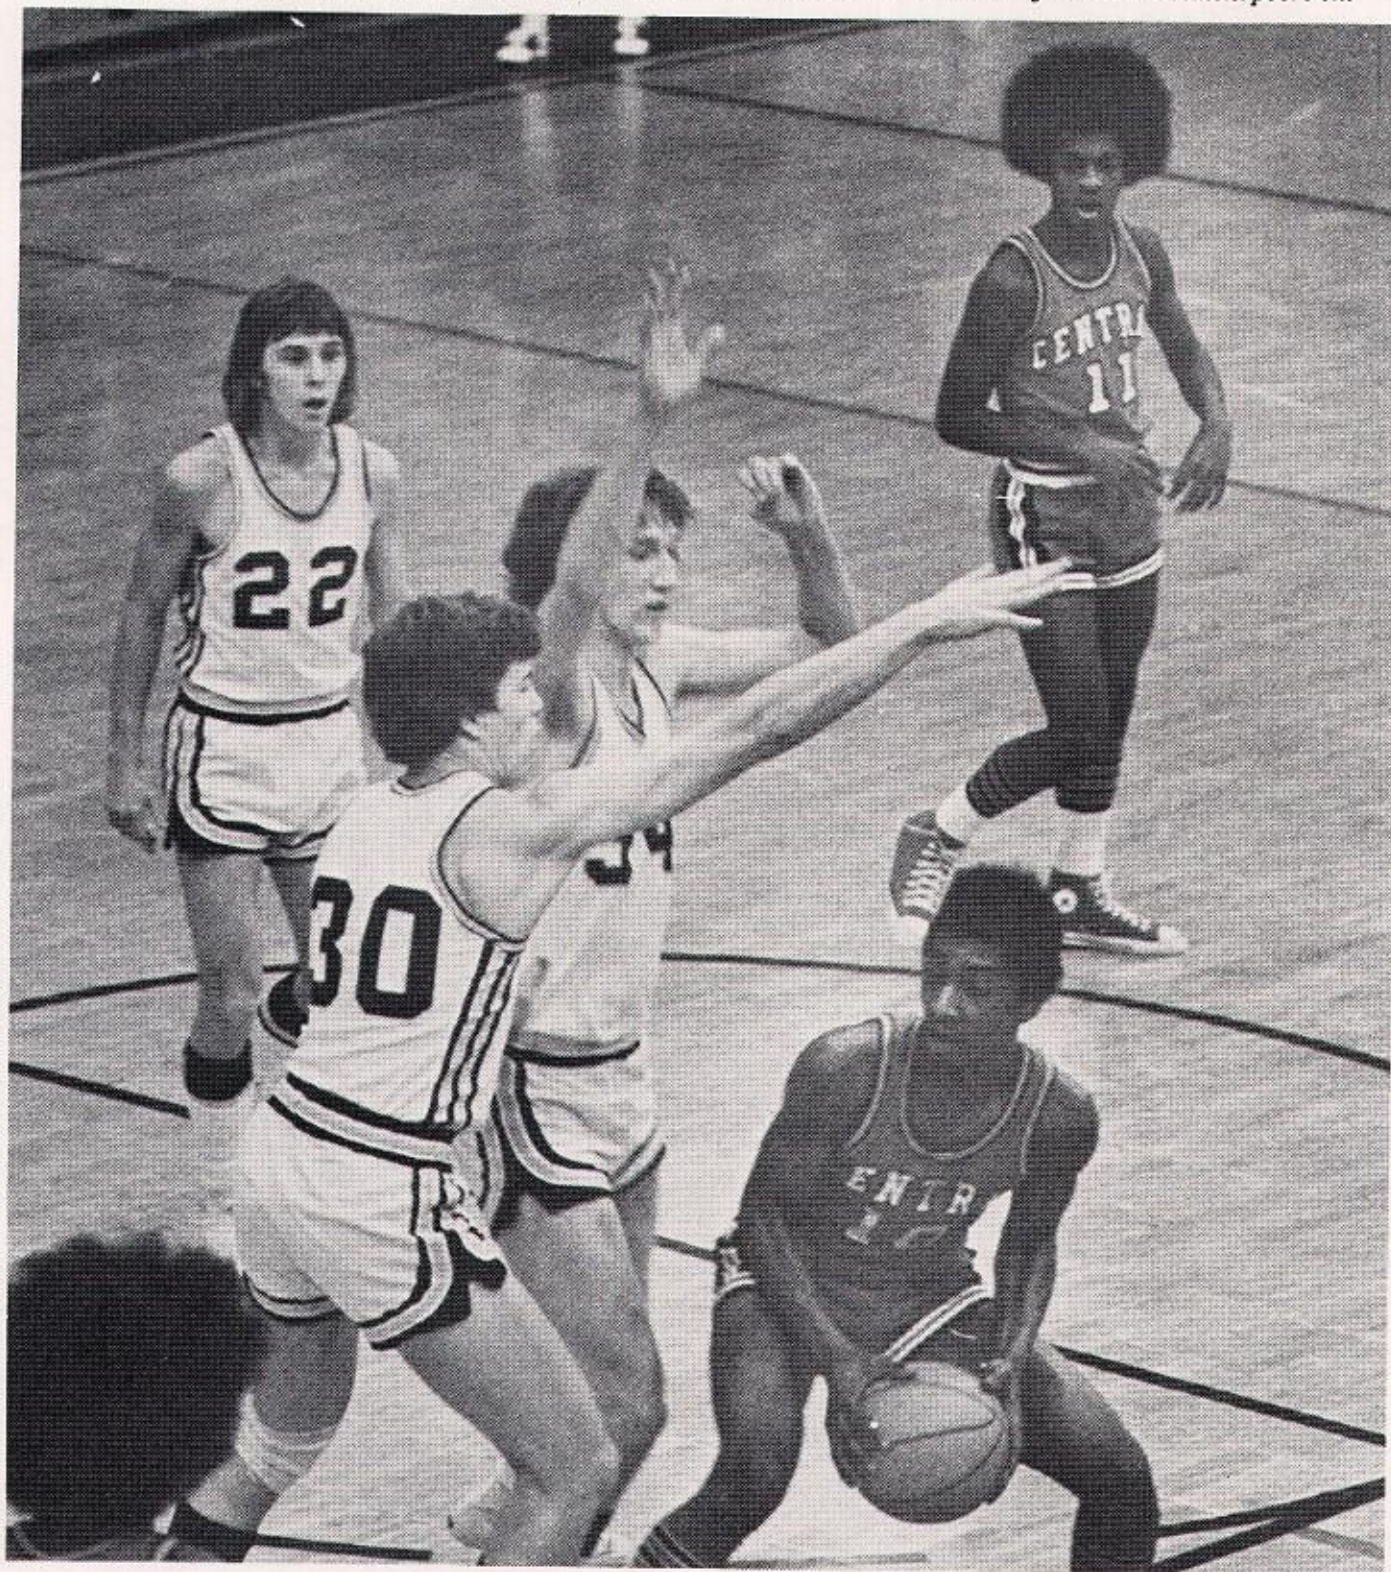

Can you believe these beauties are cheerleaders rooting Ecclesia on toward victory.

During the Powderpuff Football Game, Ecclesia's satisfaction would only survive after the defeat of C.C.C.

Self-Expression Gives Opportunities

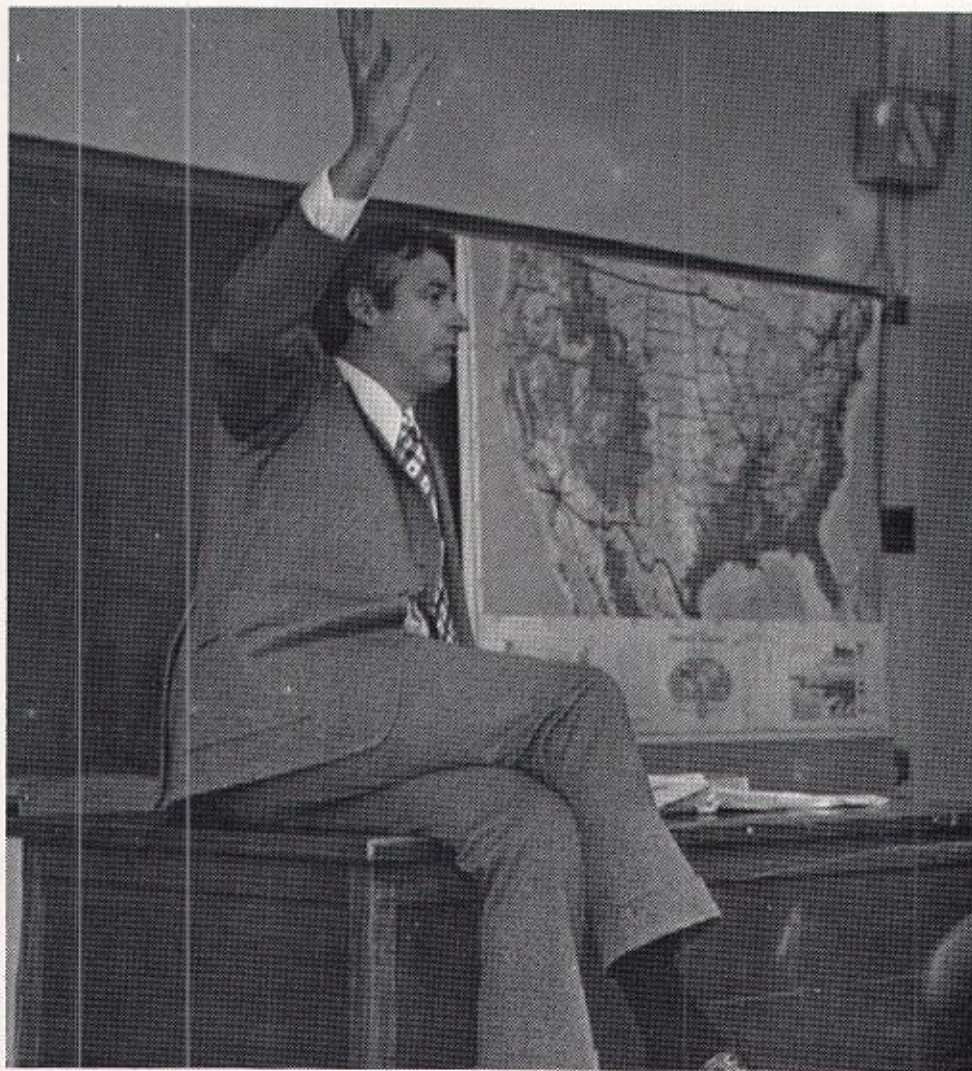

Blocking a Flint Central player from making a shot are Bart Nixon and Kevin Treadway as Bill Wiescinski peers on.

Checking out a couple of his freshly made prints for publication use, is junior Chris Mika.

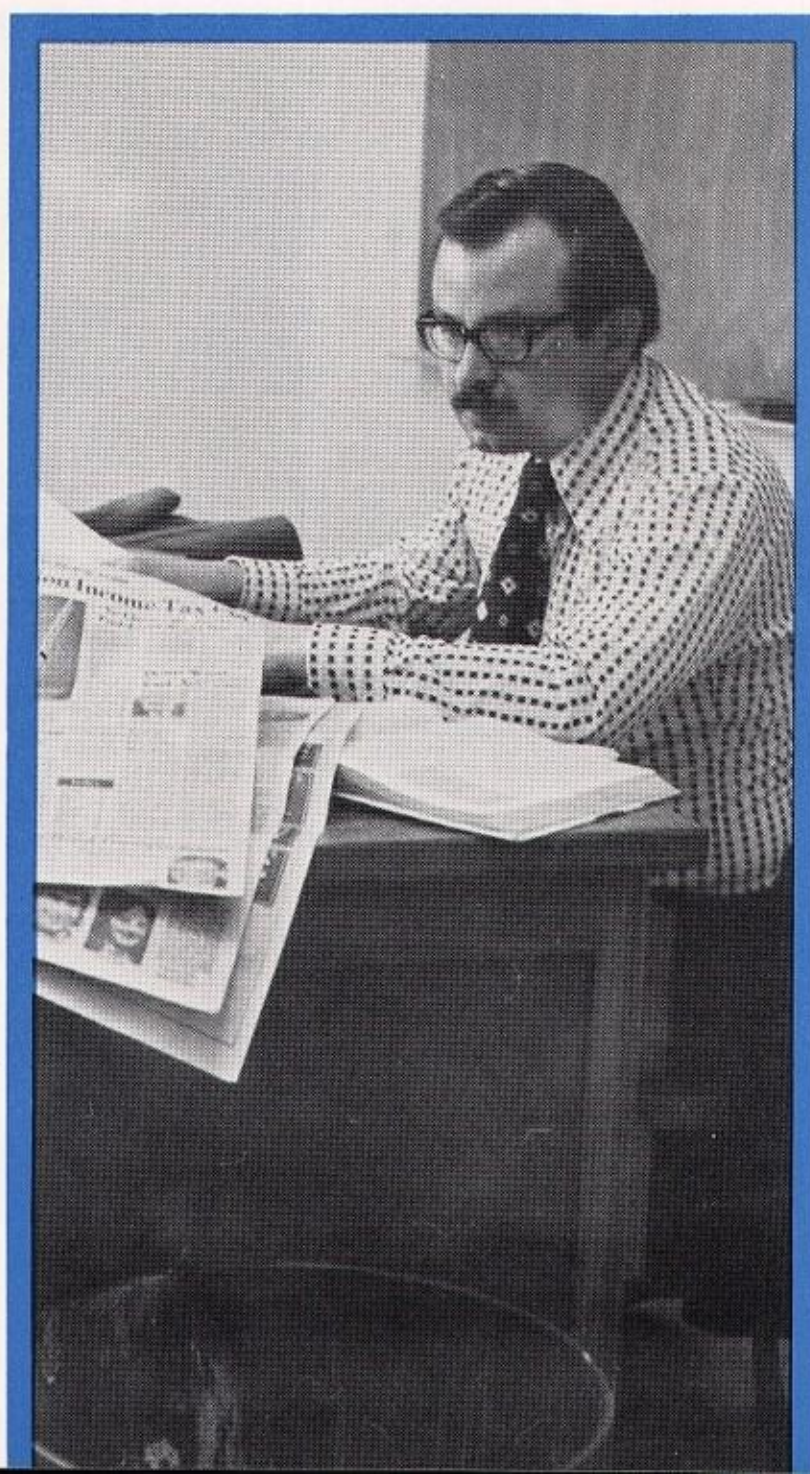

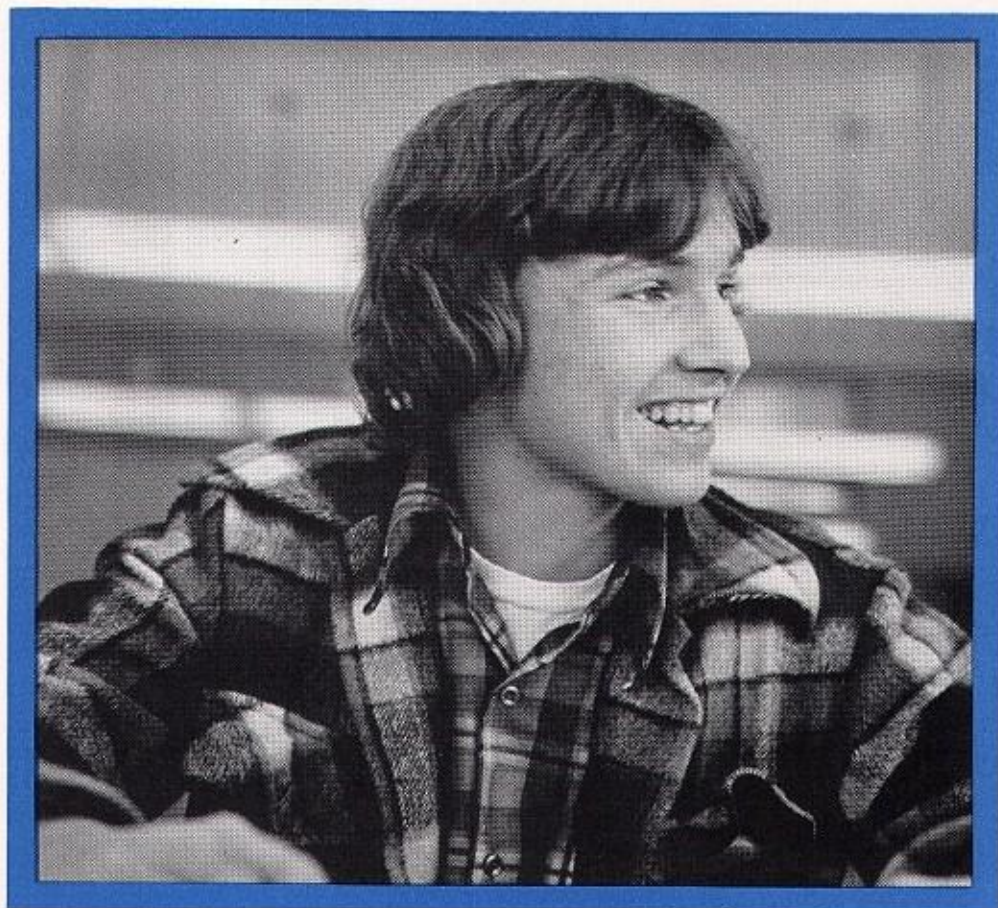

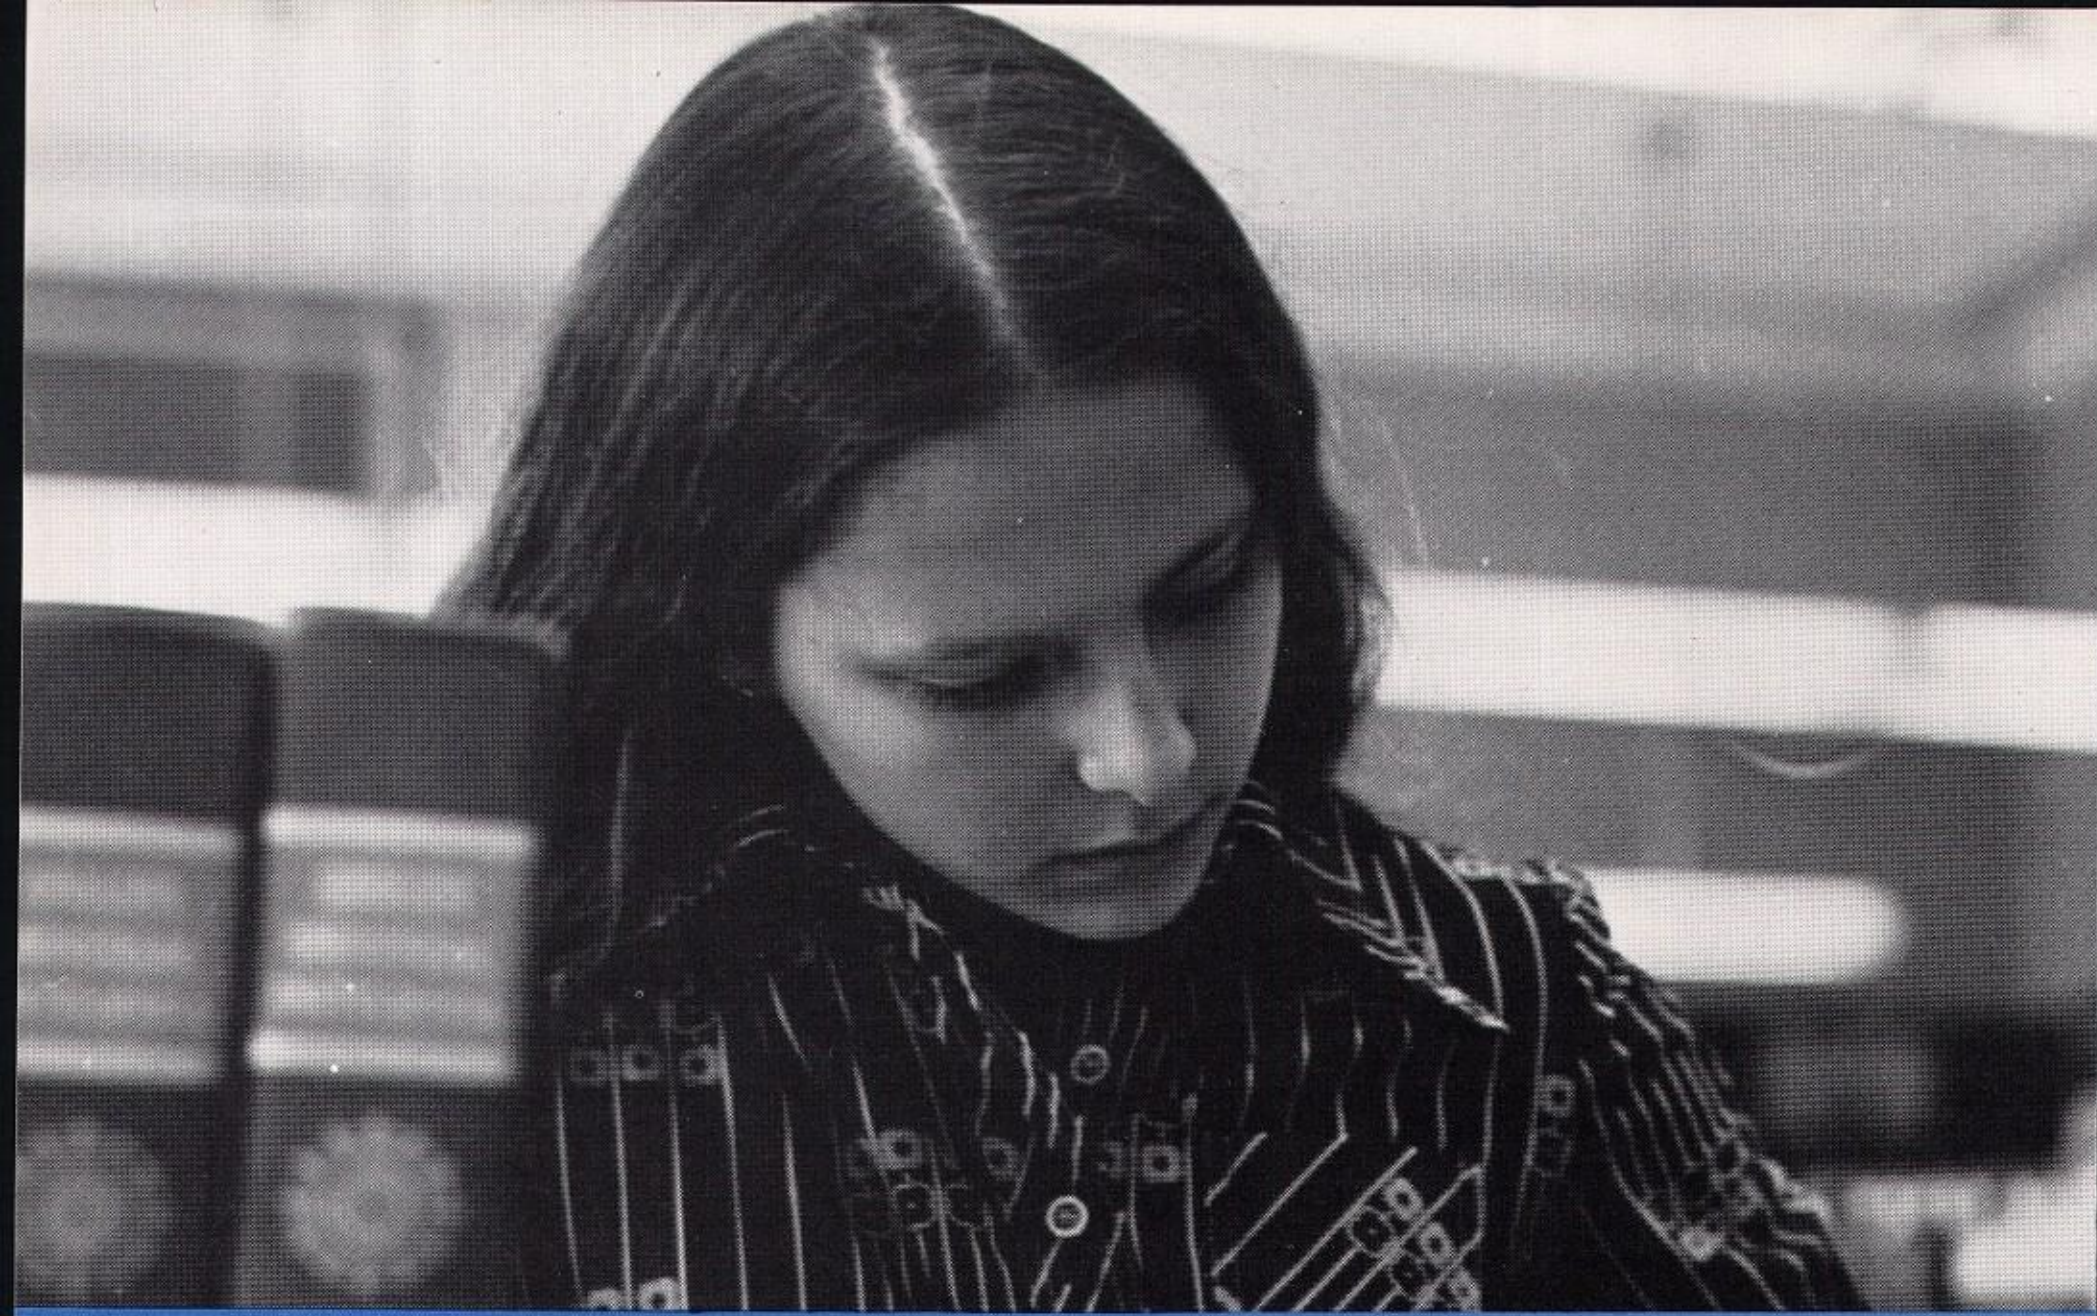

In Minds Of Many At Central

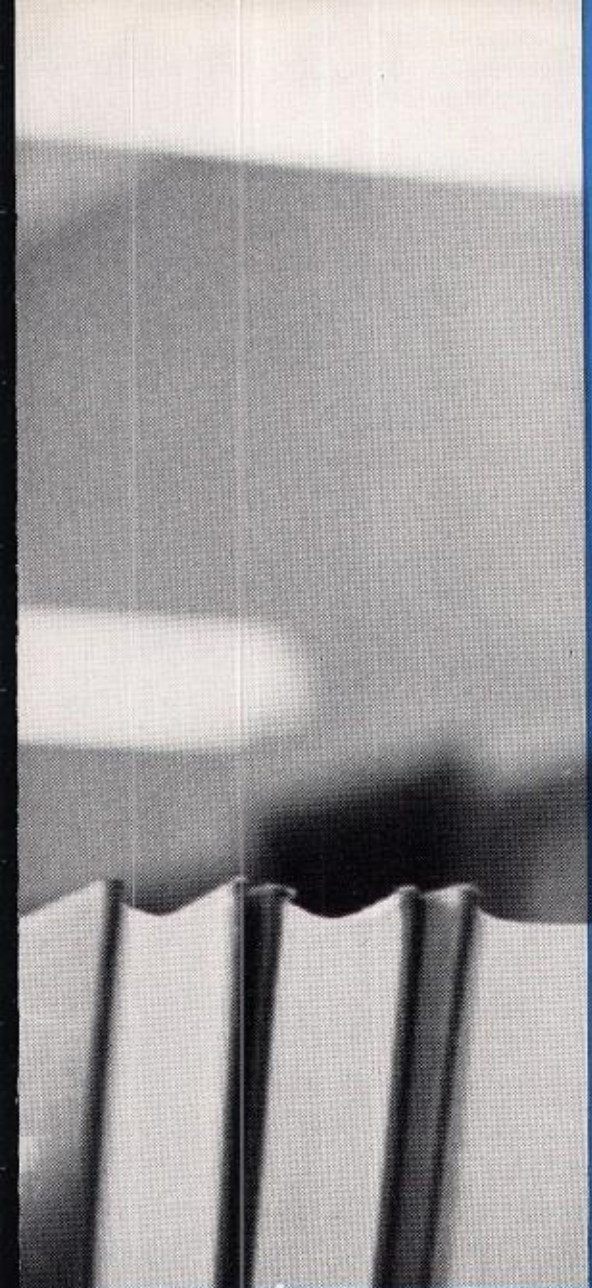

Mr. Meeth, Central's social studies teacher, explains the reasons for the zooming cost of living to one of his classes.

A real shot of the Central High neighborhood on a crisp winter morning shows students awaiting to catch prospective buses.

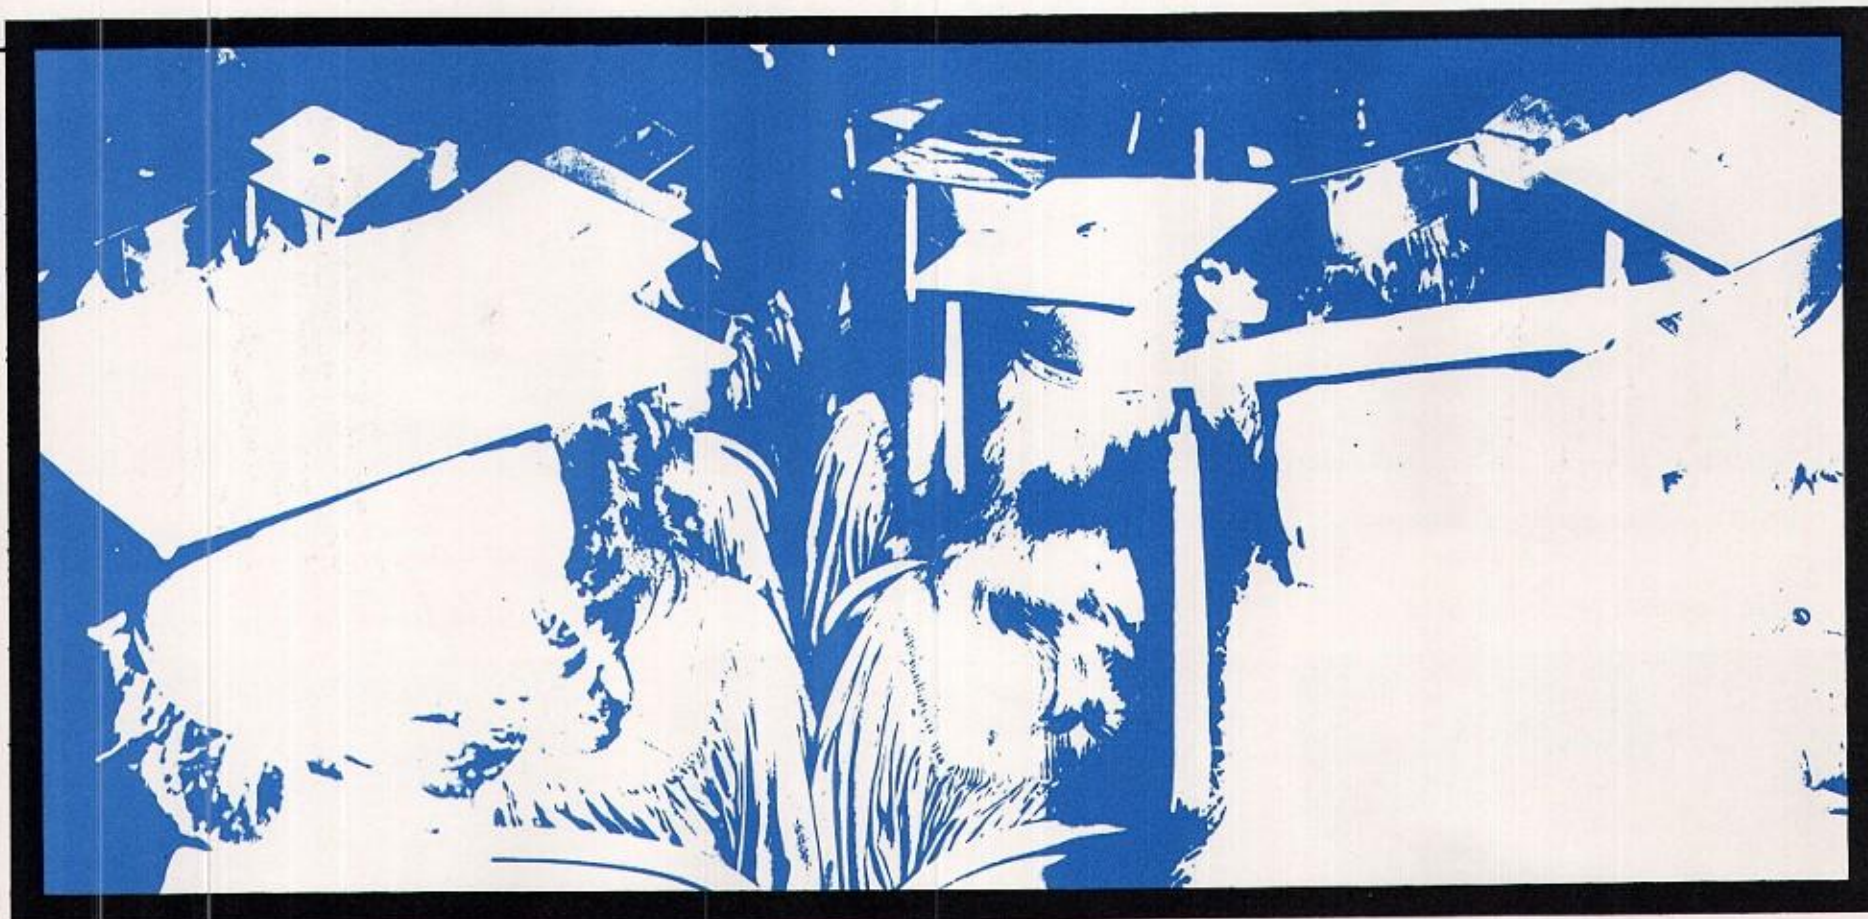

Album

People play an important part in our life every day of every year. When we are faced with a seemingly unsolvable problem, we rely on our parents, teachers and counselors to give us advice.

We share both laughter and tears with our fellow classmates.

We learn to get along with people, no matter what obstacles stand in the way.

So many of the people we will meet will become lasting friends, others will only become merely acquaintances. Yet each relationship with people will give us the lasting knowledge and experience that we need to cope with the people of the world.

Nichols, Owen Added to School Board

President-elect Dr. Larry Copus welcomed two new trustees, Mr. Donald Nichols and Mr. John Owen, to their four year term on the Board of Education.

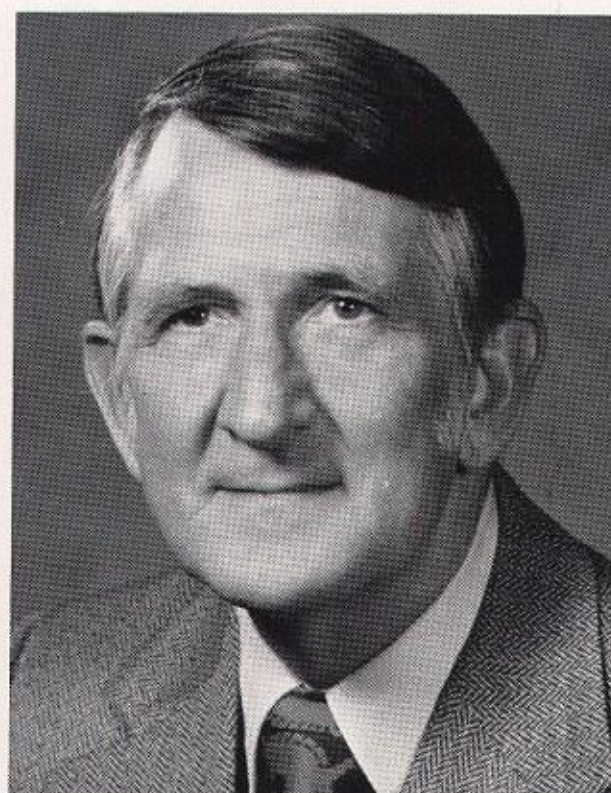

Mr. Alvin Zachrich was the Superintendent of Schools for his fifth year with the Bay City School District.

The major problem that faced the seven member board was the continuously rising cost of educating the 17,250 students in the district. Much of the Board's planning and effort focused on the millage renewal in a Spring election.

Another major problem of the board was the renovation program at Central and Handy High Schools. The completion of these programs provided better learning climates for the high school students and in particular greatly reduced the problem of overcrowding at Central.

Confronted with problems arising from the new Arena Scheduling are Patricia Walker and Assistant Principal Dr. Sheldon Safer.

With the Seniors gone, and another year past, Principal Mr. George Curtis congratulates the 1974 graduating Seniors.

Administrators Work For School Image

Parents, misunderstandings and conferences are often resolved by Mr. Conway and the simple device of the telephone.

Attendance means references for future jobs, explaining the importance is Mr. Vern Julian, to Herbert Nordstrom.

Mr. George Curtis introduced a new format to solve school problems and thus enable the public, students, and faculty to take pride in Central's image.

Reorganizing the scheduling procedure often proved to be a time consuming and tedious task to Vice Principal Sheldon Safer. The new concept of arena scheduling introduced students with the new program through a slide presentation. Students would be able to select the classes and teachers they prefer for second semester.

Mr. Conway assistant principal, was aided by Mr. Julian also assistant principal in solving many problems. Under their jurisdiction came attendance, discipline, class trips and other decisions. Mr. Julian was the school athletic director. Among his many jobs was scheduling inter-school athletic games.

Faculty Survives Another Year

The faculty for the 1974-75 school year moved into the groove of teaching the students the basics in their individual subject matter. Daily duties for the teachers include many hours of hard work and many extra-curricular activities.

Teachers each year take time off to practice and learn many new techniques of teaching during the in service days. Many of these meetings that the teachers get together at prove to be beneficial to them in the years to come. Teachers become involved more and more with the students each year providing a better relationship for both. Sponsoring such events like chess club, judo club, art club, and many more accumulated a lot of outside interest.

Librarian Barbara Wendland helps senior Kathy Maloney finish daily filing of index cards in backs of Library text books before being placed on shelves.

Secretaries Keep Central In Ship Shape

The offices of Central play a significant role in the daily life of the student. Everything from broken locks to college admission forms, scholarships, attendance and discipline are just a part of the day to day routine for the "girls in the office."

The "girls in the office" have taken care of the nerve of the school.

They have helped the administrators, counselors, teachers and most of all the students to go through their school life smoothly.

Working hard everyday the office staff did their very best to provide Central High School with the efficiency of many well run offices.

In charge of operating and managing the new bookstore the "Wolves Den" is Mrs. Mary Long.

On the most busiest day, main office secretary, Helen Tober always makes the best of them.

Secretary, Kay Linda, takes pleasure in telling Secretary, Laurie Tomczak, a latest office joke.

Taking a look at students' attendance records is Mrs. Margaret Humphrey.

Marci Schmidt helps the counselors in order to aid the students.

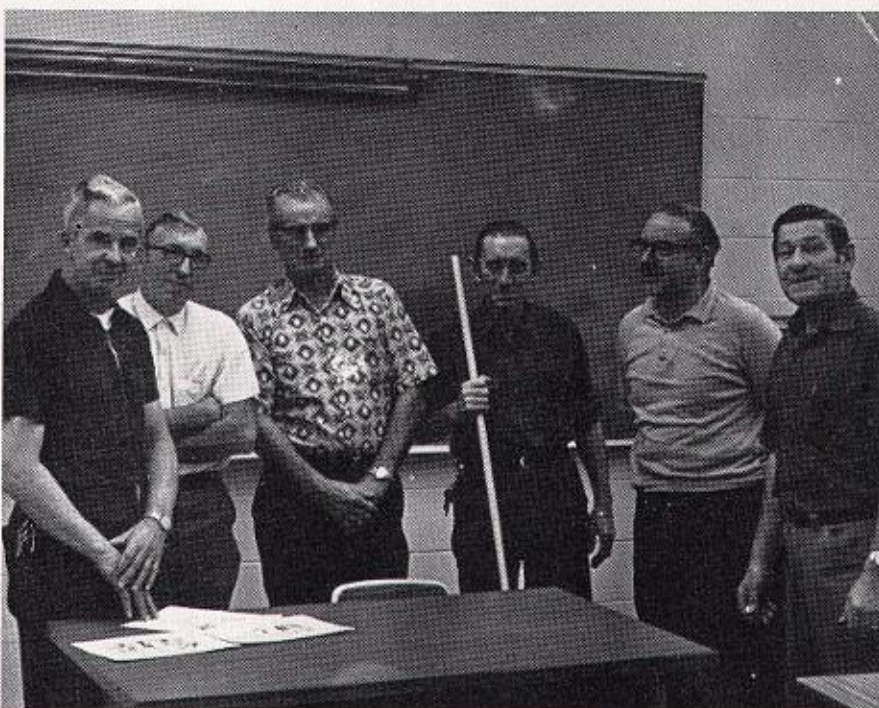

Checking out and reviewing a recent report are Secretaries, Beverly Bowles, Sharon Le Vasseur, and Betty Clifford.

Frosh Face New Election Procedures

Central's not just a school with classes and students. It's a school of competition that results not only from some classes but from clubs to sports to organizations to everything.

As Freshmen enter Central for the first time they soon fit into this pattern. Election of Officers and Senators were among the first events that set the pace for the Freshmen classes. With these class officers, the Freshmen soon had a fair voice in the student government.

Entering high school, each Freshman made decisions which eventually some day would effect their future. Required on the Freshmen schedule were classes such as Physical Education and a recently new Freshman English that were into effect this year.

Until their graduation day, many Freshmen students will take advantage and use what Central has to offer.

Sophomores Push For Improvements

Responsibilities hit the eyes of the Sophomore class during this past year of 1975. Maybe more so than their previous Freshman year.

After their second year attending Central, they felt more at ease and made Central a more convenient place for them to learn and study.

Thoughts of what the next two years might bring popped into the minds of many. Driver's Education was the one of most importance. Some Sophomores took behind the wheel and book lessons for an interval of six weeks. A license not only means happiness but lots of care and responsibilities. Along with that it was also time for class ring orders taken by the Josten's Representative.

Their thoughts on that past year reflects both the good and the bad times that they experienced.

Mrs. Navarro Sponsors, Aids Junior Class

Activities covered a full third year for the junior class. During the summer they sponsored two car washes. After first semester had started the class sold Bay City Central T-shirts which featured the schools colors, purple and gold and our mascot Willie the Wolf. Next the juniors shifted their attention to selling stationery made of recycled paper.

Along with other Junior activities they sponsored and organized the Junior-Senior Prom. The Prom was held early in June at the Delta Commons.

Acting as sponsor for the class was Mrs. Judy Navarro. Along with aiding all projects she willingly helped each person solve problems of great importance.

With their many accomplishments the Juniors completed a successful year.

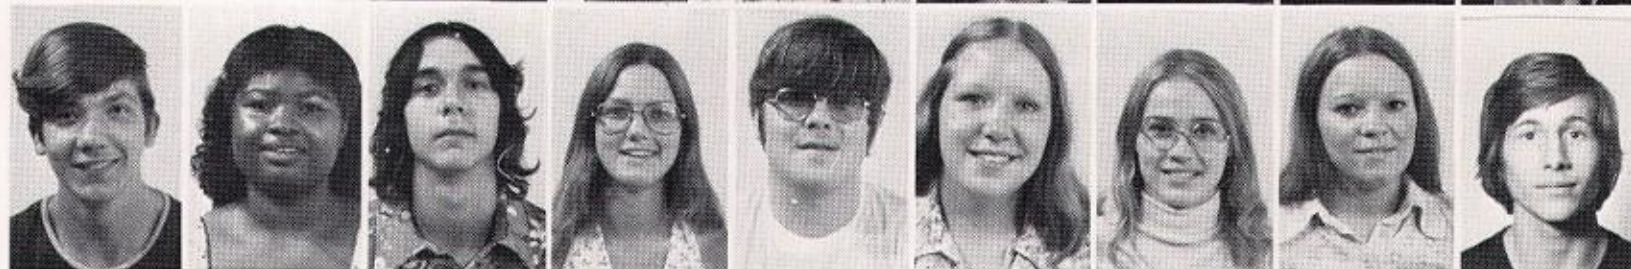

Junior class officers as elected: Seated are Stacie See-Treasurer, Larry Young-Vice President, Renee Baker-President and Dee Dinsmore-Secretary. Standing are Jodi Frasier, Diana Martin, Janis Hayward and Holly Higgs.

Honors Lead Seniors To Achievement

Magna Cum Laude is an honor received by the Seniors that have accumulated the highest grade point average. Over a period of four years of hard work, study and most of all individual effort, is this well deserved honor.

Magna is achieved by keeping a 3.8 average or better and Cum Laude sets its standards at no less than 3.5 to qualify. Honor Students have decreased in number according to past classes but, this should not discourage the classes in the future. This honorary achievement should not be taken lightly as it is a very impressive one. Intelligence is not the only talent proven by these students, many of them are successful in various other fields of competition.

Officers End In Very Productive Way

Senior Class officers Rock and Rolled to the end of the 1975 school year by putting on many money raising activities. One of the most worthwhile projects for the class was the Senior Candy Sale where they earned a large profit to make it possible to help put on the Junior Senior Prom. Along with this activity they handled Announcement distribution, Cap and Gown measurement and Commencement Speakers.

The Senators for "75" worked on improving the school in general. They made it possible for Arena Scheduling, Busses to away games and a calendar of weekly events to be put up in the main hall each week, but these are just a few of the many accomplishments. Student Government has been working hard all year for the betterment of the school, as they strived for improvements to make it easier for the classes in the years to come.

As Sadie Hawkins week progressed, a cops and robbers event lightened school's activities.

Student Life

To high school students the first sign of cool air means only one thing, the resumption of classes and the return of a new year. Some look forward to this and others just await the dropping temperatures and the big white mounds of snow banks. This is the time to remain indoors and make frequent use of all available study space and activities.

But as winter ceases, warm weather again returns. The school year will soon be over. For many graduation and a new life are approaching, for others the summer will mean only a break in education. But for all, the 1975 school year memories will have been formed.

Seniors see The End Of The Beginning

Wow! It's graduation time again! Time for painted cars, practice for Baccalaureate and graduation parties.

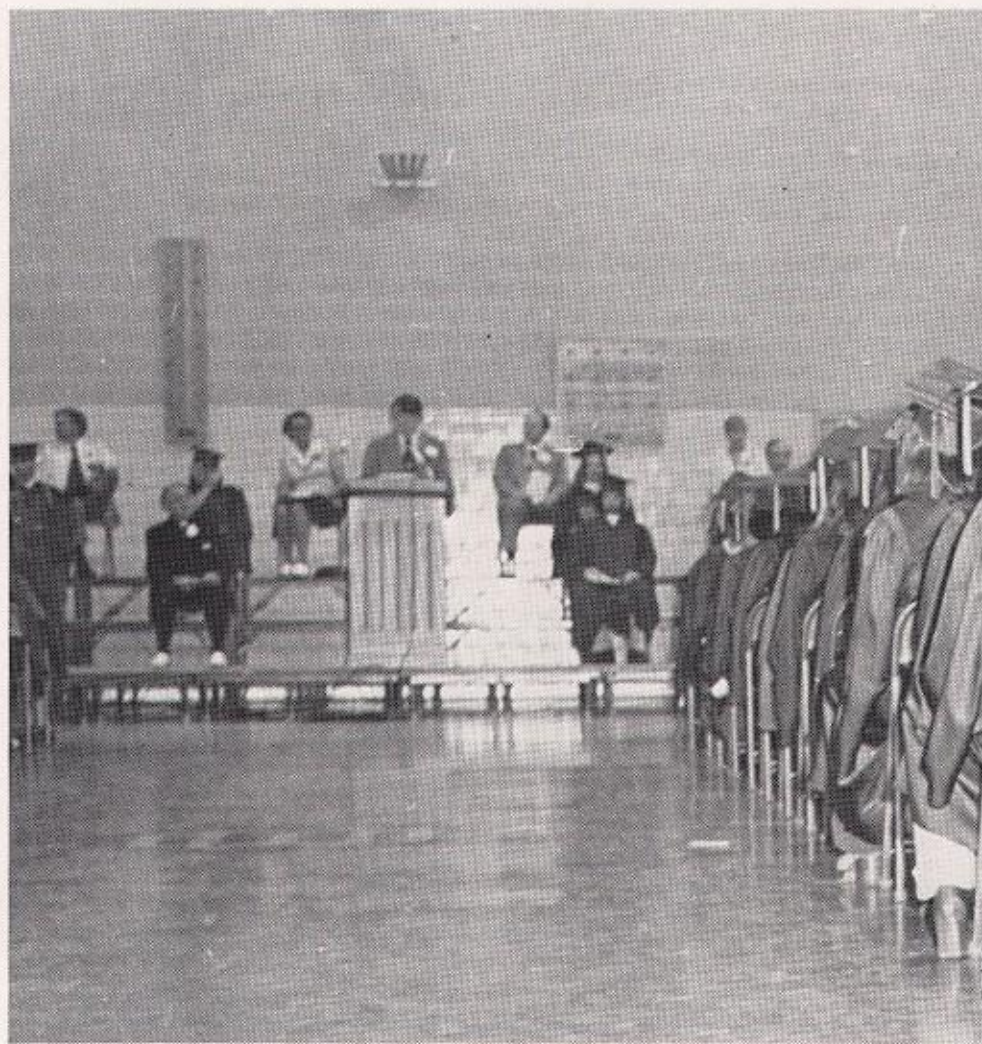

Preparation began early in the school year when appointments had to be made for senior pictures. For the first time in several years, students could go to the photographer of their choice. Also in early November, announcements had to be ordered.

Measurements for caps and gowns came during mid-February. Upon arrival, underclassmen had little trouble picking out the seniors due to the traditional purple gowns and mortar boards.

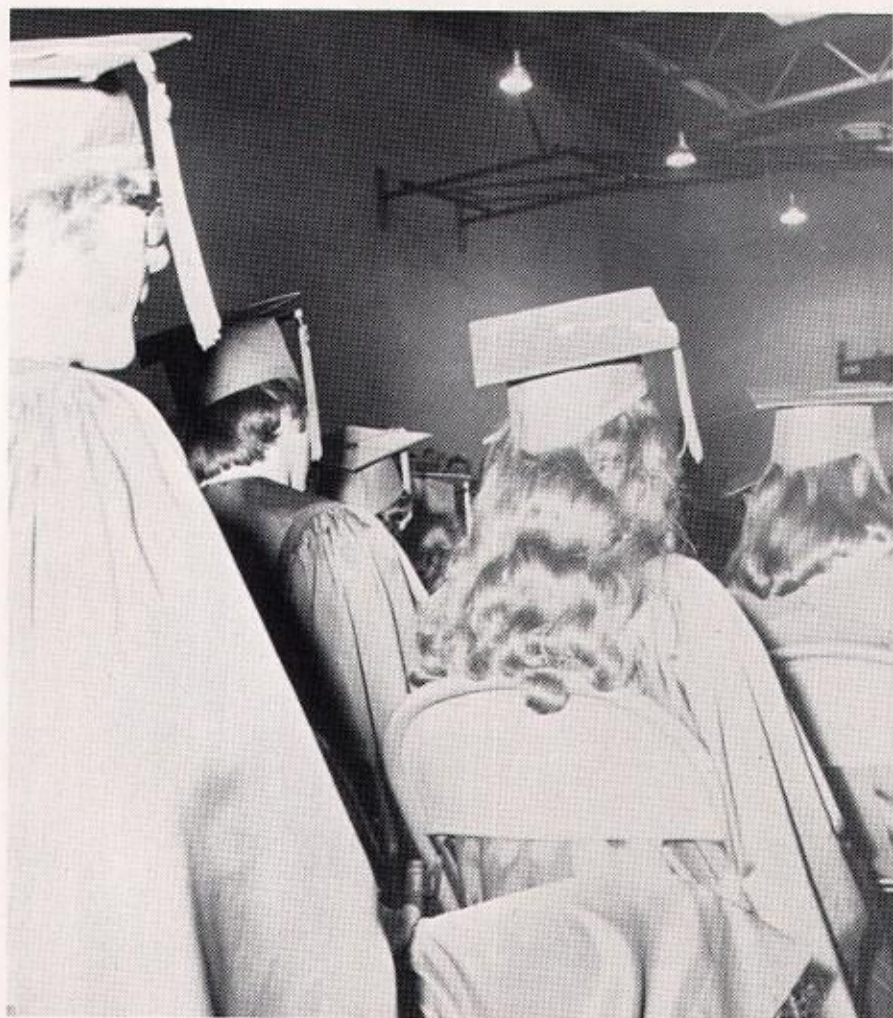

Commencement and Baccalaureate exercises were held June 5.

Saying a final goodbye to old friends, faculty members and the alma-mater, students wondered just what the future would hold for everyone.

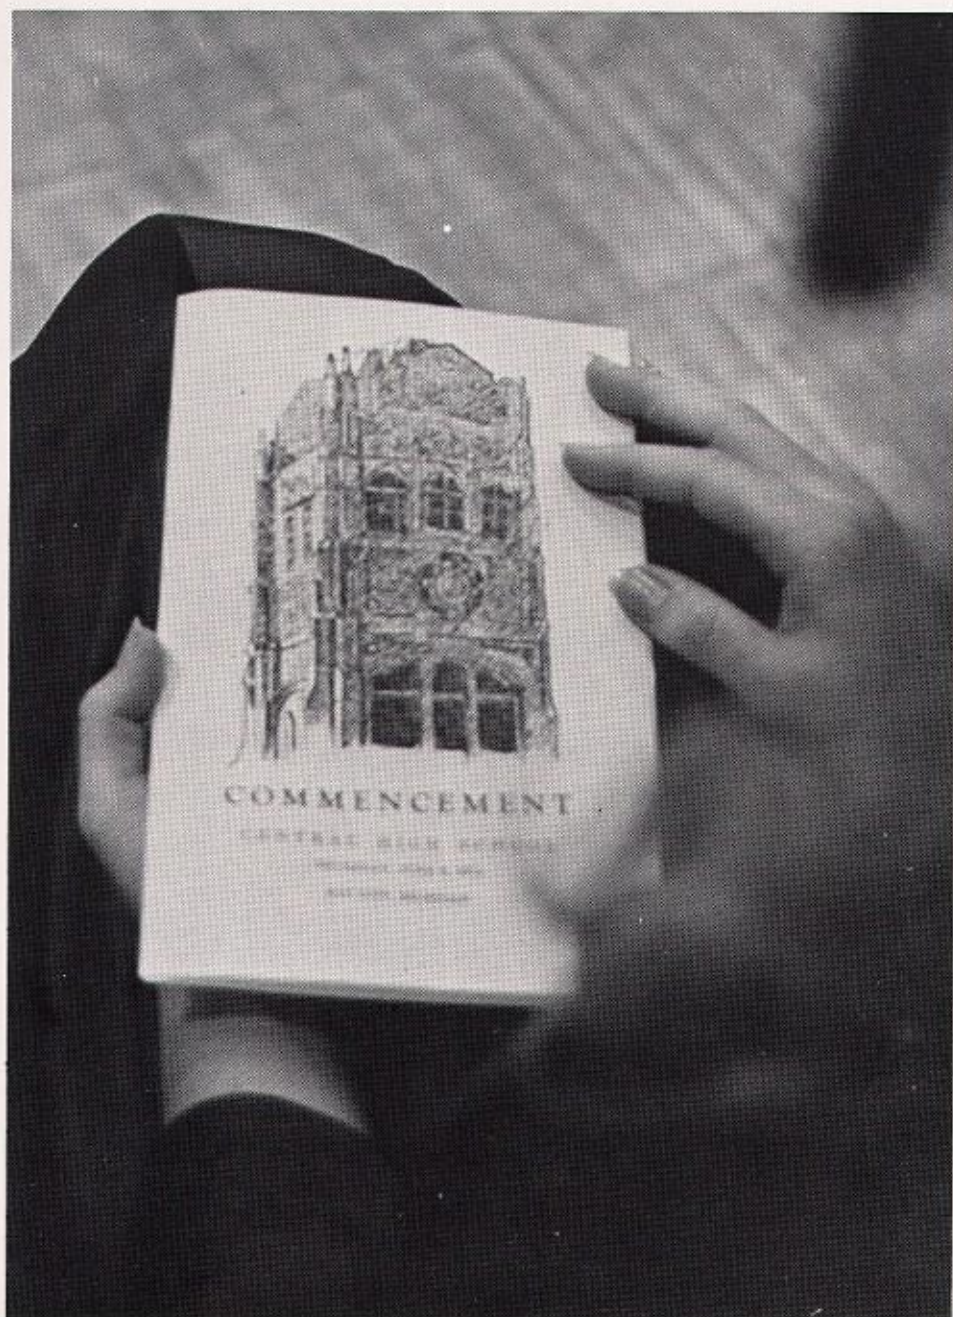

Listening to the featured speaker talk about the future of the seniors are these Centralites while the honor students sit at the front.

This Central High School Commencement schedule was issued out to all the seniors at the exercises held on June 5.

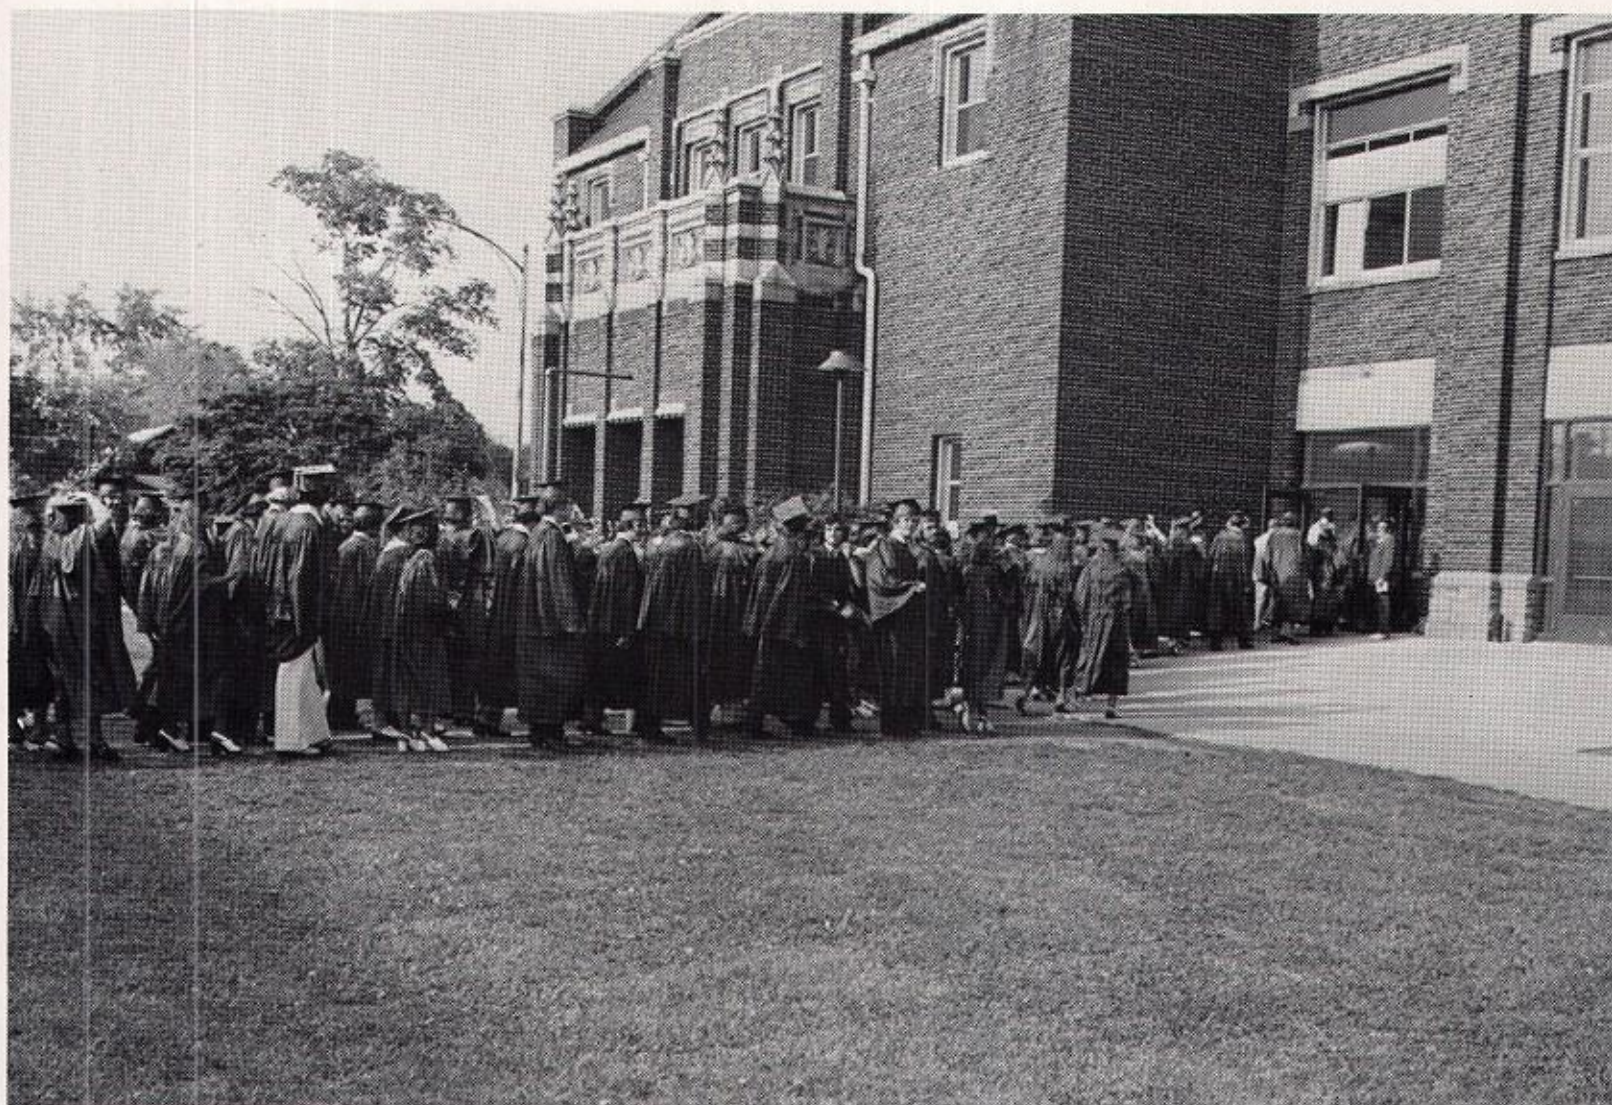

*Awaiting to be called up for their diplomas while Pomp and Circumstance plays in the background is this group of anxious seniors.*

This group of seniors files out to the gymnasium after the Honors Assembly as many of their proud parents fondly gaze upon their exit through the front door.

Filling the courtyard with purple caps and gowns is the mob of seniors as they flock into school for possibly the last time as they start to line up for Commencement Exercises held in Central's stadium.

As school opened, Jim Goddeyne has gotten acquainted with Rod Adams, an old sparring rival and has seemed to settle an old argument with him.

After the second bell sounds, no one can be seen throughout the halls because all the people have gone to classrooms everyone. When will they ever learn?

Running in late to their Physics class at 10:30 are seniors Jim Miller and Mary Hicks. What could take them so long? The elevator cannot be that slow!

Spare Time Used For Many Things

Taking time out from diligently doing their homework in the cafeteria to pose for Central's roving photographer are Michele Viara, Monica Folson, Renee Baker and Betty Ivey.

Unable to roam the second and third floor halls, students found refuge in the cafeteria, commons and library. Being confined to these areas, students spent hours studying, gossiping and playing chess or other games.

Playing pinball over at Chet's, smoking in the parking lot or just bumming around in the courtyard kept a portion of the student body amused.

During lunch hours, students saw the Munger firemen wrestling with freaks, others playing football and frisbee in the parking lot and students racing to their cars to be the first at Mac's.

Once lunch hour came to an end, students went running to class trying to beat the second bell. After the lunch hours ended and classes dismissed, Central became a quiet place once again.

Students use their time to catch up on their homework in the library while Mrs. JoAnn Berry examines a term paper.

Whipping out his money to pay for his chicken dinner made by the loving hands of the cooks in Central's Shake 'n' Bake cafeteria is Randy Leppek.

Students Pack Halls With Heavy Traffic

"Don't crowd me, Joe," "Quit pushing" and "stop stepping on my feet" could be heard far and wide throughout Central.

Heavy traffic filled the halls between classes and during fire drills.

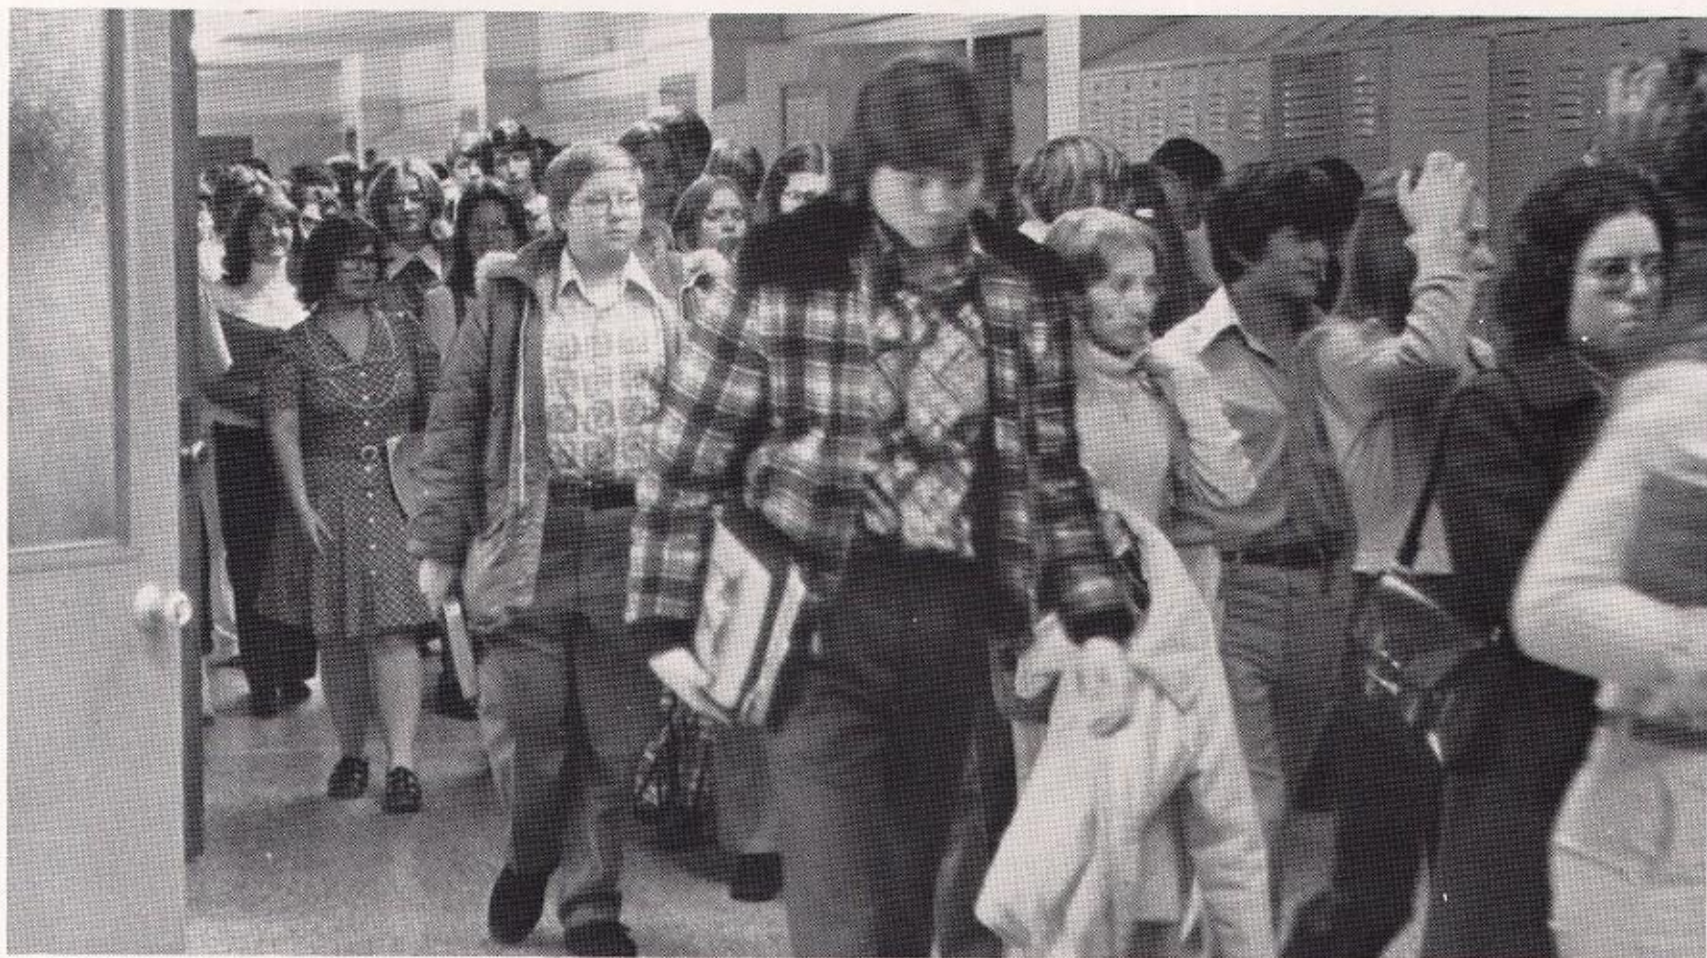

Tyring to make it from the art wing over to the other end of the building on the third floor in five minutes often proved to be a challenge for most students.

Over-crowding at the stairways occurred due to groups of old friends getting together between classes to catch up on the latest gossip. Just stopping where-ever, students caused traffic jams near over-passes and subways.

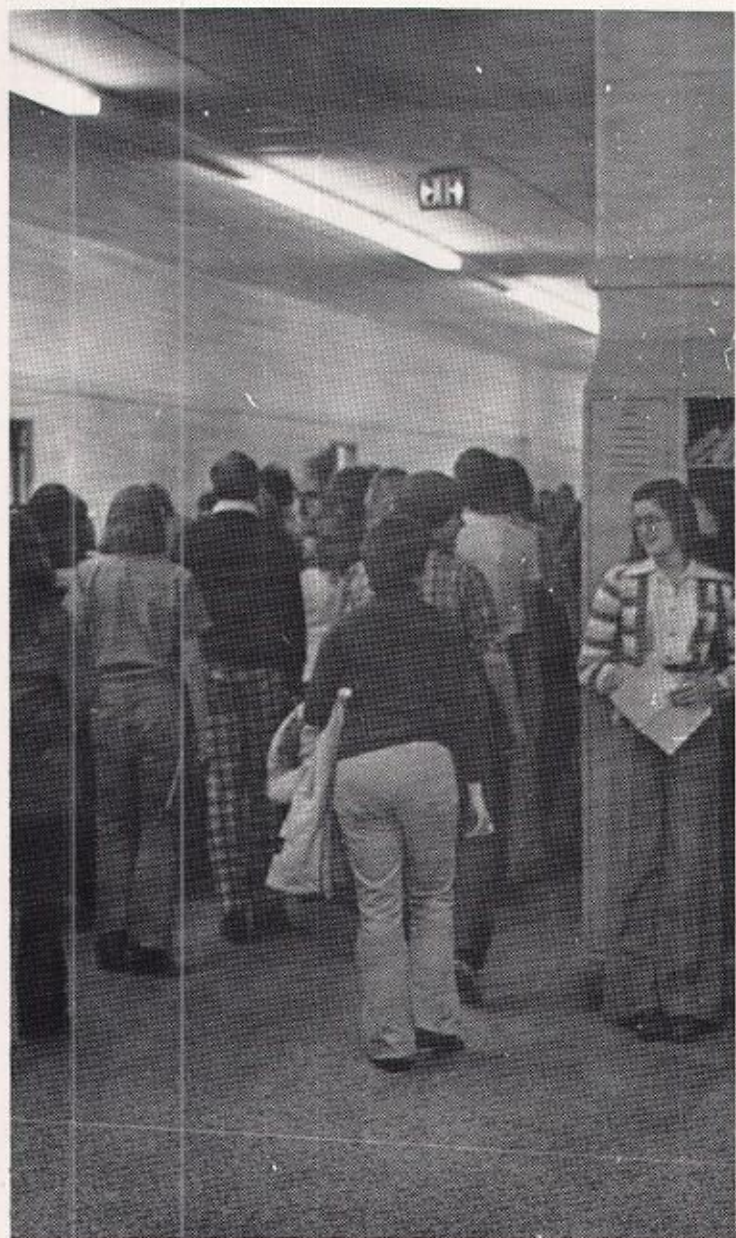

Relief from the over-crowding came at the end of sixth hour when classes were dismissed for the day.

The crowded halls present a problem with only one minute to go before the next class begins for another hour.

Mobs of students fight their way throughout the congested halls to get to their next class before the second bell rings and are marked tardy.

Harsh words and the beginning of small fights helped to cause over-crowding and heavy traffic between classes and after school through the halls.

Students also found time between classes to flirt with fellow students while wandering to their next class.

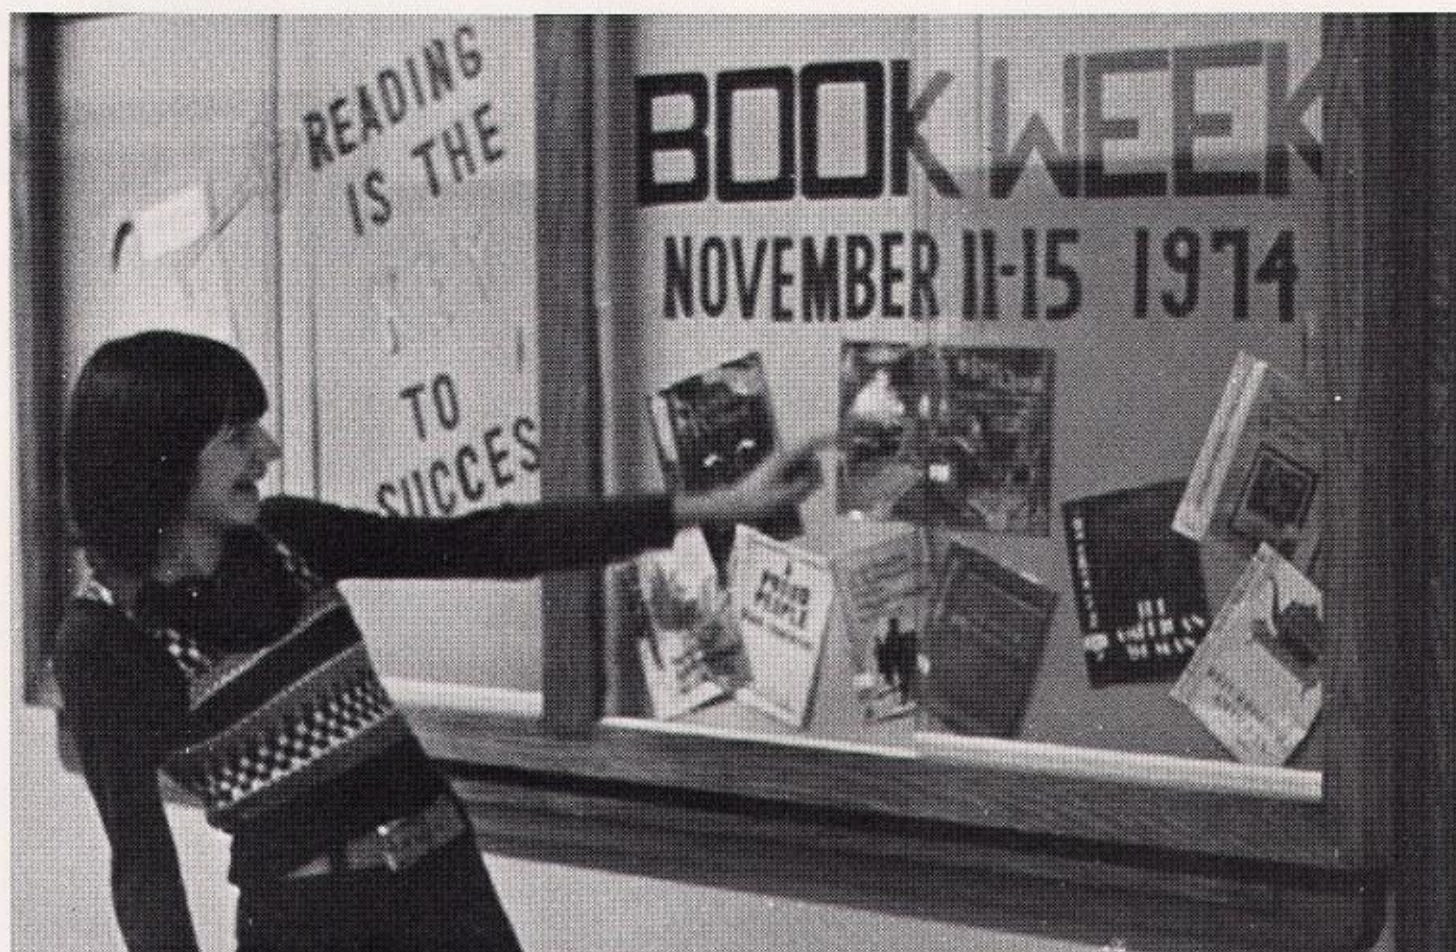

This down shot of Central's staircase shows the traffic students had to deal with as a part of the daily routine of a day at school.

Judy Dombrowski looks surprised to find she's on candid camera while Janet Newman pins her C.C.C. corsage on her.

"Look at all the blups run to buy the gold!" Mr. Meeth, Central's History teacher looks happy, surprised and pleased at the same time.

Senior Sue Nykamp discovers the great selection of books in the library and is astonished to find its book week.

Students Fill Halls With Many Moods

Suprised to find she's been chosen as the 1974 Homecoming queen by her fellow students is senior Chris McCormick.

Mood (mōod) noun 1: a conscious state of mind or predominant emotion.

All around school, students, teachers and administrators alike experienced many moods. Happiness, anger, being happier, embarrassed and just plain bored were a few emotions almost everyone at school sensed at one time or another.

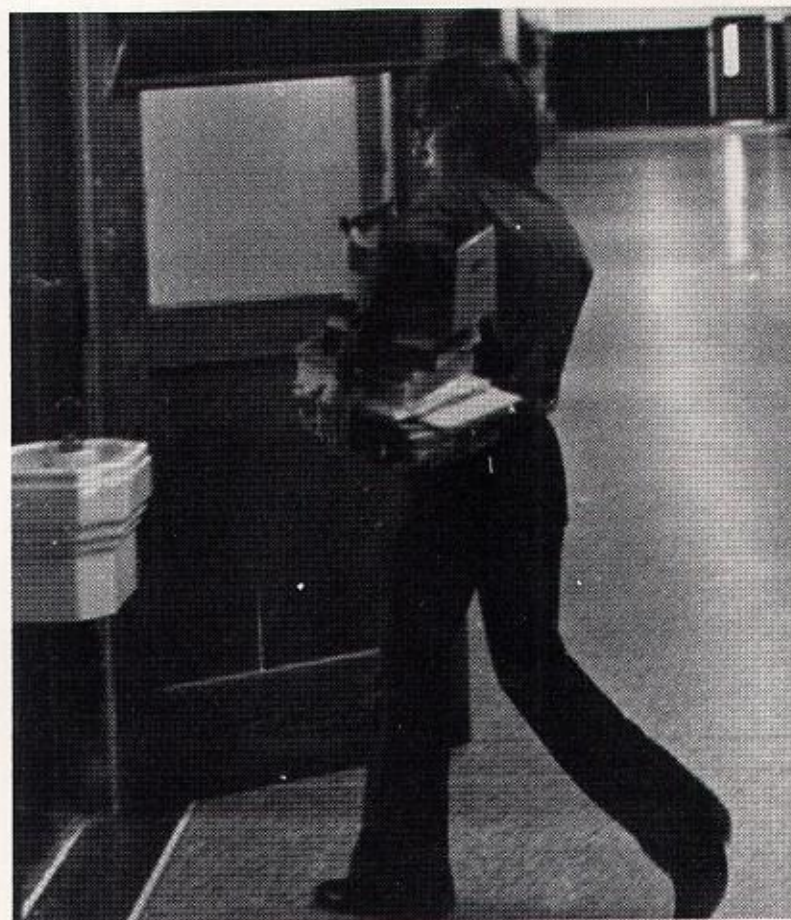

Test scores, the all-around atmosphere of classes, the outcome of the football games and friends contributed to the moods at Central.

Students' moods usually could be seen on their faces and in their actions sitting in class or moving through the halls.

Expressions on teachers', students' and administrators' faces also reflected the prevailing moods of the day.

Preparing for the big race, Freshman Janet Neering stares into space contemplating the possibility of bringing home a victory for the Wolves.

Looking concerned that he is late for his Physics class is Senior Dean Anker as he runs into class.

"Just a little dab will do 'ya." Gordie Hages, Rob Johnson, Mark Chevlier, Jim Fontaine and Rich Carlyon greased down for the '50's dance held during the early fall sponsored by Central's cheerleaders.

Various School Activities Brighten Year

Kelly green socks, a purple shirt and a cougar blue shirt were not uncommon sights on Clash day, one of the Homecoming week's many activities.

Token day also caused some commotion with many girls. Talking to any guy caused the girl to automatically loose her token to him.

Representative J. Bob Traxler and Mr. James Sparling visited Central to talk and answer the questions of government and history students, a few weeks before the November fifth election.

Students alsp participated in voting, attended assemblies and class field trips. Yearbook and news editing staff members journeyed to MSU and CMU for publications workshops.

Greasing on and dressing down recreated the '50's atmosphere at Central. Percy Wombat and the Mooners played at a dance sponsored by the cheerleaders.

"All hold hands and go right in the ring". John Klass prominaded his partner Mary Beall among others all night long at the square dance sponsored by Agathos.

Flocking to have seniors Celeste Kostus and Jeanne Cadena check off their names so as to get their secret ballot are a bunch of eager freshmen.

Expressing his opinion on one of the many questions asked of him by many inquisitive Central students is Representative J. Bob Traxler.

Mobs of students flock to Central's first game of the season to cheer on their team and see the Wolves win an 88 to 65 victory over John Glenn in Wolves' country.

Colorful Posters Add Pizzazz To Hallways

Encouraging any Central student without a class ring to be quick to order theirs now is one of the Josten representatives who seems to have blown his chance.

Bright, colorful posters with witty slogans filled the halls of Central. Informing the student body of coming elections, college representatives and the hopes of beating the opponent of the Friday night football game were the object of these banners.

Government classes donated an exhibit to the first floor main hall of pamphlets, bumper stickers and fliers from area elections. Also a large map of the United States showed the positions up for election in each state and banners publicized the incumbents and new comers to the political race.

"Grease-On With Percy" posters publicized the coming '50's dance sponsored by the cheerleaders. Many greased-on and dressed down to Percy Wombat and the Mooners, the featured band. Clubs also used posters to make known up-coming activities that might be of interest to students.

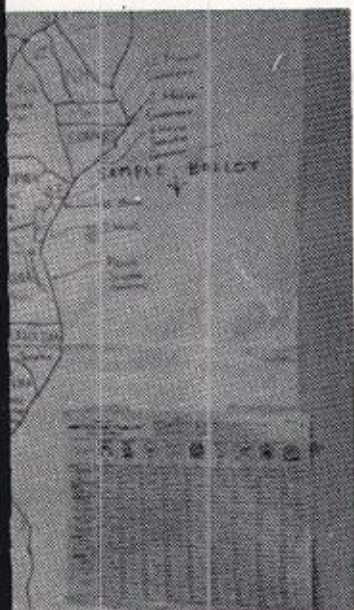

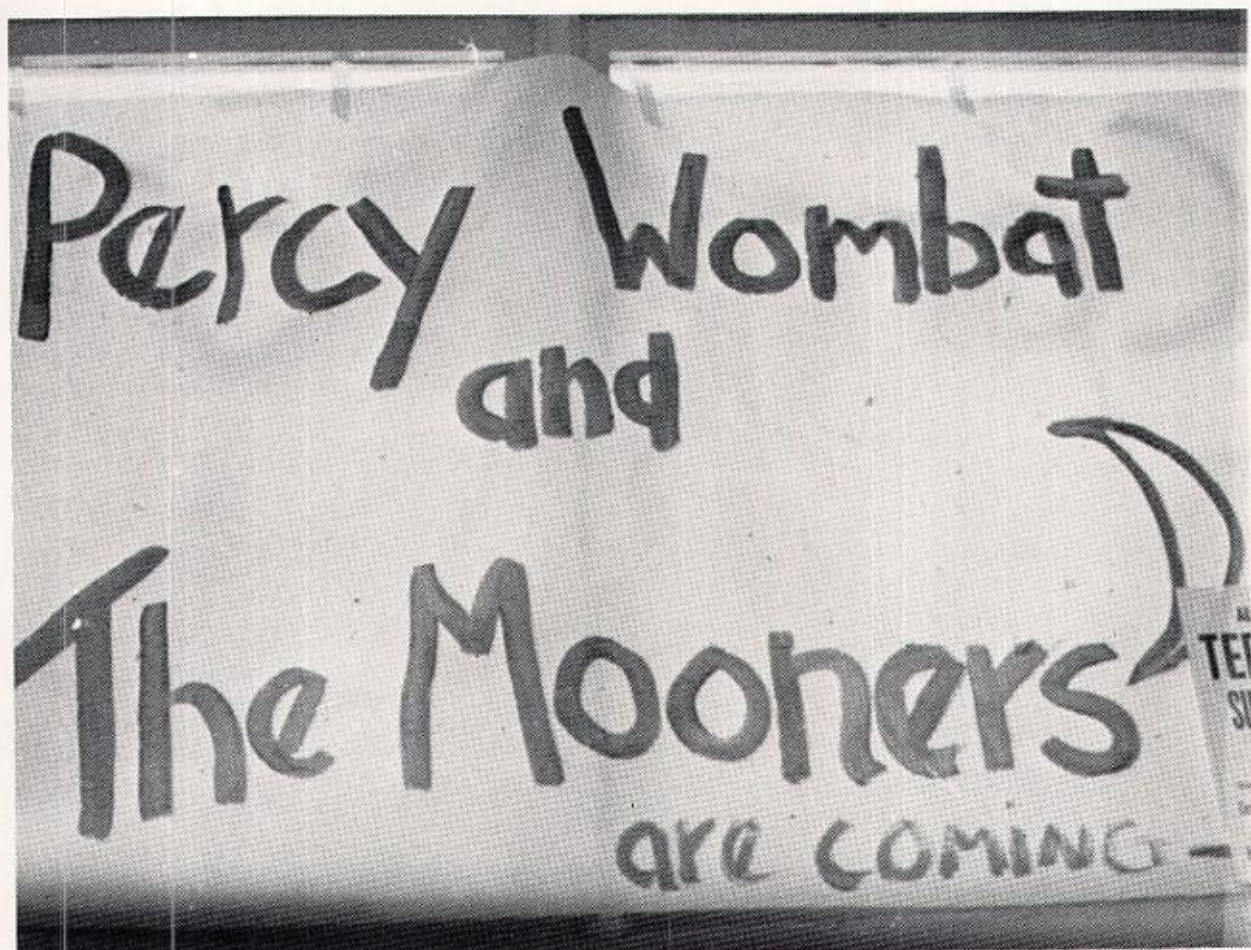

Gazing at the map of the United States with the political subdivisions is Junior Karen Miksa finding out about the many government seats open for the 1974 election.

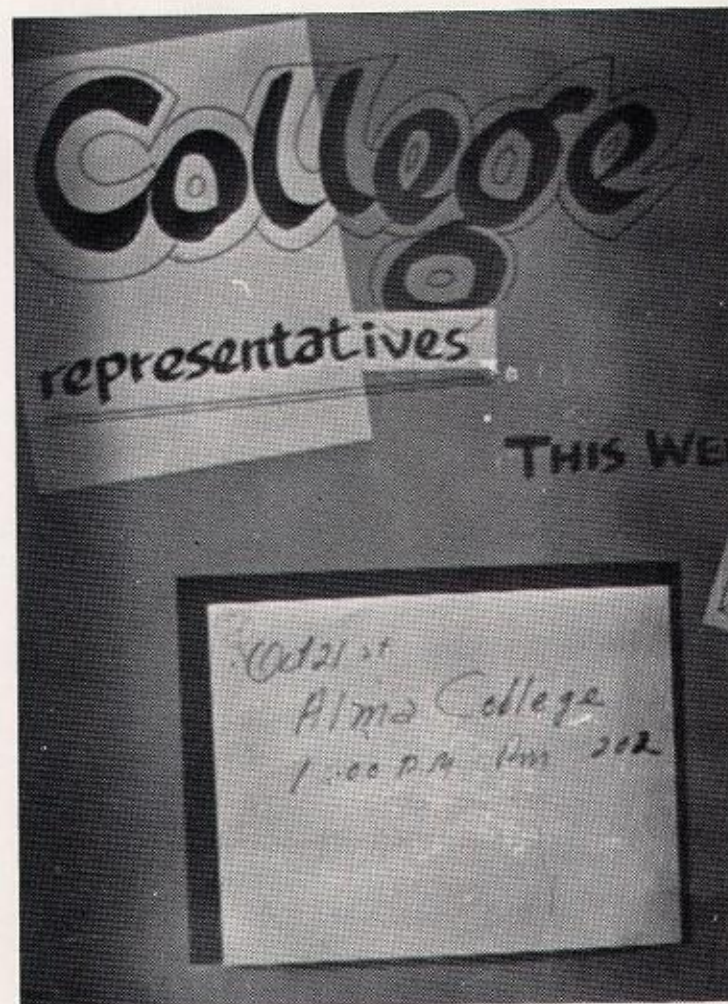

Wishing good luck to the football team and hoping for another win is the object of this banner and also shows the school spirit prevalent throughout the year.

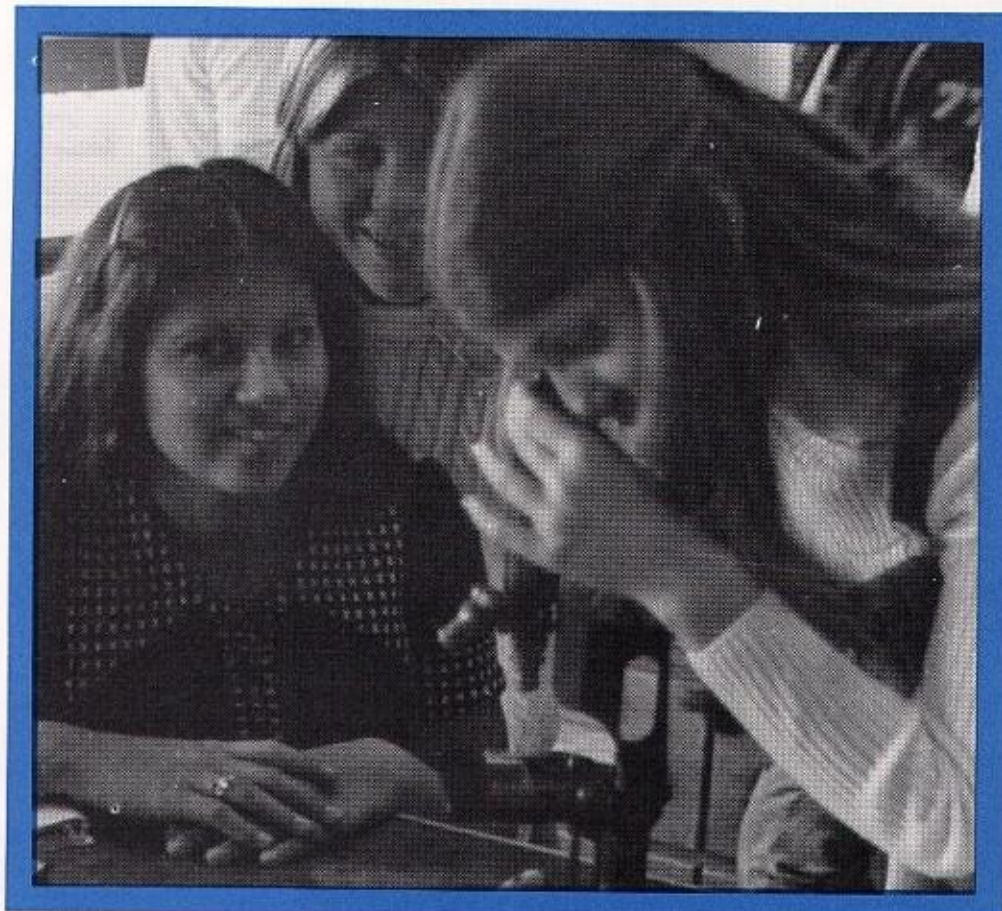

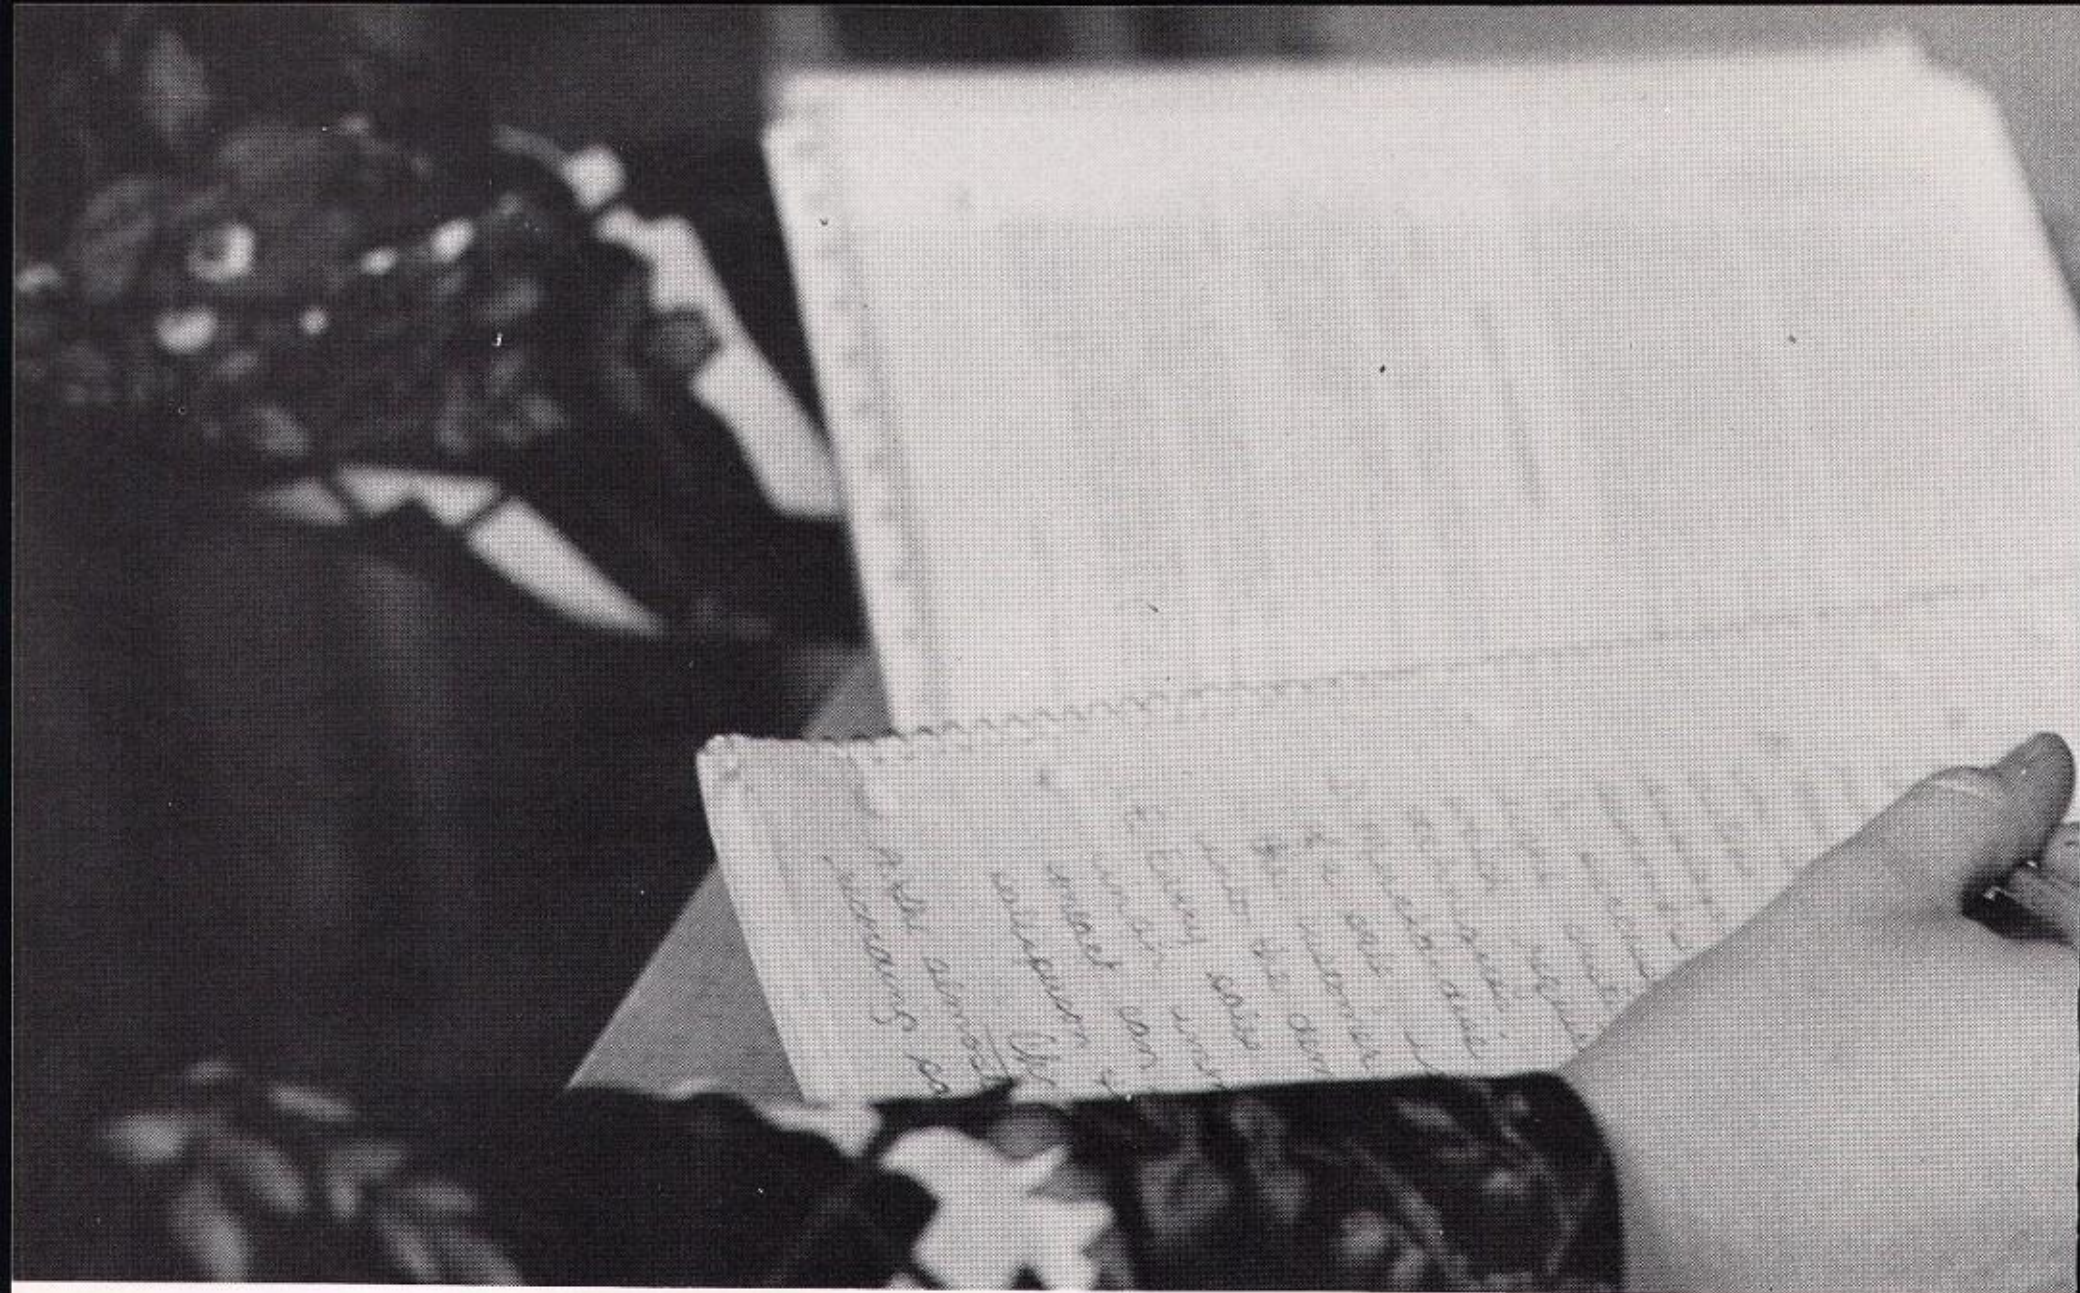

"Where were you in '62?" Maybe bopping at the hop. Students at Central re-live the bobby sock era at the dance sponsored by the cheerleaders.

These posters inform the student body of the possible Democratic candidates up for election in the Tri-City area.

College representatives visit Central to give new insight to students about their school and the areas of study offered.

Academics

After a long summer vacation students and faculty returned in the fall to be reunited with their friends and to begin another registration time.

With the beginning of registration, the academic school life soon arises. With these classes offered and the many classes taken, Central's student enrollment stood as 2,300.

With that goal of graduation, and that diploma in mind, many strove for the last few weeks of school.

That academic life depended alot on what our future might be, so we must take those classes in stride and use that knowledge in our community, in our job, for others, and last of all for ourselves.

Editors Celeste Kostus and Mary Jo Rosebush work out some of the details concerning the book.

Staff Concentrates on Making Deadline

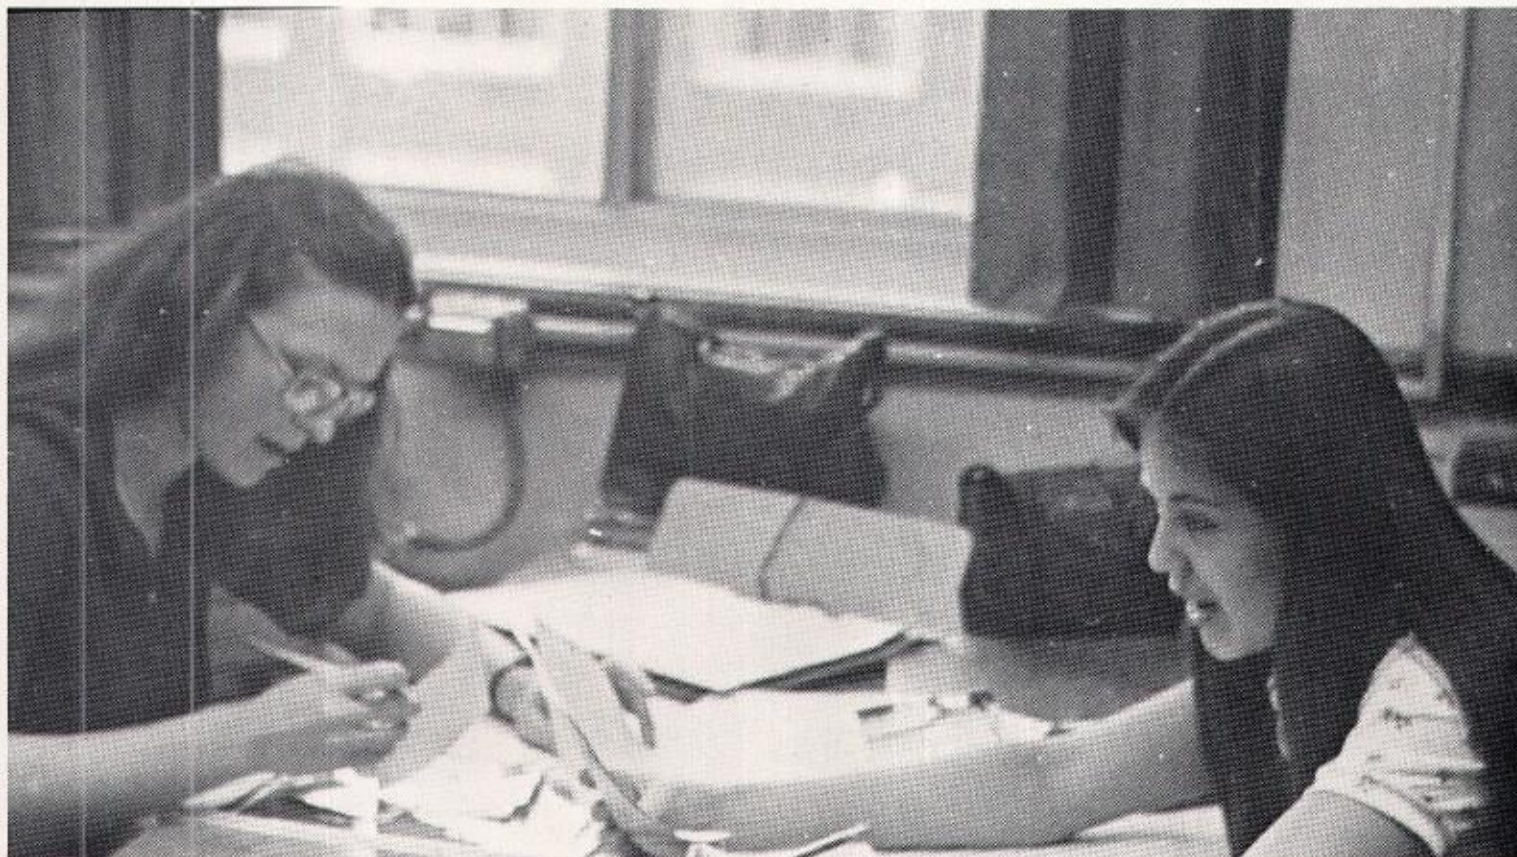

Though the staff was a little larger this year, many problems still had to be faced and solved to get the Yearbook completed on time. Doing their best they managed to squeeze through deadlines and even difficult decisions, such as the theme or texture and design for the cover, were made while cooperating together, without too much trouble.

With an All American Book in mind the staff set to work and had to meet a total of five deadlines with the completion of the book being on March 10.

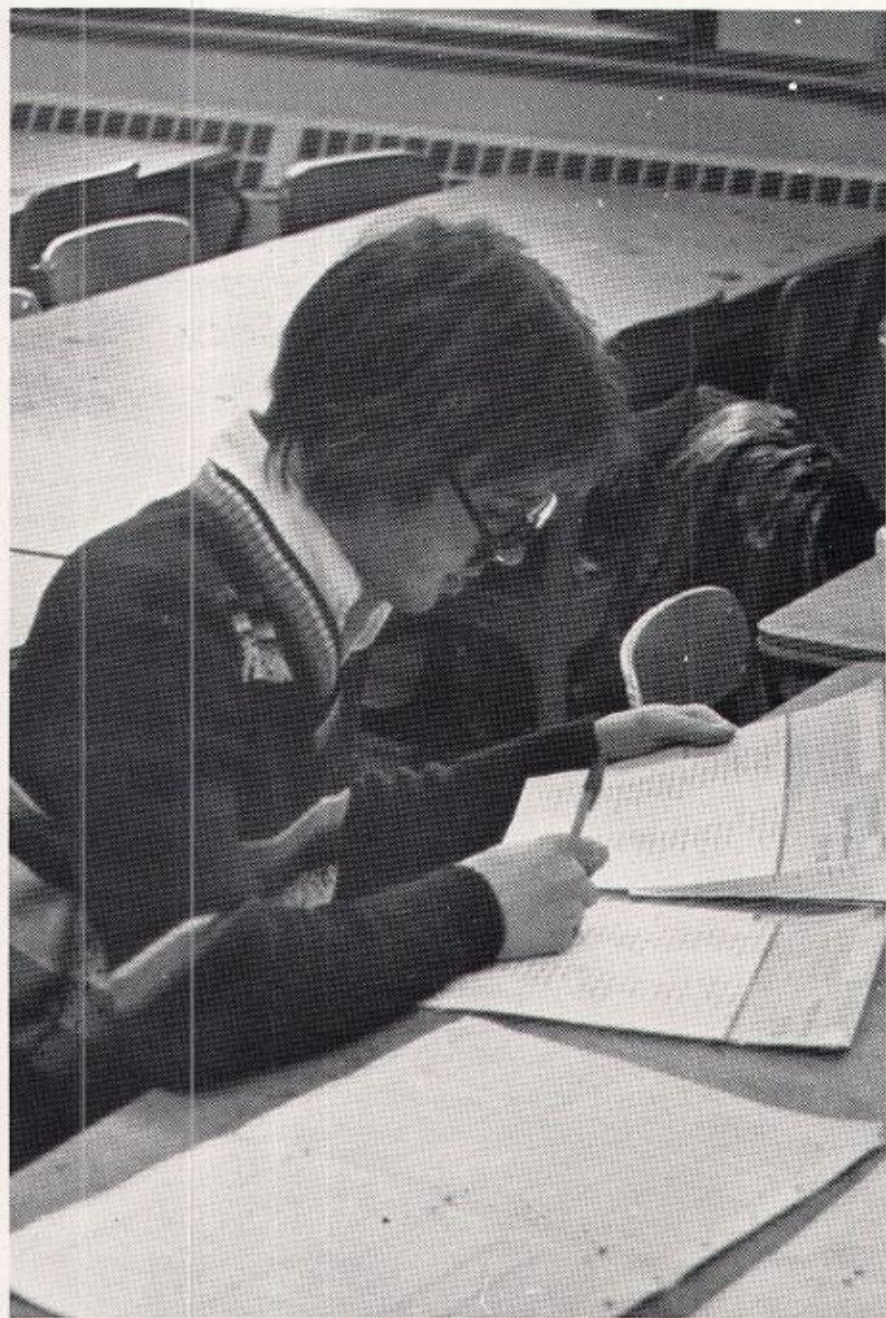

After editors had been chosen the Yearbook was divided into several sections with a student in charge of each one. Then working together the editors and the class supervisor Mr. Leonard Ecker helped the staff members learn the basic techniques of Yearbooking.

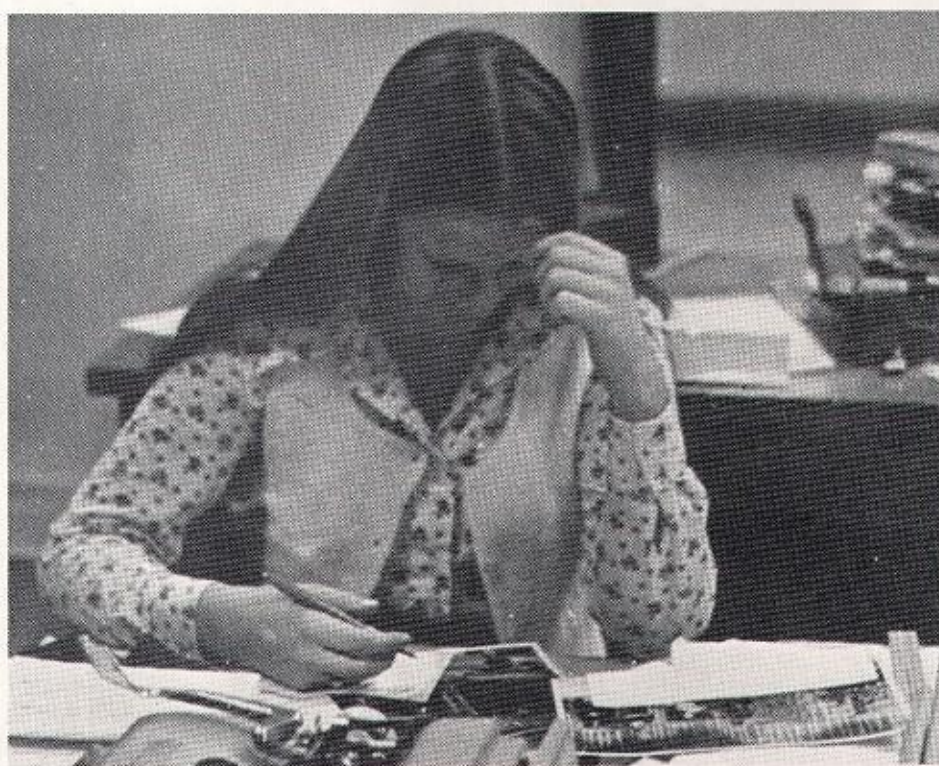

Mary Beall selects the pictures she wants to use in the yearbook for her section.

Sorting out the materials they are going to use to illustrate the yearbook are Debbie Wejsa and Kathy Hernandez.

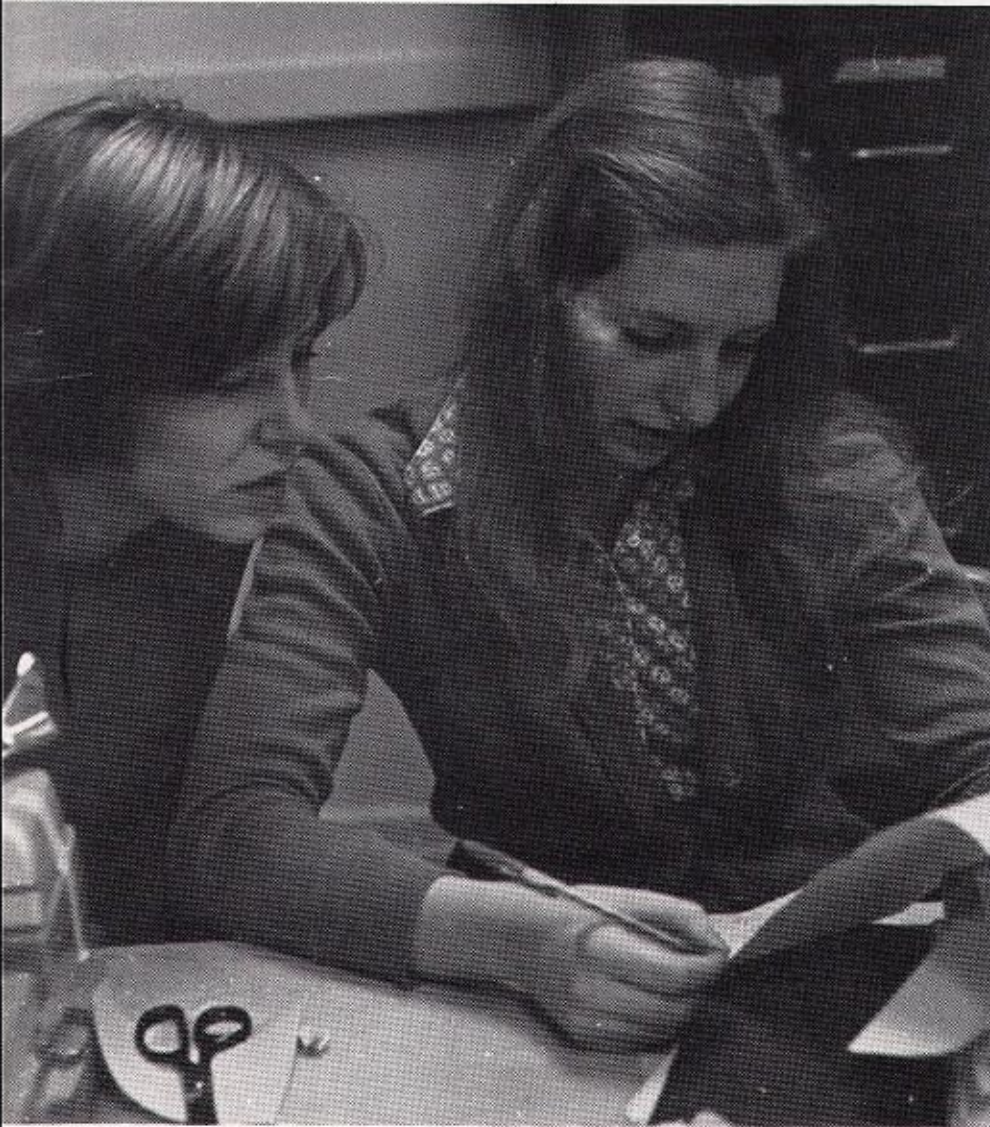

Checking to make sure there aren't any errors before he hands in his final copy is Pete Northcott.

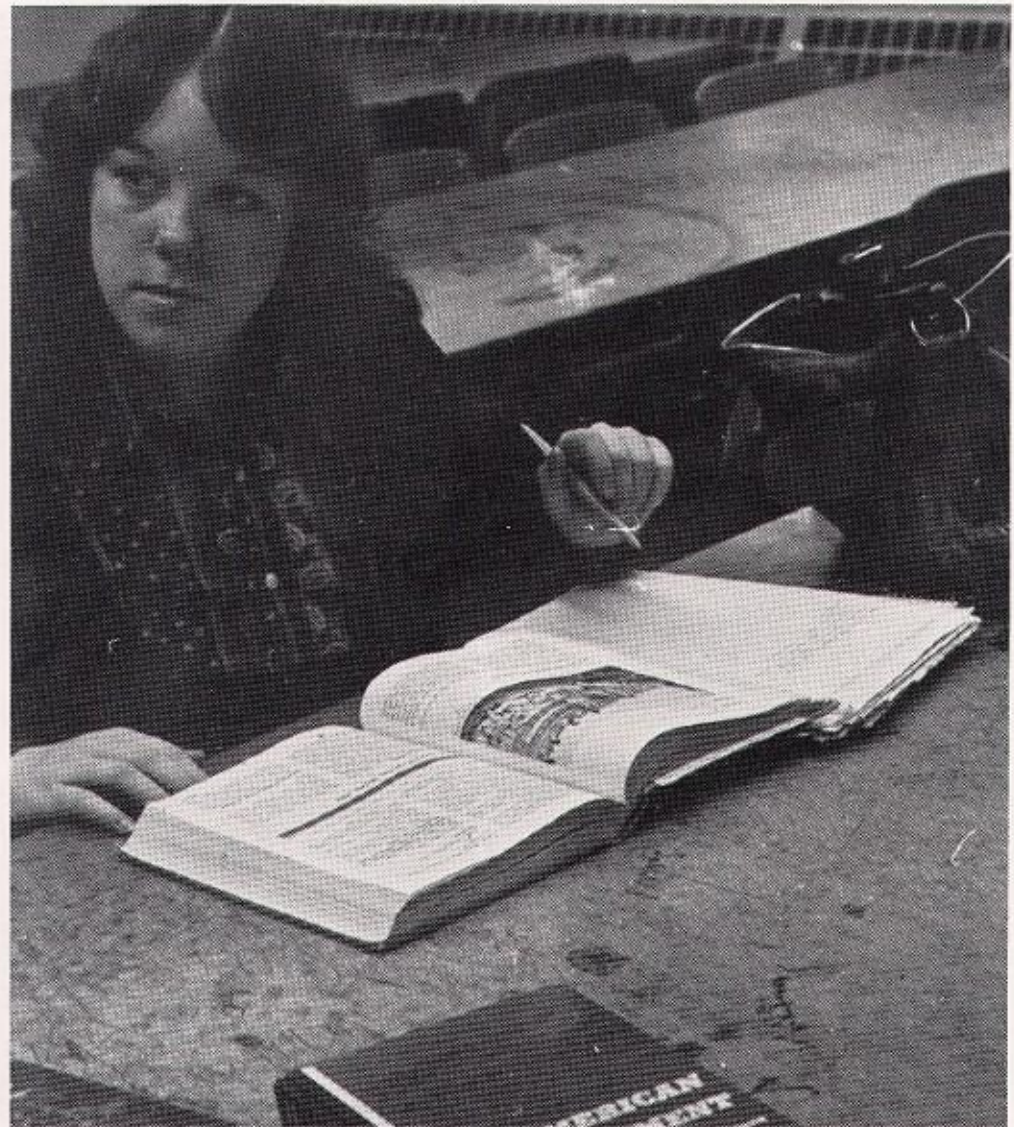

Diane Brady puts finishing touches on her pictures before submitting them.

Centralia Achieves Impressive Goals

Contemplating whether or not to use the story are seniors Colleen Sautter and Joan Klass, news editors.

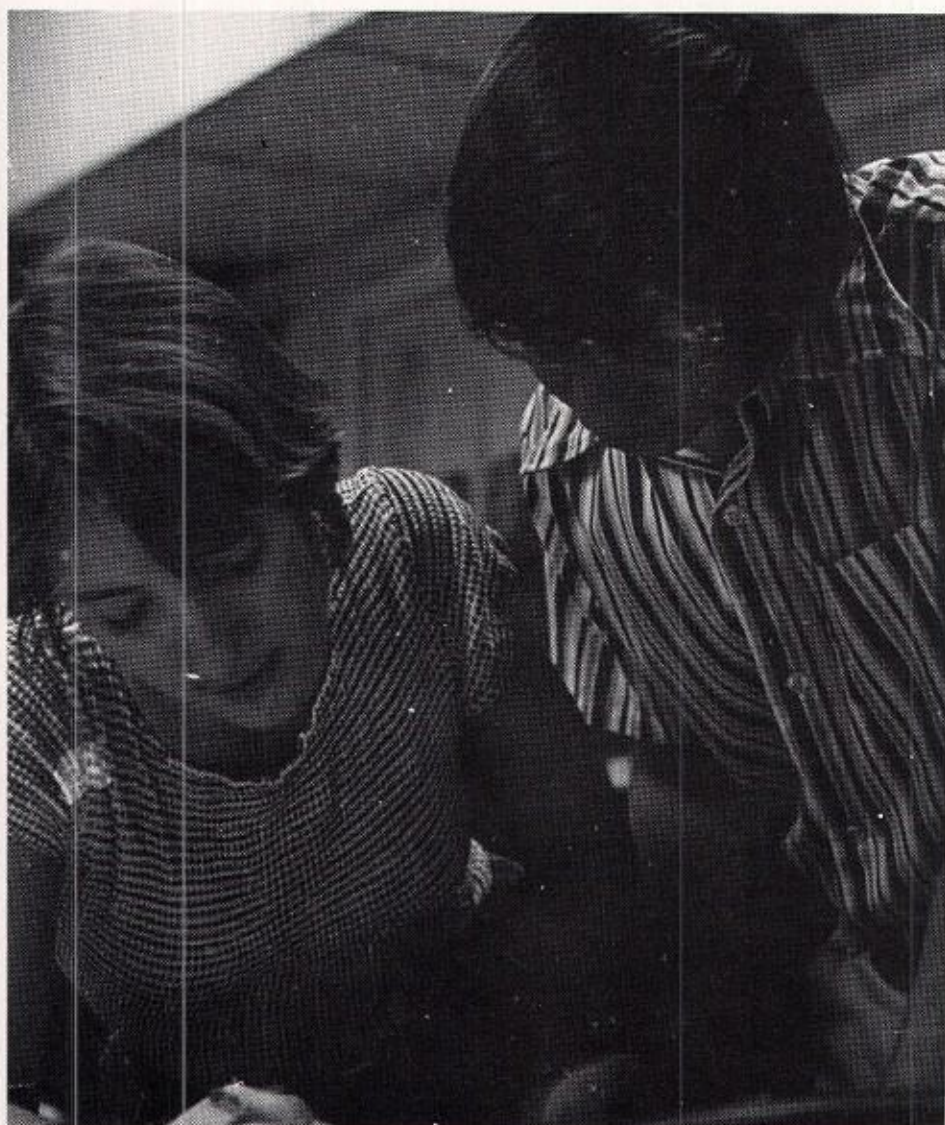

Thinking about her Editorial articles for the next issue is Debbie Jean.

Sports staff members Tim Szczepanski, Rich Milster and Mark Graves read over possible stories for the sports page.

Assistant copy editor Pam Meyer checks over the galleys from the Print Shop while the substitute Mrs. Anderson corrects papers.

Checking over their page plan are seniors Renee LeVasseur and Chris Turek as they arrange their final layout.

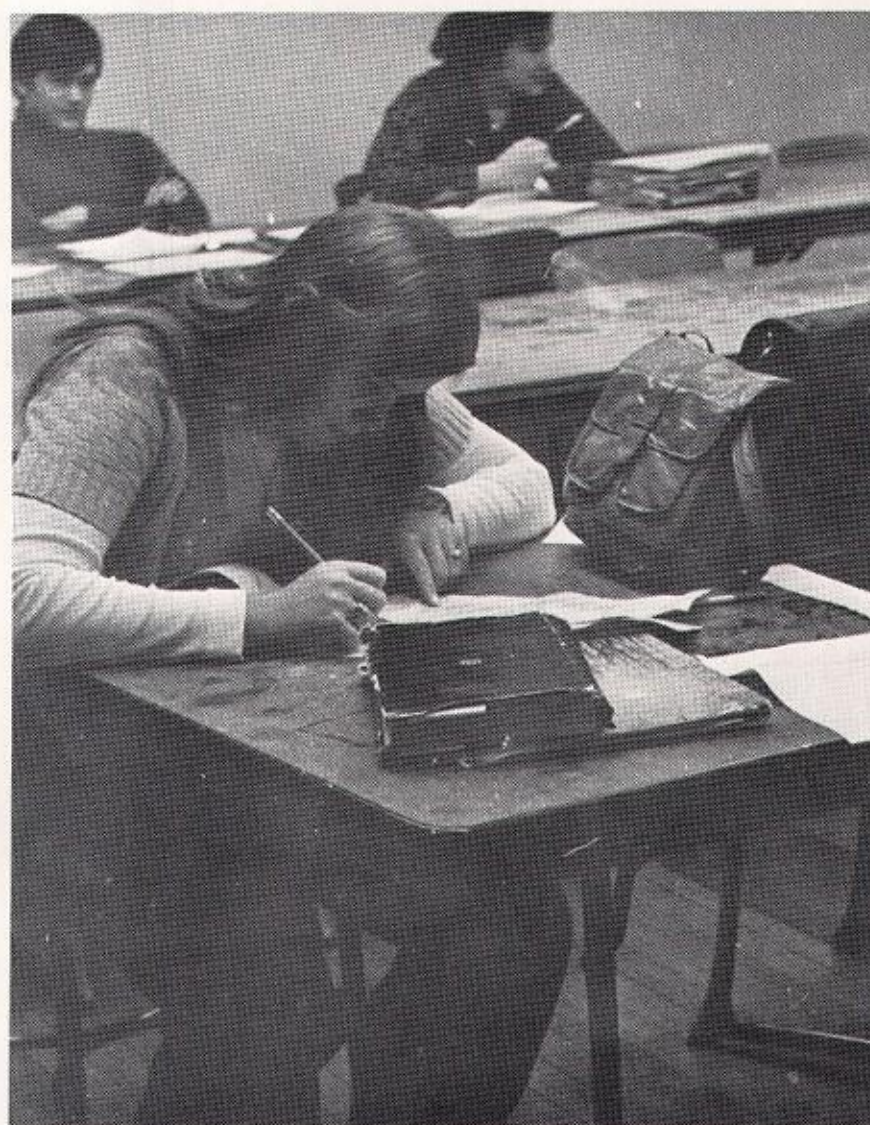

Bi-weekly consisted of an 18 member staff that worked throughout the year to bring the up to date happenings in and around the school.

The staff was completely new except for the editor-in-chief, Cindy Pietryga. The newspaper has accomplished many of its goals by writing about the interests of the readers. It has added a new column which asks the opinions of the student body on such subjects as woman's lib, Watergate, and the economy.

Arousing attention of students was the main objective for the paper. Every year the newspaper is rated from various publishing establishments in effectiveness, human interests, and assortment of and many other categories.

The staff members of the Centralia Bi-Weekly newspaper worked hard writing copy and meeting deadlines.

Mrs. Lois Honsowetz and Mr. Donald Baker acted as Publications and Printing consultants respectively.

Reading the galley for the first issue of the Centralia is junior Karen Miksa while the sports staff relaxes in the background.

Checking to see if the Platen Press is ready to print some stationary for the school is Bill Jamrog.

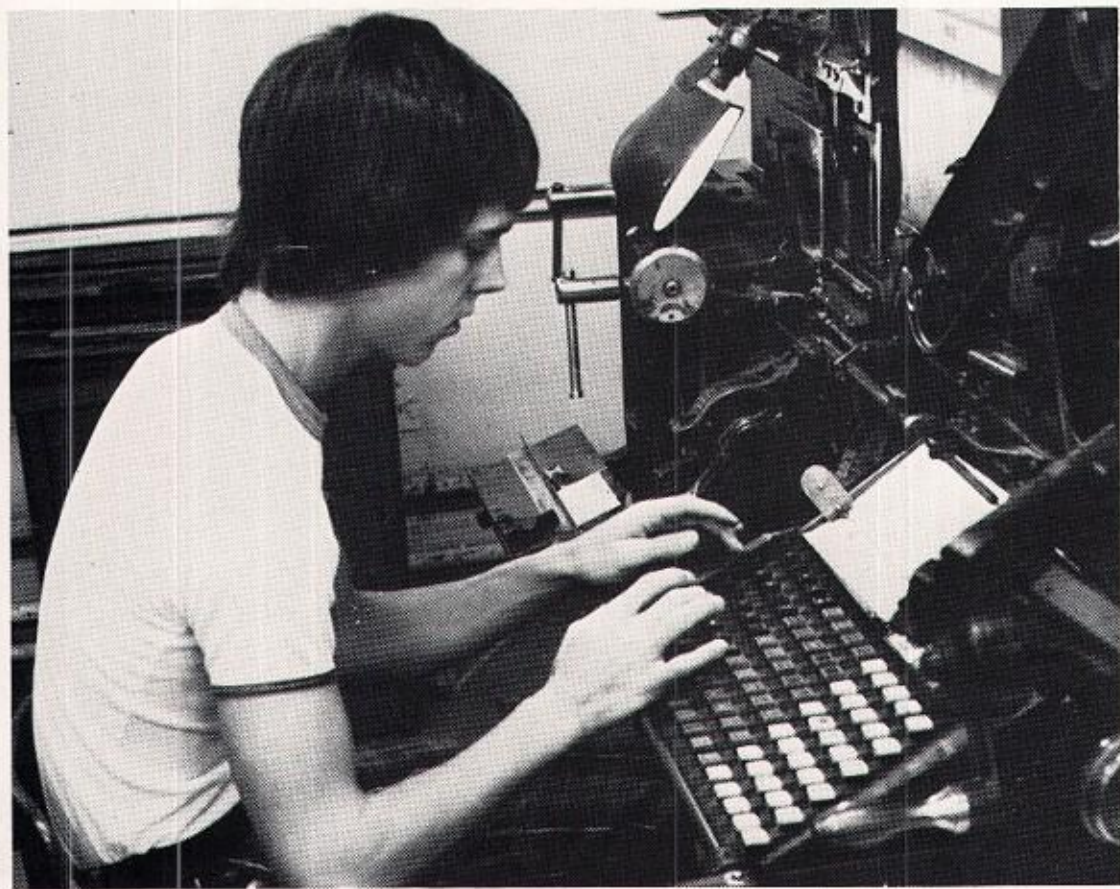

Vicky Kolka looks to see if she is putting the lines of type in correctly while making up the Centralia.

Hand setting the heads for the next newspaper are Bill Jamrog and Mike Munger.

Using the Linotype machine, Joe Russel concentrates on punching the right keys in making lines of lead type, in his printing class.

Graphic Arts was offered to both boys and girls as a beginning printing course. It gave students the opportunity to explore the various methods of reproducing printed work. Students learned to make rubber stamps, set type, operate hand presses and print themselves note sheets, cards and other simple forms. This course was taken by both college-bound students and as a preparatory course for other printing classes.

Experience in setting type by hand and learning the fundamentals of composition proofreading, spelling and other materials related to the trade were taught in Printing. Operation of different machines such as the paper cutter, platen press, offset duplicator and trim saw were also perfected by the students.

Brian O'Farrell makes sure the paper is cut just the right size for the forms he is going to print up.

Working with children and studying their physical and mental development is part of Vicci Sheels work in Child Care.

Colleen McGuire carefully sets down her full tray during waitress training.

Checking the paper to see if it is running through straight and making sure all is going smoothly is Marie Krol.

Examining the work he had done on the body of the car is Ken Hayward.

Doing her clean-up in waitress training is Annette Prankienas.

Advanced Training Open To Students

Crystal King watches as her young friend takes a ride.

Having completed their third successful year the Skill Center easily maintained the large enrollment from the high schools in Bay and Arenac Counties. A curriculum of 23 courses offered during three shifts each day was open to any junior or senior attending one of the area high schools.

Students who considered going into a specific career or wanted more technical training in a field could fill out applications and turn them in for approval by Mr. Dave Johnson, head of the skill Center Program at Central.

Each class offered was equal to 15 credit hours per semester. Students spent about three hours a day at the Skill Center and the rest at their home school. Help in finding a job was given to each student at completion of his training.

Transporation by bus was arranged or if the students preferred they could organize car pools.

Radio Station At Peak Of Good Year.

Music director Tom Brandow in the middle of his dj show displays his magic talent as an album appears in his hand.

"... at the end of the first quarter, it's Central 20 and ..."

Launching the second year of operation, WCHW, the Bay City Public Schools radio, began another busy schedule including: sports, news, special programs and of course, music.

Expanding broadcast hours the station aired from 7:00 a.m. to 10:00 p.m. five days a week.

Boasting a student-run station, many student directors were on independent study like news director Dave White.

Dan Weist was also in the independent study area as program director along with music director, Tom Brandow.

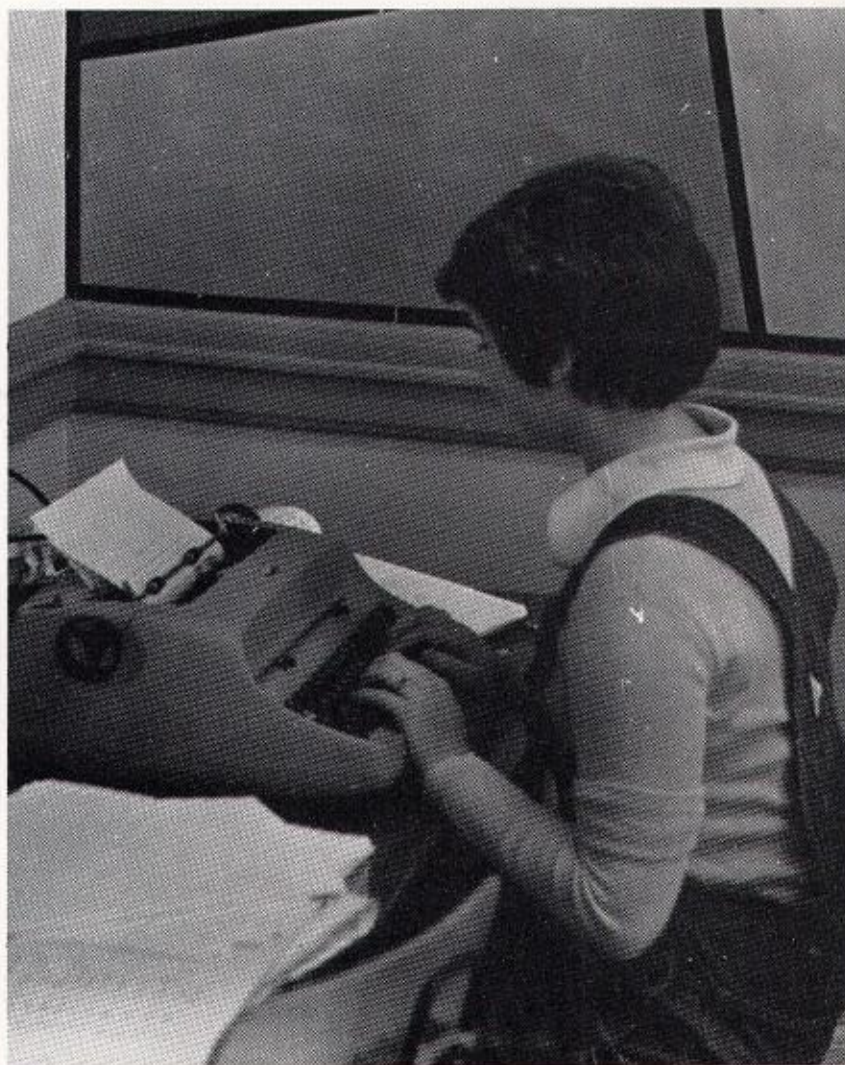

Playing a progressive format, Walcott Dennison, technical director, helped the station run smoothly.

Station manager-teacher Mr. Larry Subberg reported a busy year as he taught five classes in the art of broadcasting.

A Radio and TV student Abel Roque adjusts the controls as part of the learning process in the class.

Trying to complete the days assignment before class ends is Spencer Webb.

Laura Taylor glances at the manuscript she is typing for her Personal Typing class to make sure she hasn't made any errors.

Business Classes Develop Career Skills

Sorting through the cards he is going to program for Data Processing is Chris Mika.

Many students at Central are interested in the Business field. Some students took business classes as their electives, while others were on a Business Program and planned to major in it.

The large variety of careers available in Business encouraged many students to take courses in the areas that most interested them. In these classes students learned important skills needed to get good jobs in the future.

Among the courses offered in this field were Consumer Law, Data Processing, Office Practice, Careers in Bus., Business English and Business Math.

Also available to students were Shorthand, Record Keeping, Accounting and various typing classes ranging from Personal Typing to Typing III and IV.

Practicing good dialect in a Spanish skit are Olga Martinez and Irwin Swartz.

Explaining the action on this Bull Fighting poster is Abby Martin.

Language Interests Held By Students

Aiming the projections of a Spanish activity is Mr. Ronald Pavlik.

Many students at Central have taken a special interest in languages and they are becoming more popular year by year.

German, Latin, Spanish and French are the courses offered in the Foreign Language Department.

The interpretation, understanding and dialect are not where the language ended, it branched into different clubs, trips and other extra-curricular activities.

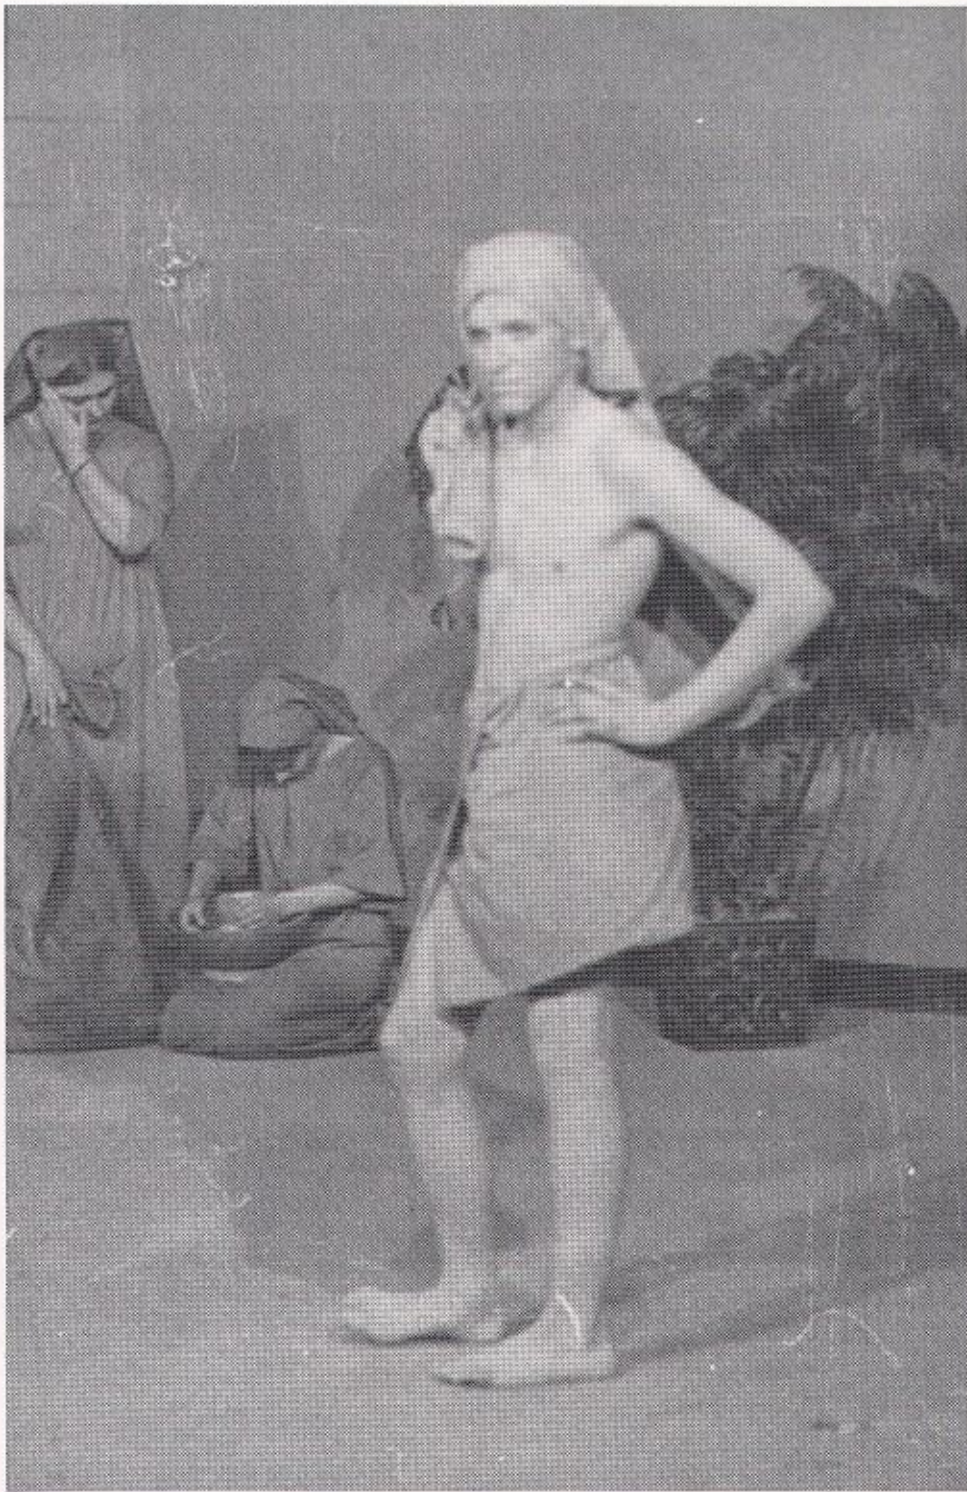

The interest in all the different languages kept a balance therefore, making it possible for these classes to be open.

New Arena Scheduling also made it possible for students to choose not only their teachers for this subject matter, but also the hour in which the class is offered.

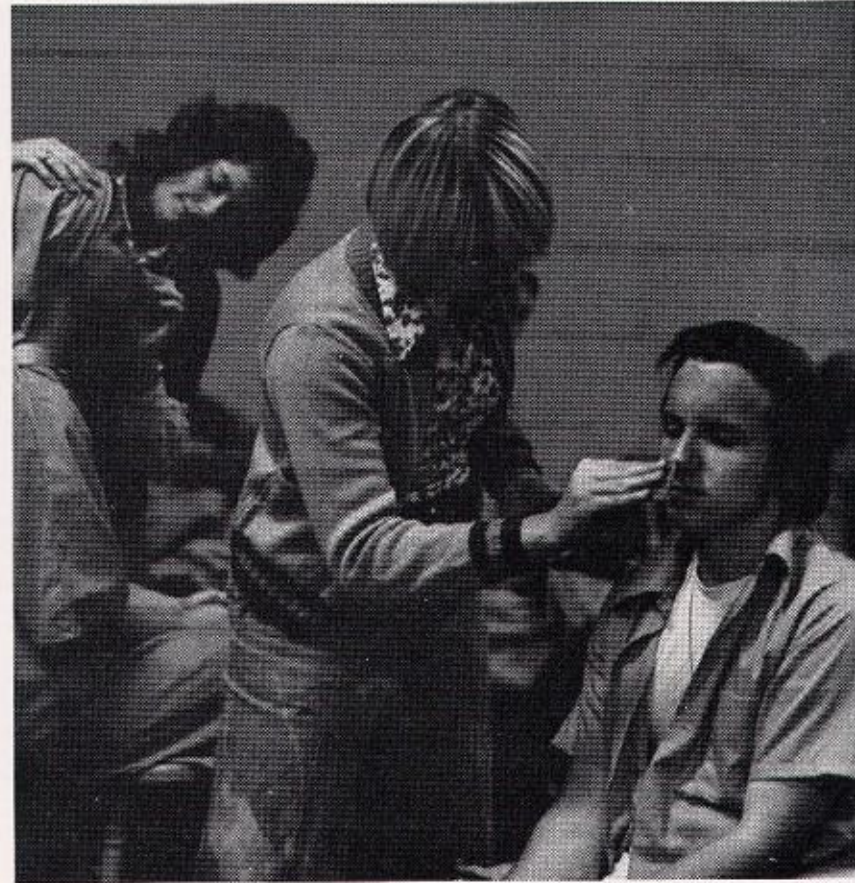

Languages are challenging to the individual on the basis of study, the application of the student and most of all the achievement.

Pondering the translation being given to them by Mr. Pavlik are a few of his Spanish I students.

Putting on the finishing touches of Make-up base are foreground Jill Verekyn and background Mary McIntosh.

Dave Starr waits for instructions and a cue from the cameraman before he starts his action into the scene to begin the play.

The Royal Family stands fast as the peasants of the city enter following the curious traveler as the scene progresses.

Egypt Unites with TV for School Class

Humanities made a very interesting move into show business by putting on a play that was filmed at Gerity Cablevision this year called the "Egyptian Odyssey".

The notion came about as the students felt they would benefit from a portrayal of Egypt in the past, then just studying the history and culture. With this in mind, Mr. Frank Serresseque proceeded to work out the arrangements so this event could take place. With the careful preparation done on his part the show became a hit for the students to prove their acting talents, and chalked up another one for Mr. Serresseque's expert teaching techniques. Although this production took a tremendous amount of work on the classes part, everyone seemed to enjoy this new learning experience.

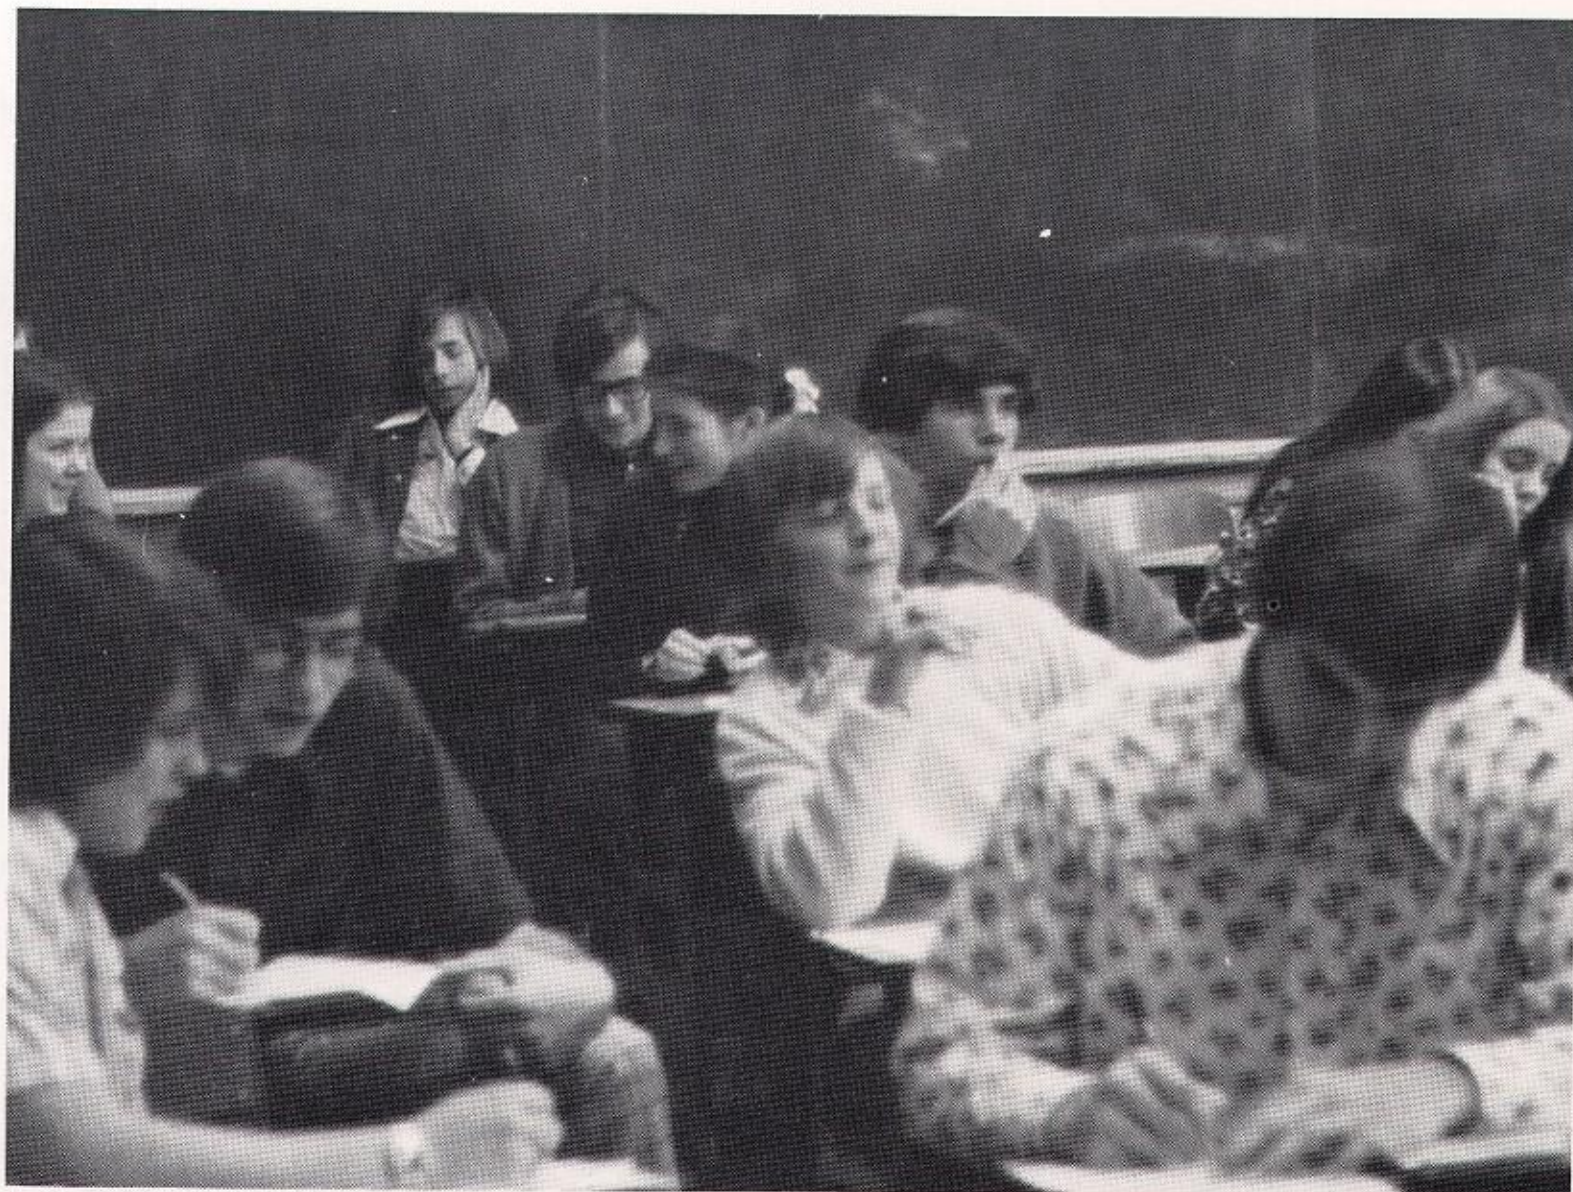

Left in a state of amazement over comments which have been made by the Scribe, Diane Ciesielski, is Kevin Dempsey as another priest, Rick O'Farrel checks the scrolls.

Expressing her opinion on the make-up job that Gilbert Martinez has done, as he also looks on, is Kathy Hernandez.

No one seems very interested in Trigonometry as Mr. Clark's third hour class takes a break.

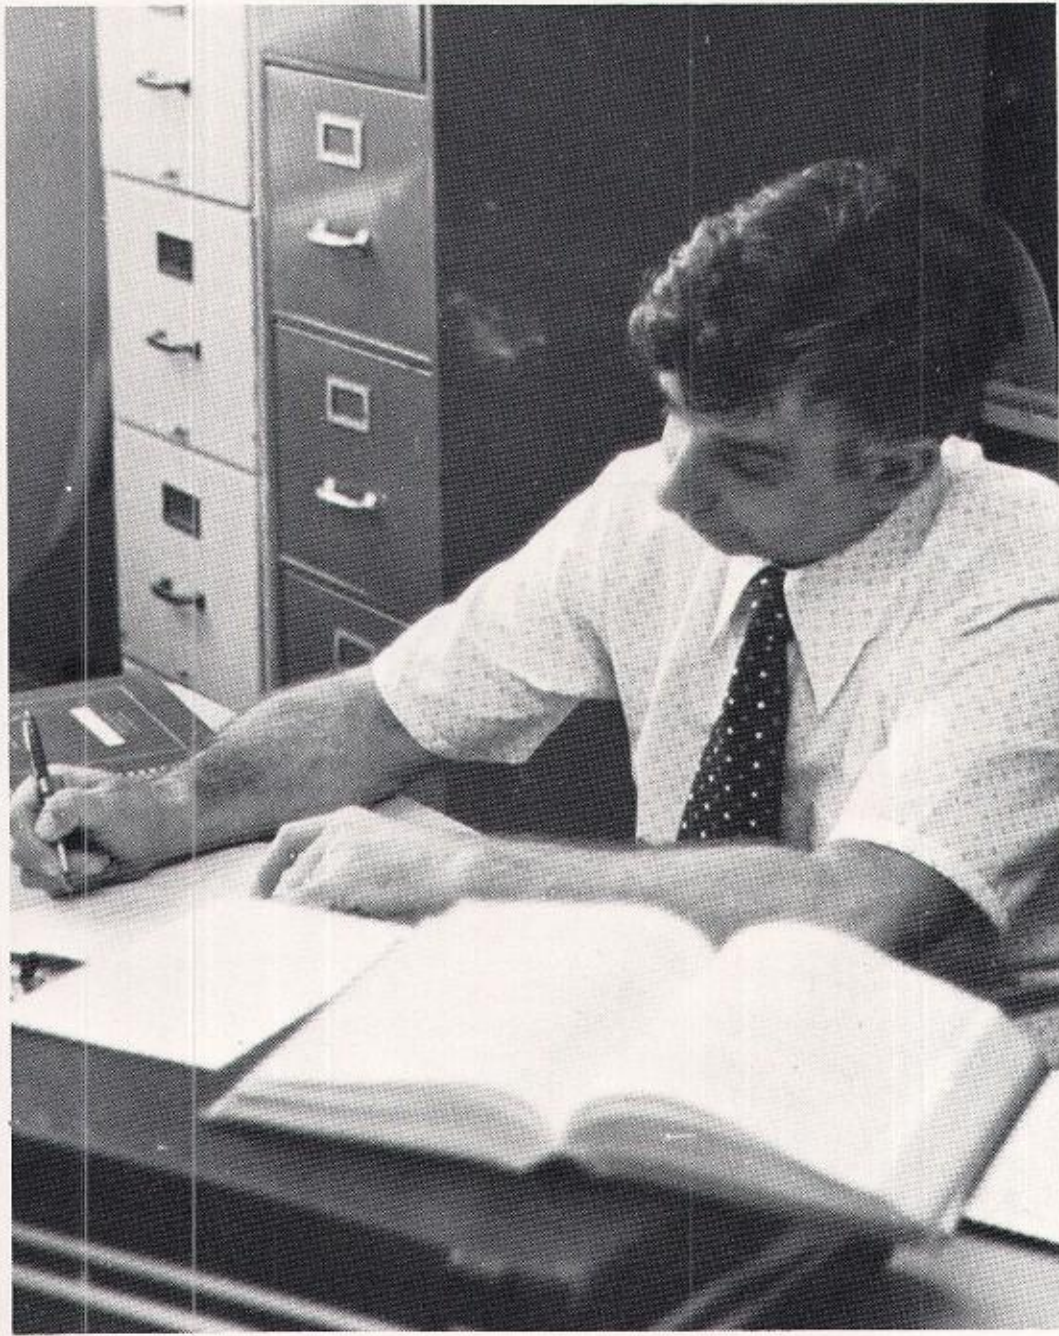

Explaining a new technique to his Trig. class is Mr. Dave Clark.

Students concentrate on finishing their homework assignment during Mrs. Foxes third hour Geometry class.

Numerous Math Classes Are Available

Mr. Jerry Toyzan takes time to catch up on some work while giving his class a test.

Offered to students at Central this year as every year was a wide variety of Mathematics classes. Choosing courses ranging from Fundamentals of Mathematics to Analytical Geometry and Introduction to Calculus, students were able to pick the classes that most interested them and suited their needs.

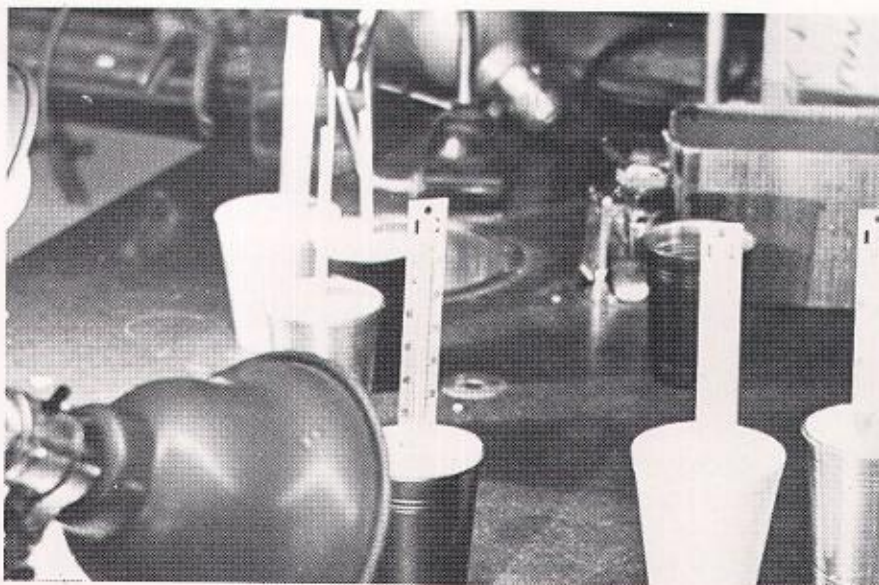

After graduation many students have plans to pursue their math career in college or to enter jobs requiring a certain amount of mathematics.

Students interested in a higher degree of math, with the recommendation of their teacher, were eligible to take classes in Honors Math I through VI.

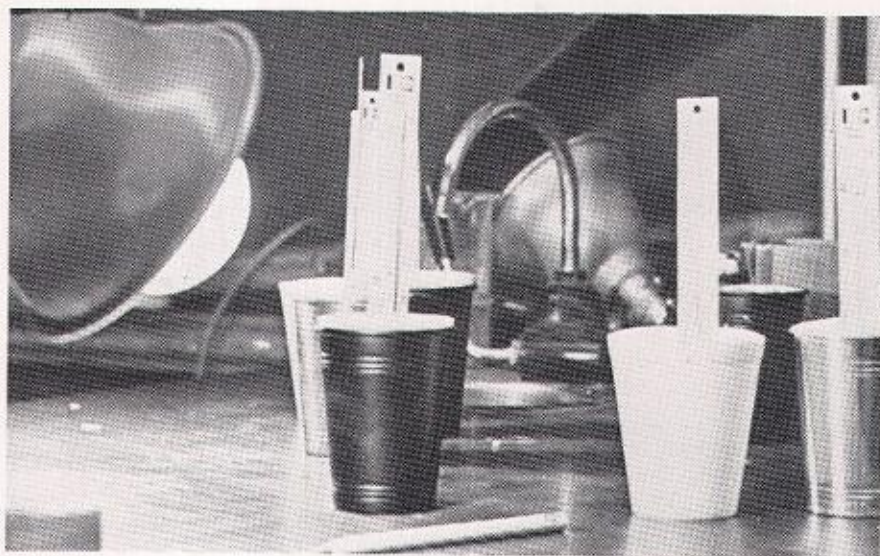

Heading the Math Department this year was Mr. Harry Diebolt. Other teachers in the department were Mr. Clark, Mrs. Fox, Mr. Hodges, Mr. Ross, Mr. Terbush, Mr. Toyzan and Mr. Workman.

Working hard on an Algebra test are some of Mr. Toyzan's students.

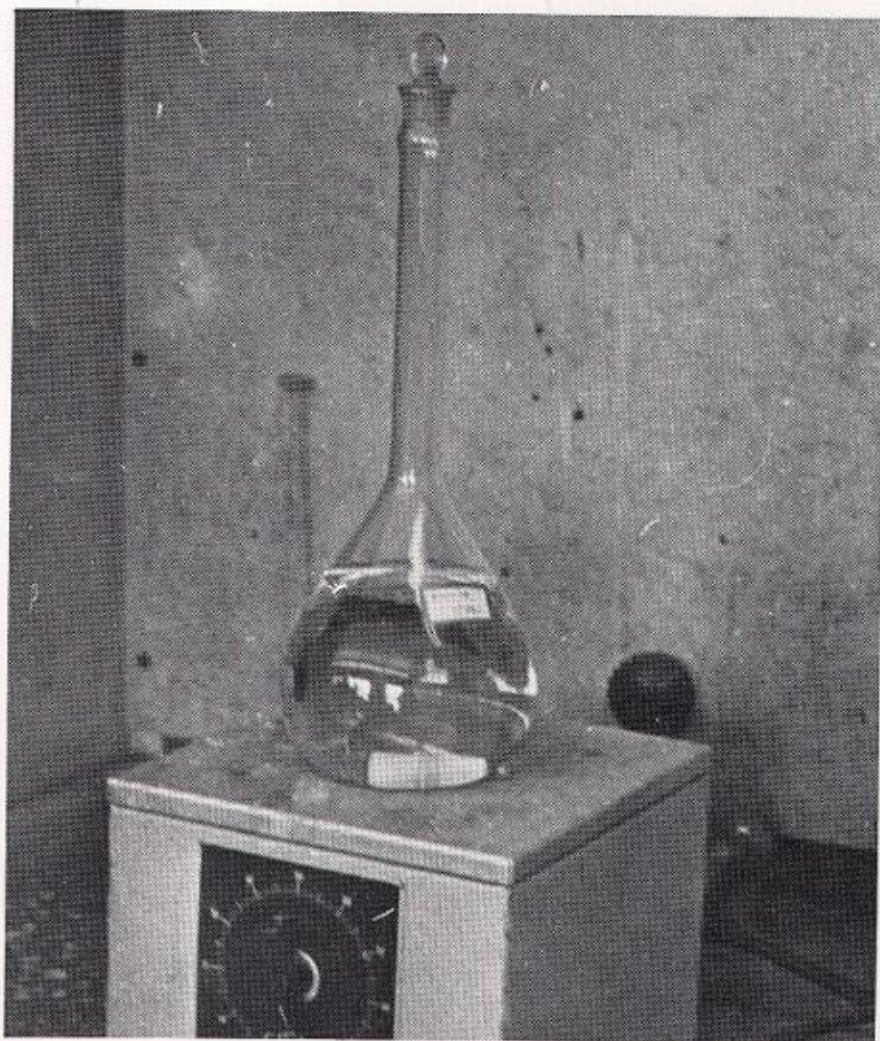

Here we see the equipment used in Solar Radiation Experiment.

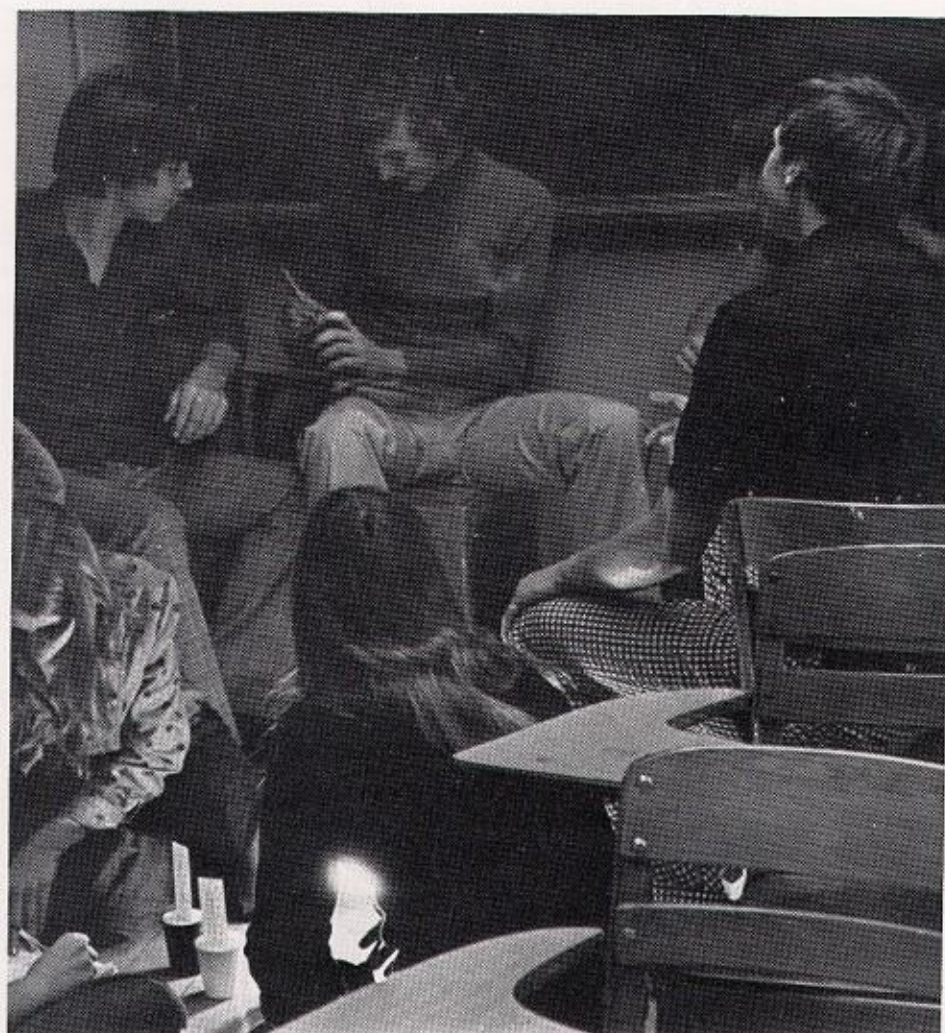

Also we see the equipment with a change in lighting to see the effect of heat on different colors.

Here are the lab. conditions, the floor of the Science room which make it difficult for experimentation.

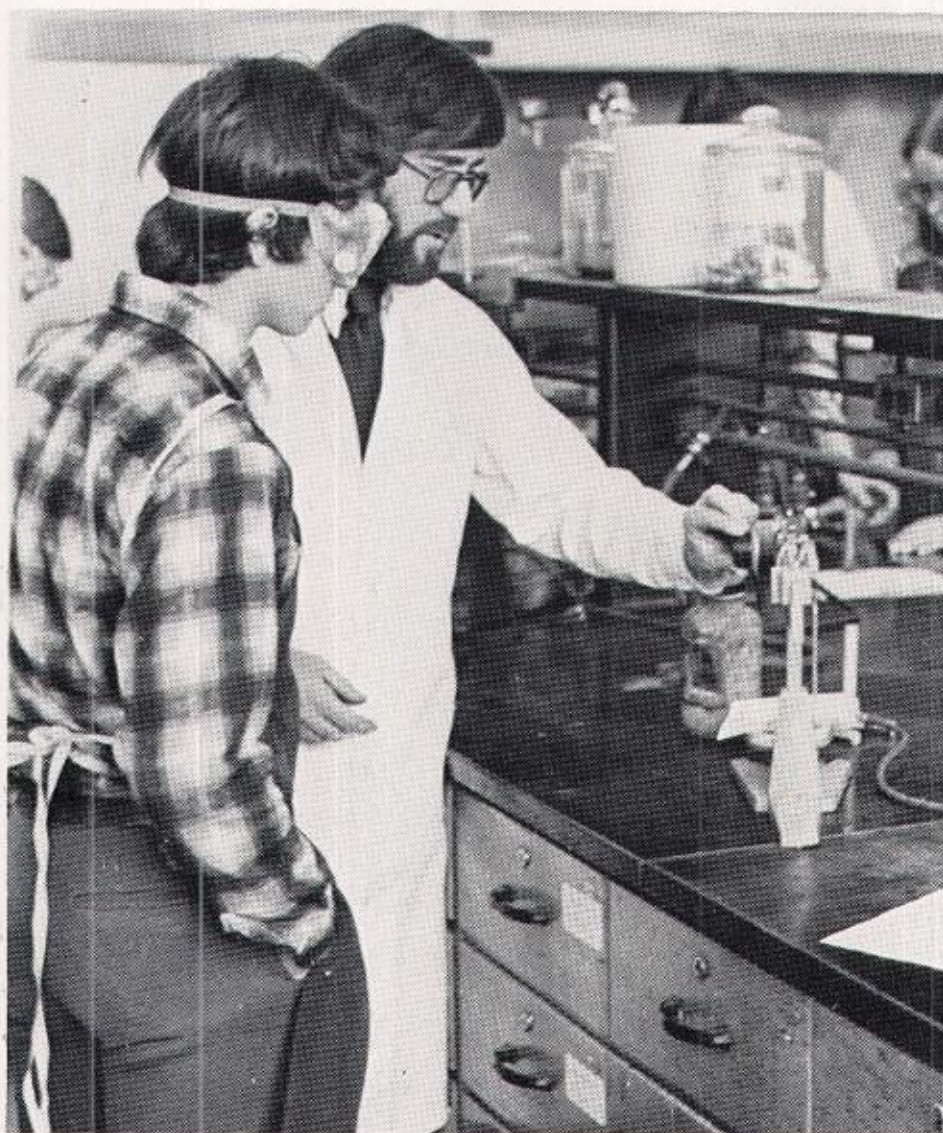

A large mixing flask is used to combine solutions in experiments in the Chemistry Laboratory.

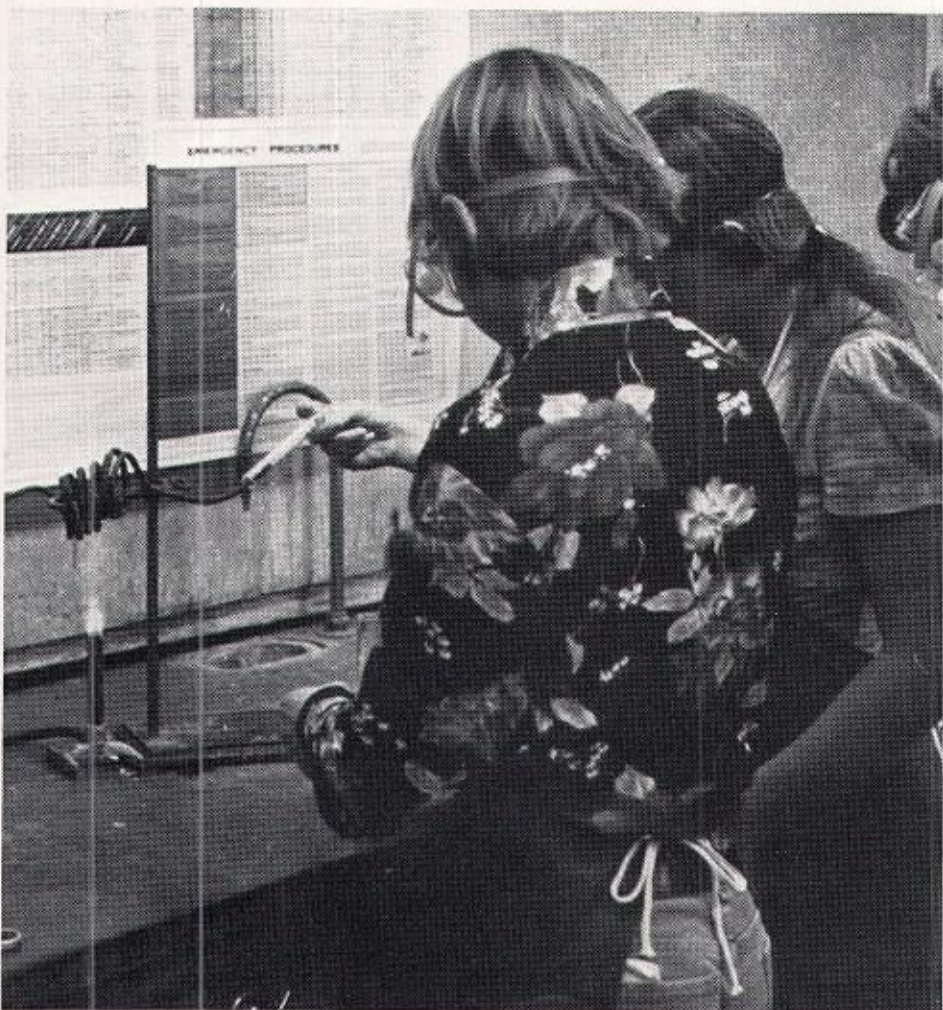

Another example of the cramped conditions is shown here as students are trying to complete their lab.

Limited Facilities Hamper Science Dept.

Drying test tubes for further experimenting are Karen Miksa and Mike Diebolt as they use an open flame torch effect.

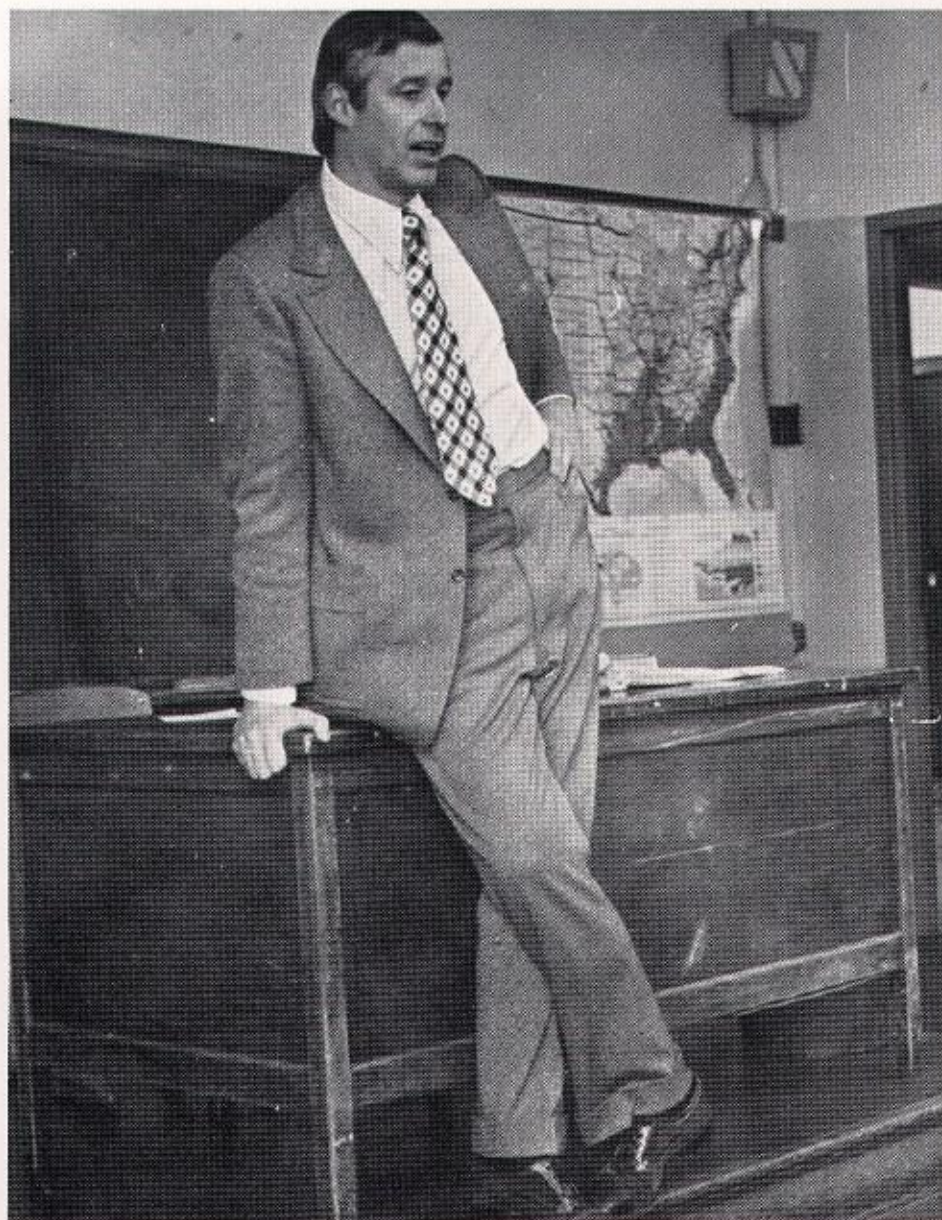

Central's Science Program has always been popular, but due to the inadequate facilities it is not what it should be. Students are now being taught with little or next to none of the equipment needed for correct preparations in the field in which the courses are taken.

The crowded atmosphere and dangerous conditions in the lab such as overloaded electrical outlets and poor ventilation systems are one of the biggest down falls for the Science Department.

Experiments were conducted under the auspicious of Miss Evans, on solar radiation in conjunction with Earth Science. Although her classes proved to have learned an enormous amount of testing and recording techniques the chances taken in doing so were risky ones.

Working diligently to complete their finding in the lab are a group of students from first semester Chemistry.

While explaining an event in U.S. History, Mr. Meeth relaxes against his desk.

Social Studies Required For Graduation

Headed by Department Chairman Mr. Clair White and offering a large variety of classes was the Social Studies field.

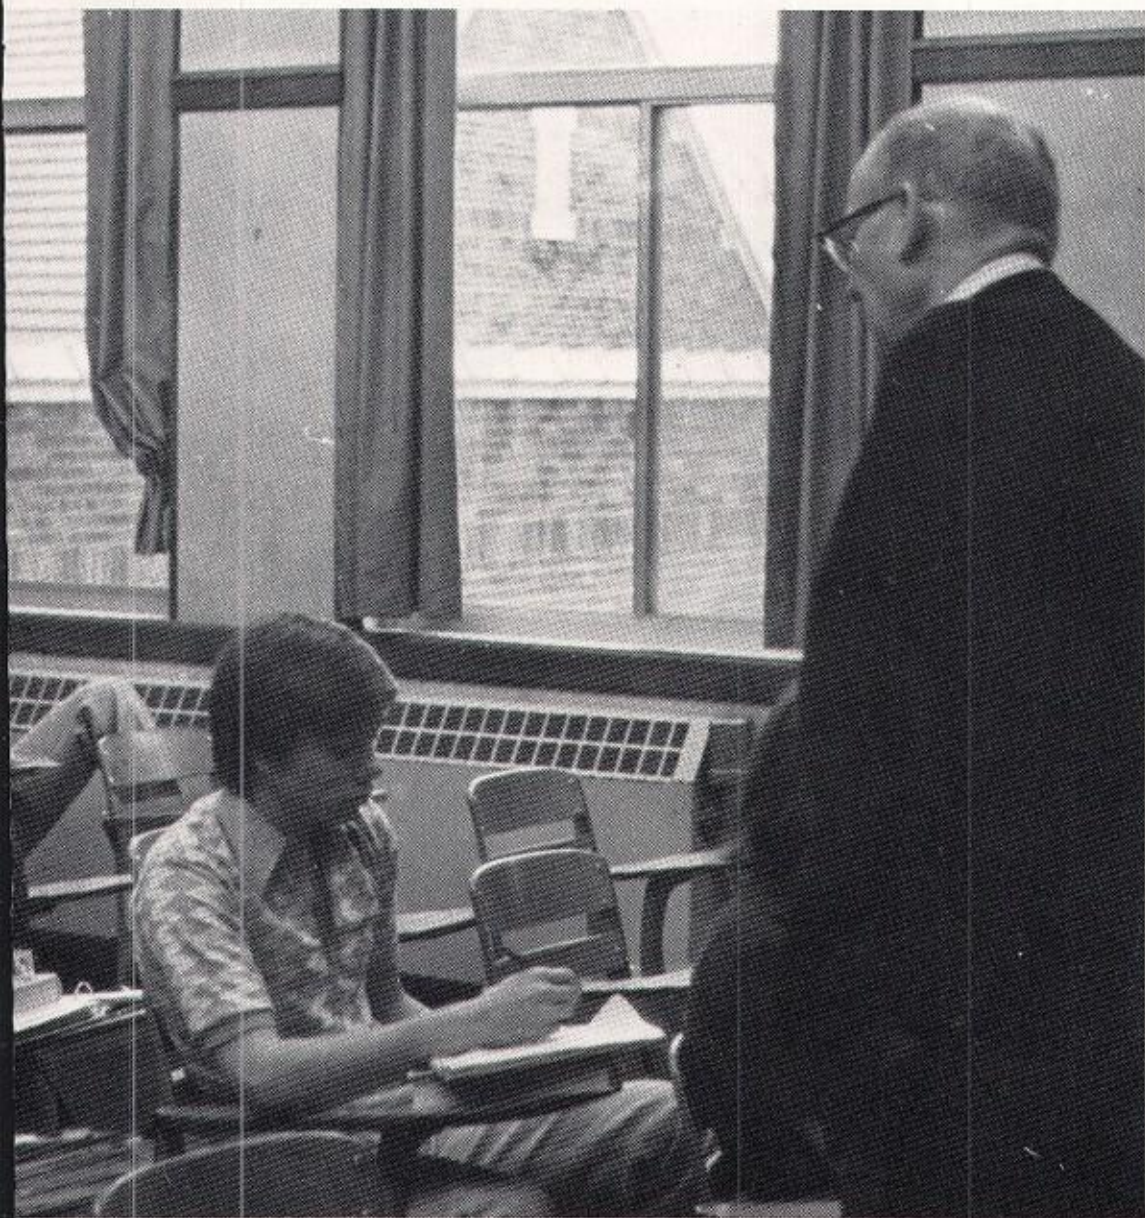

Required by the State of Michigan to be taken by students in their senior year was one semester of American Government. Teaching this course along with Mr. White were Mr. Ulrich and Mr. Leslie.

Two semesters in United States History were also required for graduation. Taken in the junior year this class was taught by Mr. Charles, Mrs. Hahh, Mr. Kayner, Mr. Maciejewski and Mr. Meeth.

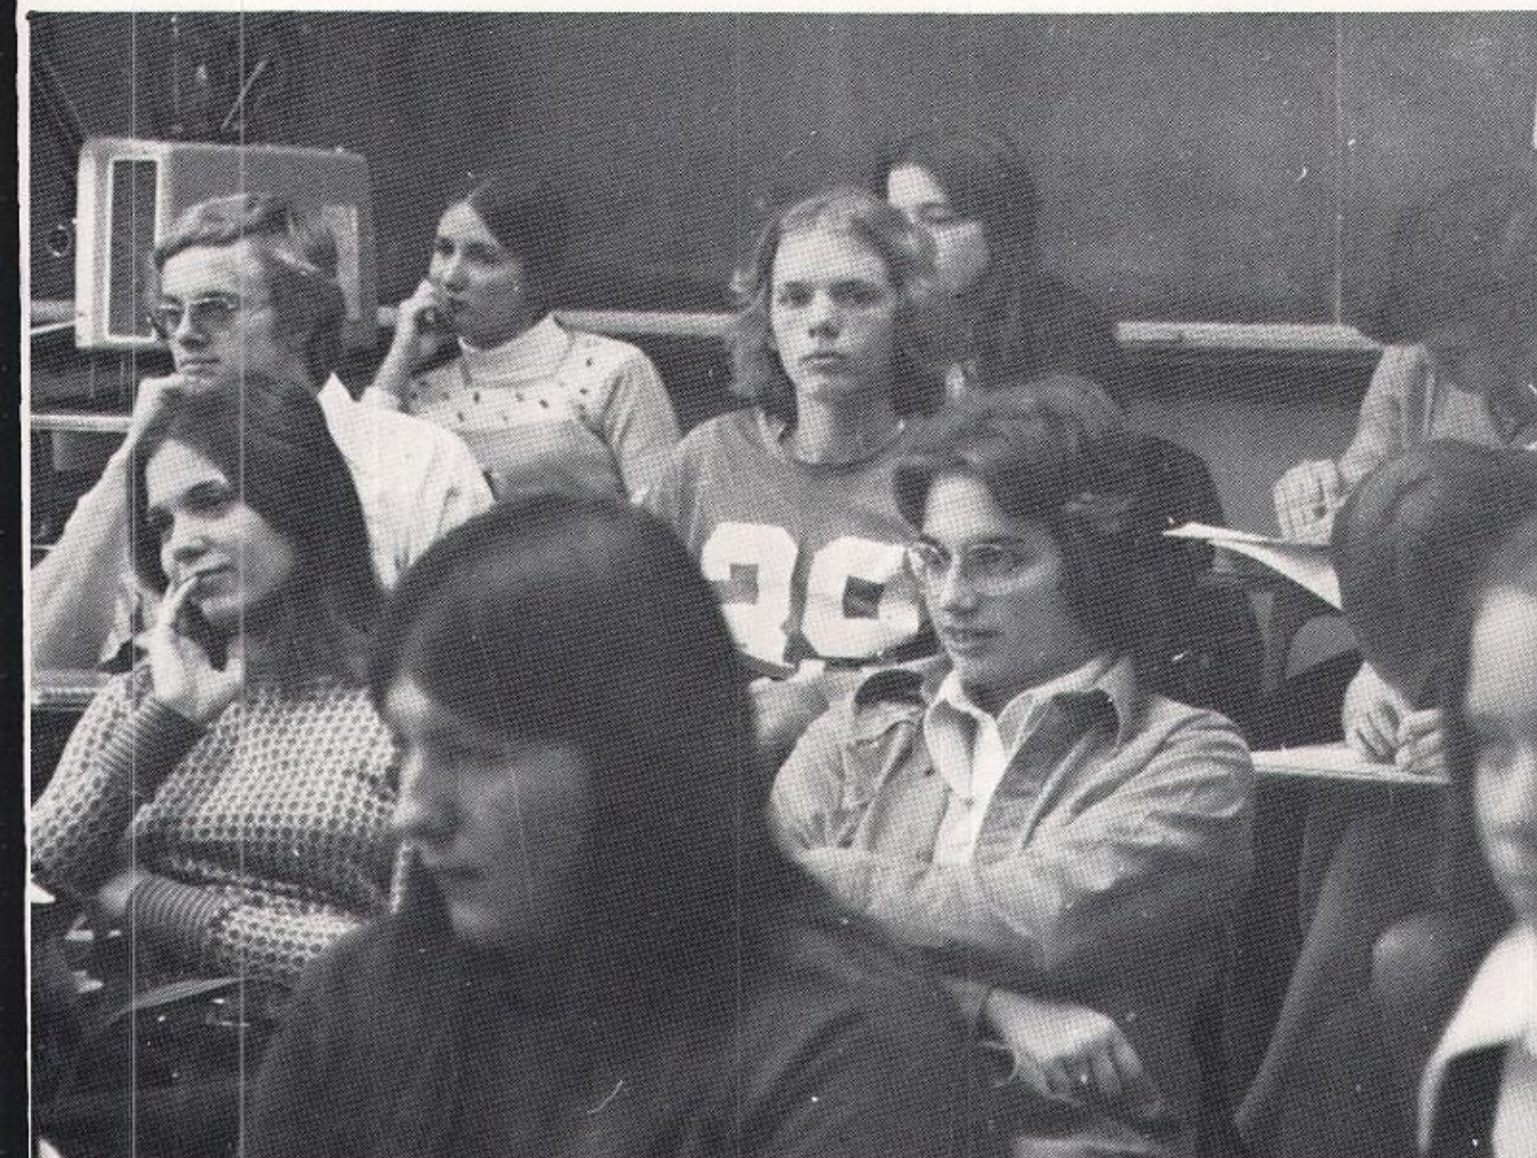

Offered to students interested in other areas of Social Studies were classes in Psychology, Economics, Geography, and Civics. Independent Study in this field was also open to students.

Emphasizing an important fact to his Am. Govt. class is Mr. Ulrich.

Mr. Maciejewski goes over the days assignment as the class gets ready to start.

Listening and taking notes for the coming test is Mr. Ulrich's third hour Government class.

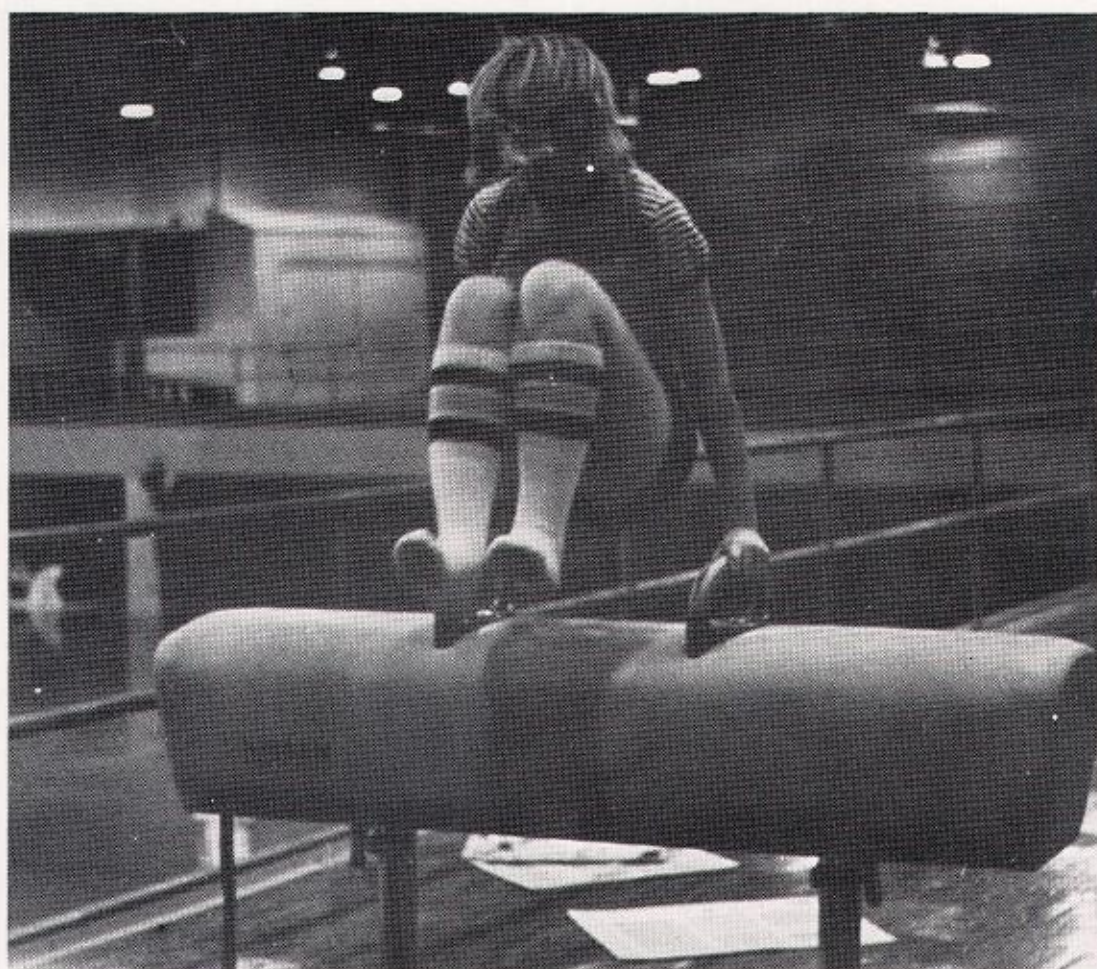

A group of freshman boys are shown in their first semester playing out an exciting volleyball tournament.

Physical Education Promotes Interest

Girls' and boys' physical education has been required for two years, and many of the students felt they were into the slump of gym blues. But now the teachers in that department are on to the feelings of the students as they plan not only more interesting activities but challenging ones also.

Basically the first year of both girls' and boys' is a time for learning. They are taught the fundamentals of basketball, volleyball and numerous other team sports. The second year is used to exercise what has been learned previously and to exhibit special techniques in the various sports.

Therefore, gym is becoming a rewarding experience involving the main objectives, sportsmanship, skill and effort.

Here we see a sophomore girl vaulting the horse in a routine exercise.

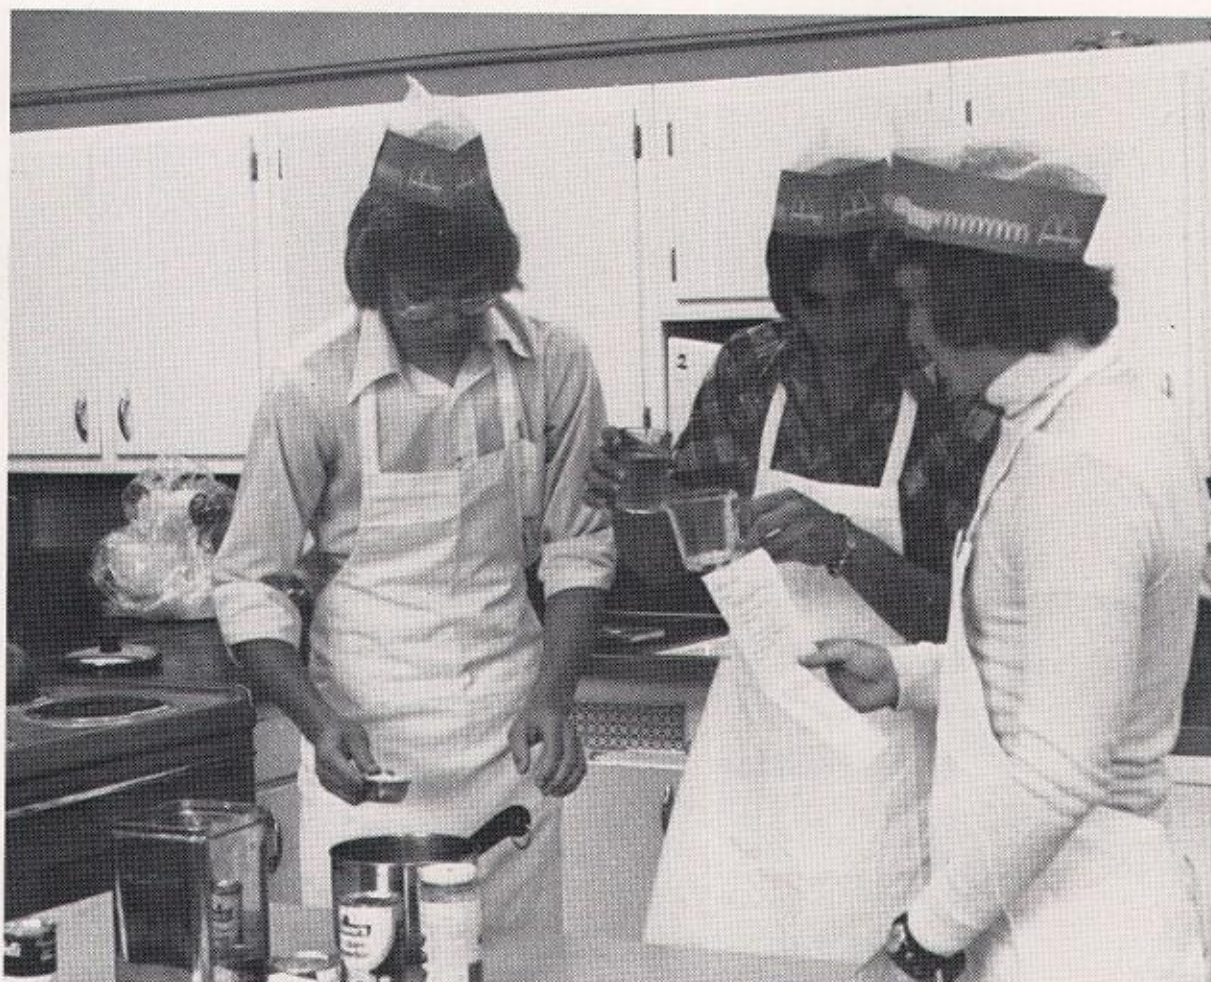

Doing a summersault to prove her bravery is an unidentified sophomore girl.

Pupils Consider Food Possible Career

Students taking Restaurant Management classes were given the opportunity to view the food industry to see what was included in food work or management jobs. They were also introduced to the basic principles of buying, preparing and serving foods as done in restaurants.

In the advanced classes the students got actual practice in setting up a small business and the problems they would have to encounter. This helped them discover whether they liked working in a business like this or maybe a related area they might have a talent for.

Meal planning, nutrition and new measuring and cooking techniques were among the materials learned in Junior, Senior Home Economics. The students were made aware of the many different careers of which foods work is a part, such as; arranging food prepared to be photographed as in newspapers or magazines.

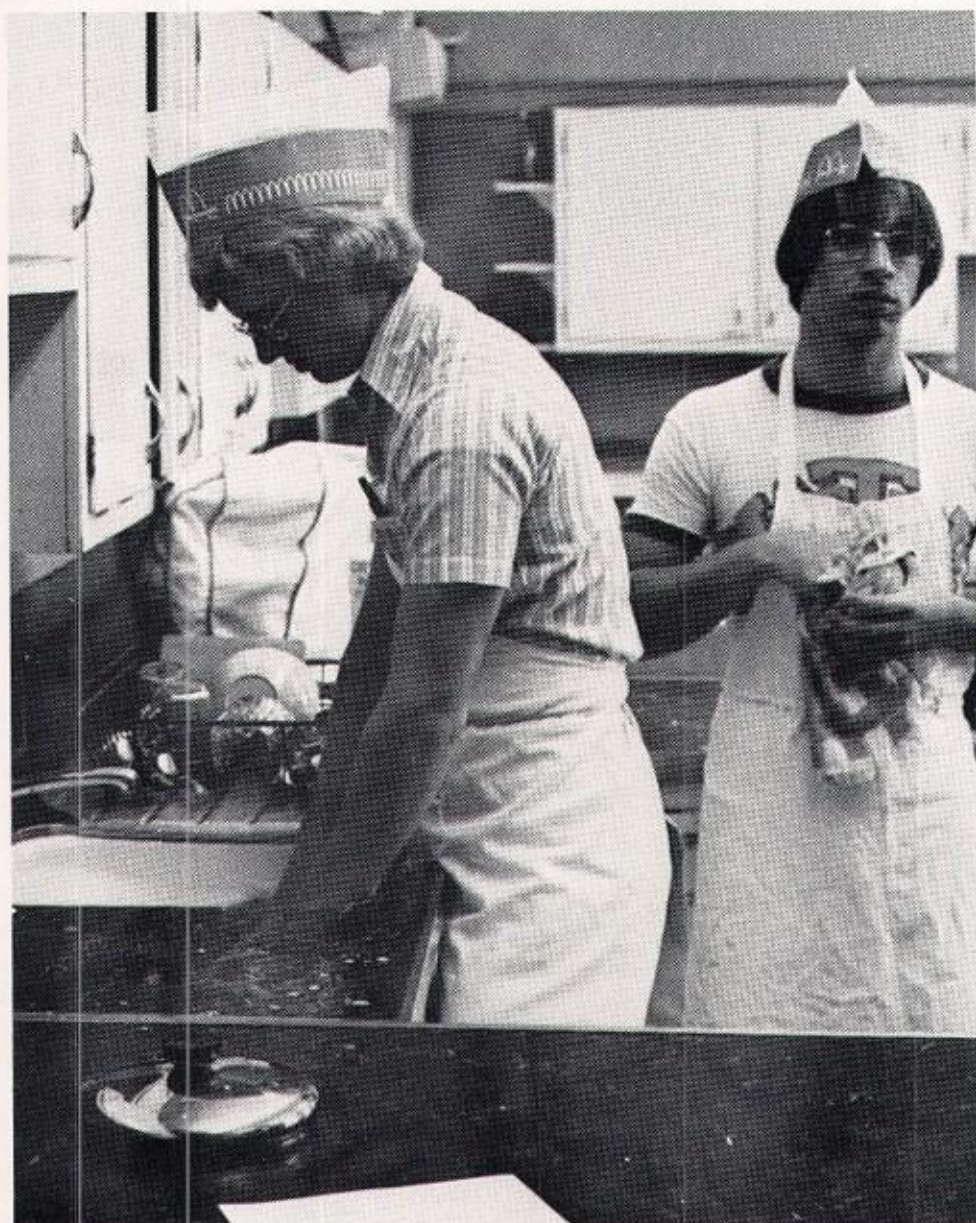

Bob Miller, Bob Timm, and Norm Stevens use group effort in demonstrating cooking techniques.

Learning by watching fellow students demonstrate is a method used in cooking classes.

What's the good in cooking if you can't join in the feast once in a while.

Dishwasher job isn't the choice in the kitchen but someone has to do it and the next on the list were Mike Pagryzinski and Chris Turek.

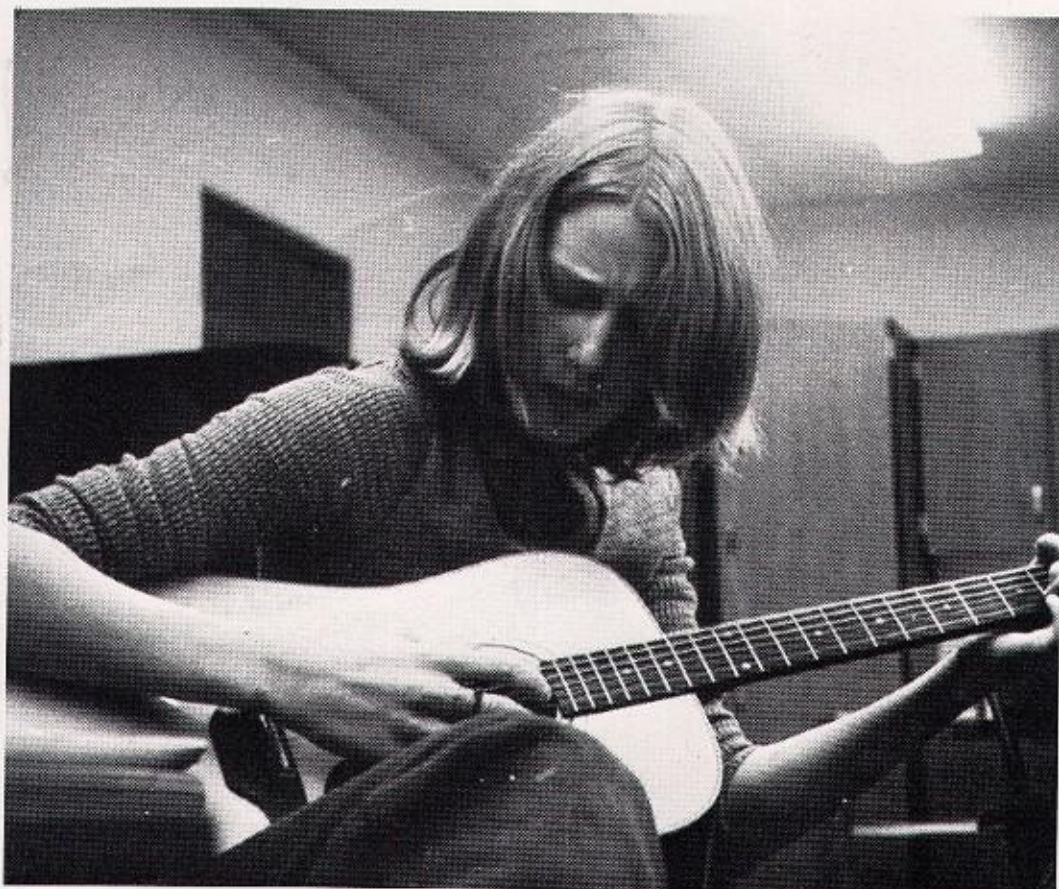

Carefully following the directions as she explains to the class how to make biscuits is Lynn Streib.

Comments written by students on guests in Marriage and Family Living are read by Mrs. Carolyn Purgraski.

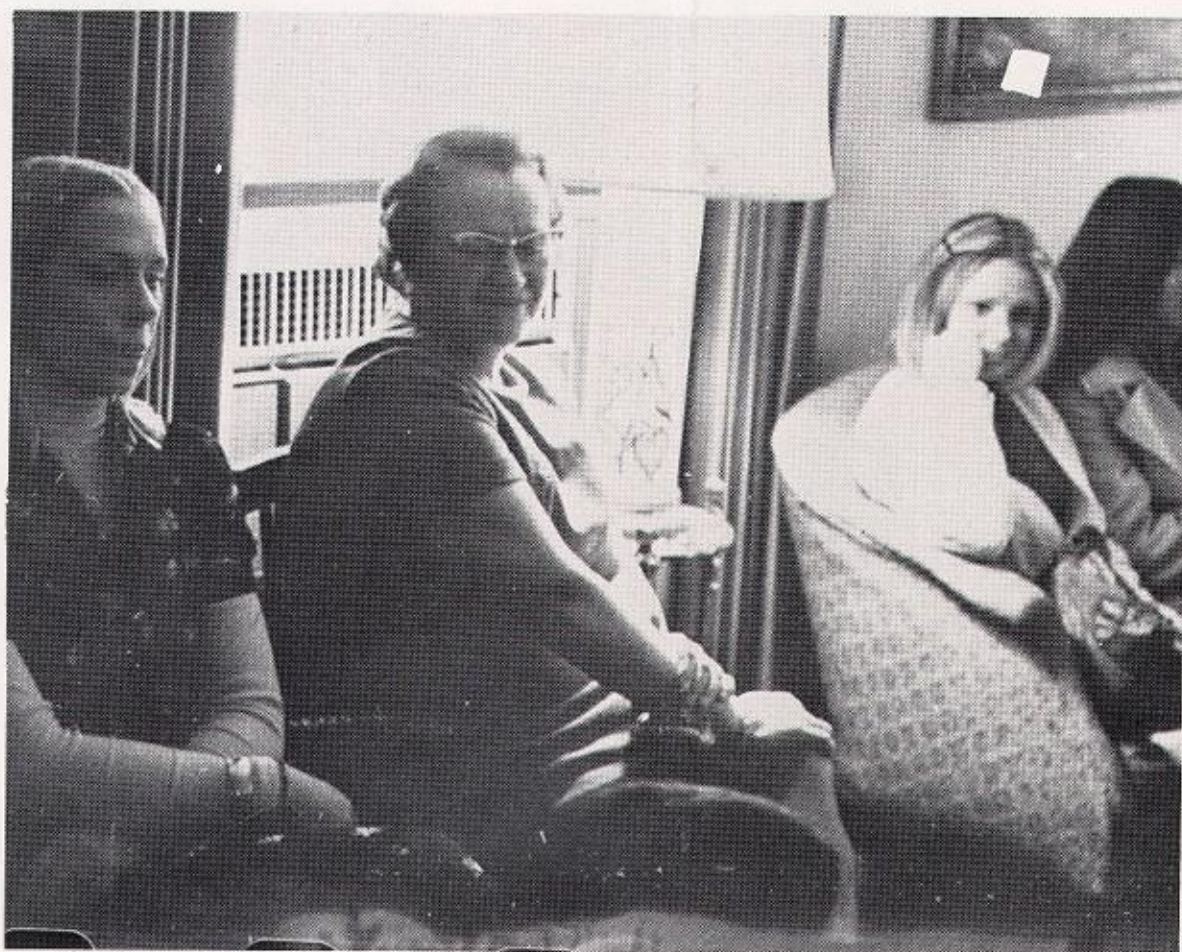

Dan Oppenhauser gains credit in MFL by demonstrating one of his hobbies.

Students Study Human Relations

Human Development classes were offered to any junior or senior thinking about going either into a profession or work involving children in some way, or if they were interested in some knowledge for their own personal life. Various ways of coping with the problems, feelings and behavior along with actual experience with children and their parents were examined by the students.

Discussions of problems of the dating-engagement-marriage process, the problems of early marriage and the formation of a new family were covered in Marriage and Family Living. During the semester, many points of view had been given and the students tried to examine them and make their own decisions.

Interviewing Mrs. Ray Niedzwiecki in her home is Mrs. Purgraski's First Hour class.

Housing Class Inspires Decorating Ideas

On a field trip to a student's home is a Marriage and Family Living class.

Home Economics courses at Central weren't just made up of cooking, sewing and human relations. There was also a Consumer Housing and Interior Design class which included the costs and both advantages and disadvantages of different types of housing and furnishings.

This course was offered to give any senior girl or boy some background in fields as architecture, real estate, interior design or carpentry.

One of the projects attempted was choosing and decorating a room drawn to scale of the student's choice. This involved the selection of color scheme, furniture, floor coverings, wall treatment and other accessories. This helped give the student experience in the problems and costs involved as he did the designing of his own room.

Students in MFL give their full attention as someone shares part of themselves.

Concentrating on understanding student's feelings is Mrs. Purgraski during one of her Marriage and Family Living classes.

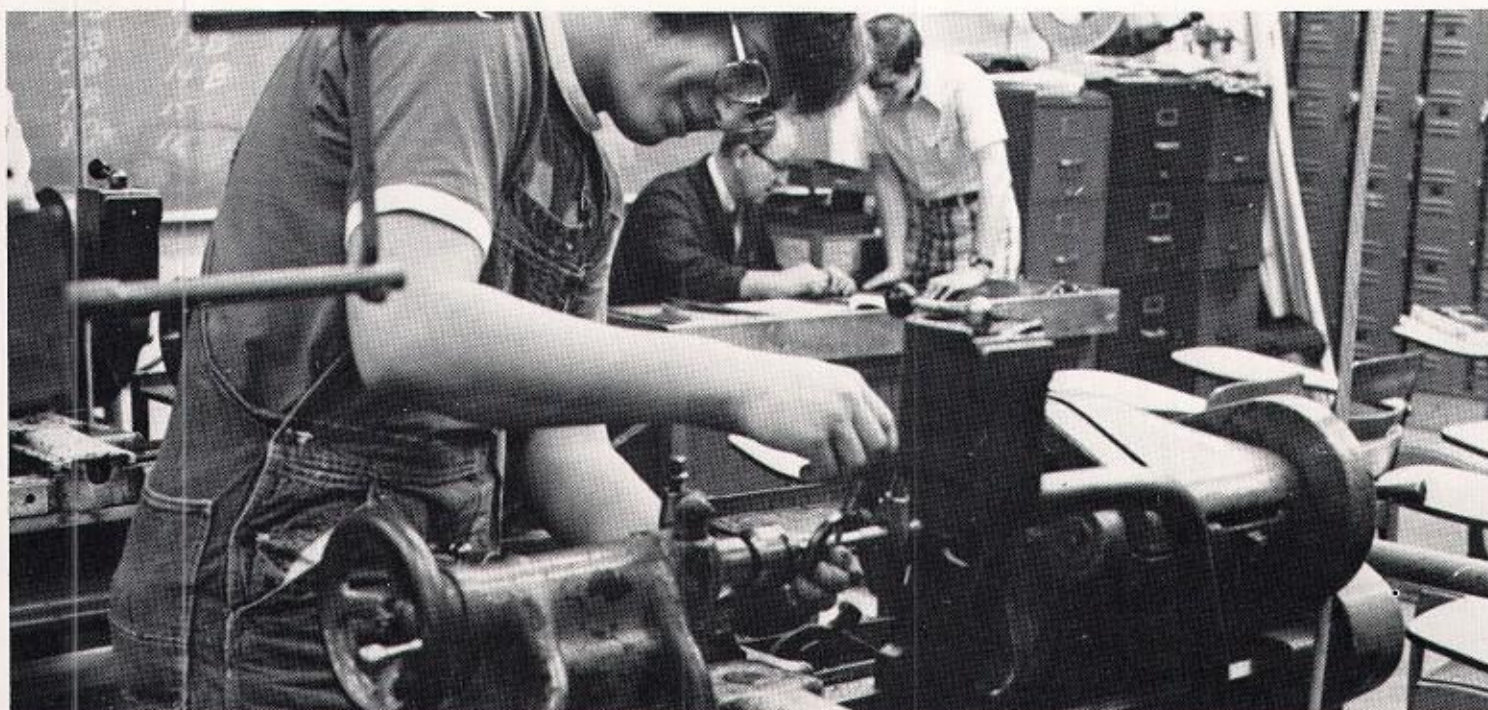

Making sure he has enough grill cover for his speaker is Ron Jenkins.

Perfecting his cutting technique on scraps of metal is a student in Mr. Trish's Welding class.

Ability to operate different Welding tools is learned by students.

Rechecking to get a precise measurment is John Toporski.

Hands Are Important Tools For Voc. Dept.

Pat Kuczkowski demonstrates how to use the drill press in one of Mr. Franek's Machine Shop classes.

Woodshop classes taught students the principles of wood identification, joining, finishing, fastening and operation of woodworking machines. In the more advanced courses they covered detailed construction of cabinets and furniture.

Operation of such machines as the lathe and drill press and the use of different hand tools and measuring instruments had been taught in Machine Shop.

Students taking Small Engine Repair were instructed in the basic construction, operation and methods of repairing two and four cycle, gasoline engines.

Still another field offered was Welding and Trade Welding. These courses offered learning experiences in both arc and oxy-acetylene welding along with opening some students minds on what their future might have in store for them.

Auto Shop keeps students busy by the number of cars and trucks handled each day and repaired by the many students interested in the works of Autos.

Demonstrating the skill in operating the disbrake lathe in the new modernized facility in which he works is Charles Gosler.

Update Look Gives Auto Shop Business

Central's Auto Shop grew immensely this year thanks to the new electronic engine analyzer and disbrake lathe added to the Department.

Auto Mechanics is designed for any girl or guy interested in the works of cars. It taught the "Tricks of the Trade" and how to repair autos.

Growing demands of industry attributed to the booming business given to this worthwhile and successful class.

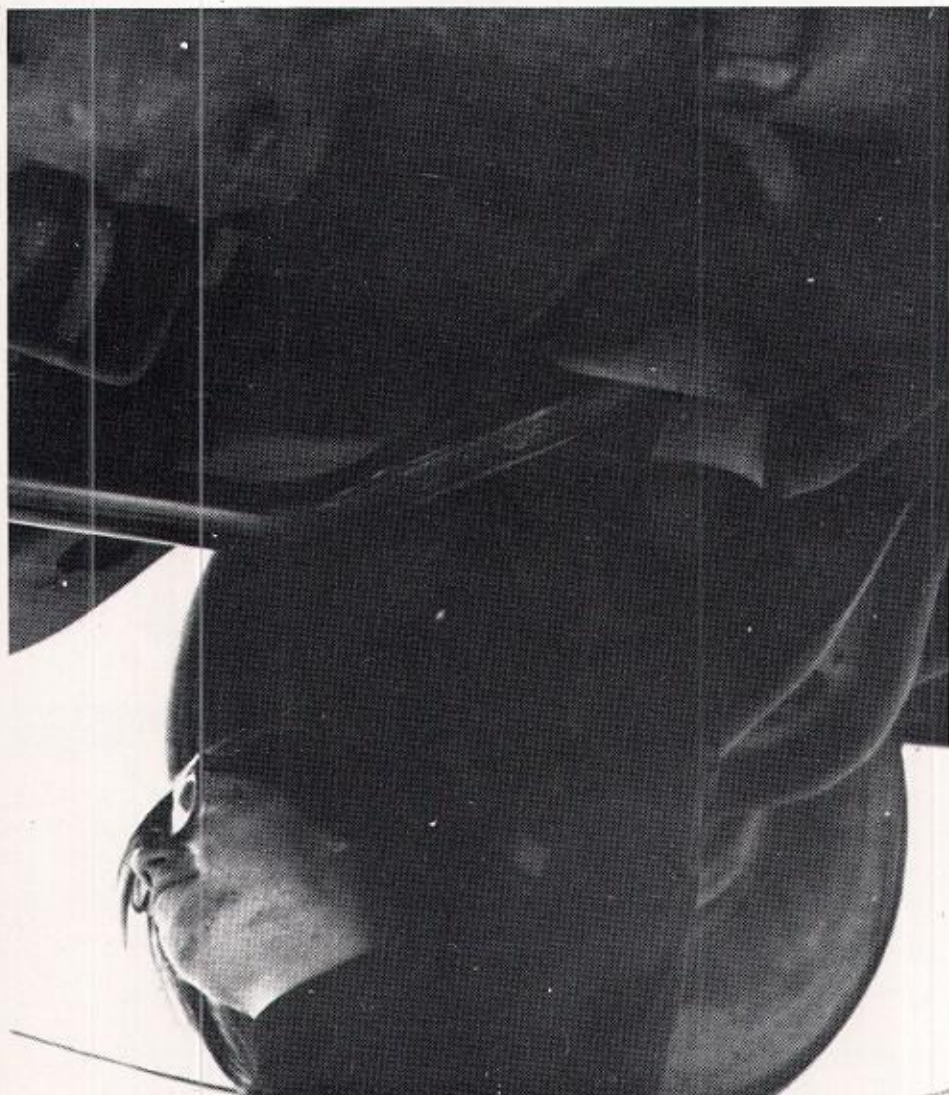

What also made this year unique was the only profit made was the knowledge learned in the process of working on the cars. Another convenience was servicing customers autos.

Auto Shop was designed to give experience in the repairing, replacing and adjusting of automobiles.

Taking the guess work of engine diagnosis Gary Wenzel and Dennis Beyer struggle to learn to interpret the signals on the read out dials of the engine analyzer.

Looking into some challenging muffler problems is Mike Synder as he anticipates what to do before starting to work.

Under the hood Dennis Beyer can be found servicing to the best of the Automotive Shops good name.

Auto Shop's new building has proven to be the most worthwhile investment in Central's Renovation of the school for the use in the years to come.

Here is a scene of a desert made with water colors.

Art has always been a very popular course at Central and now it is having even more success with the new wing and the new added equipment.

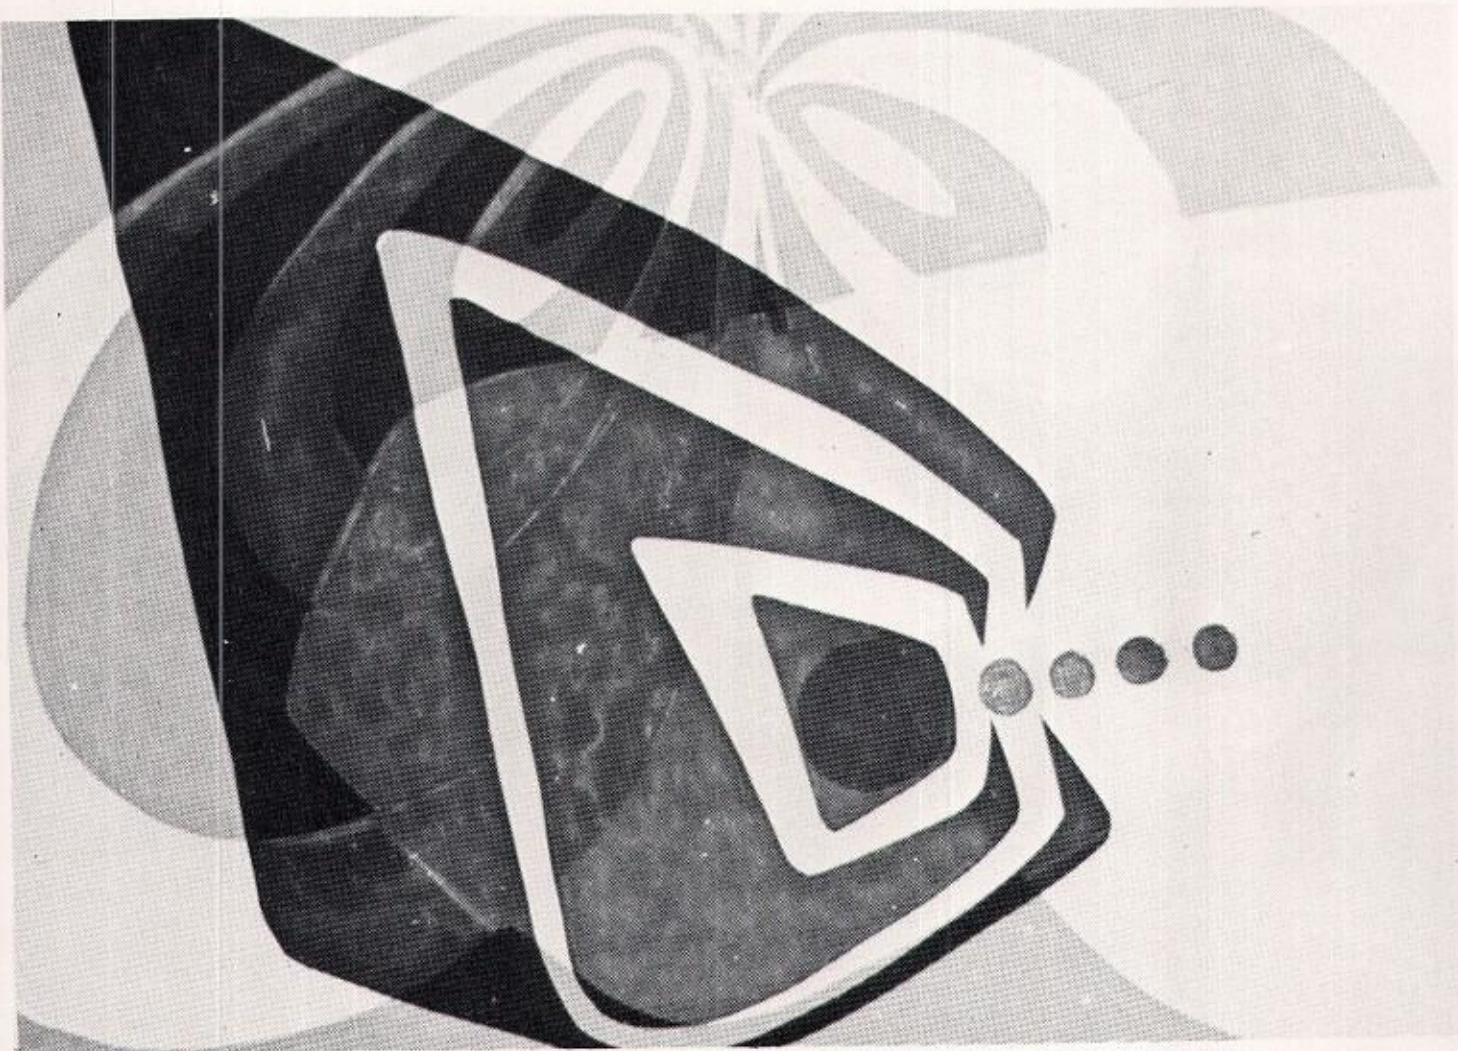

Art one and two (beginning) was basically simple clay sculptures, pencil sketches of students, objects and scenery and water color pictures.

Art three and four consisted of enameling, water color paintings and clay sculptures up to 18 inches in height.

Art five and six took up silk screening, lamenating and a junk sculpture which consisted of scrap metal of any kind.

Art seven and eight (advanced) was for people who have established talent and special techniques which may include pottery and oil paintings.

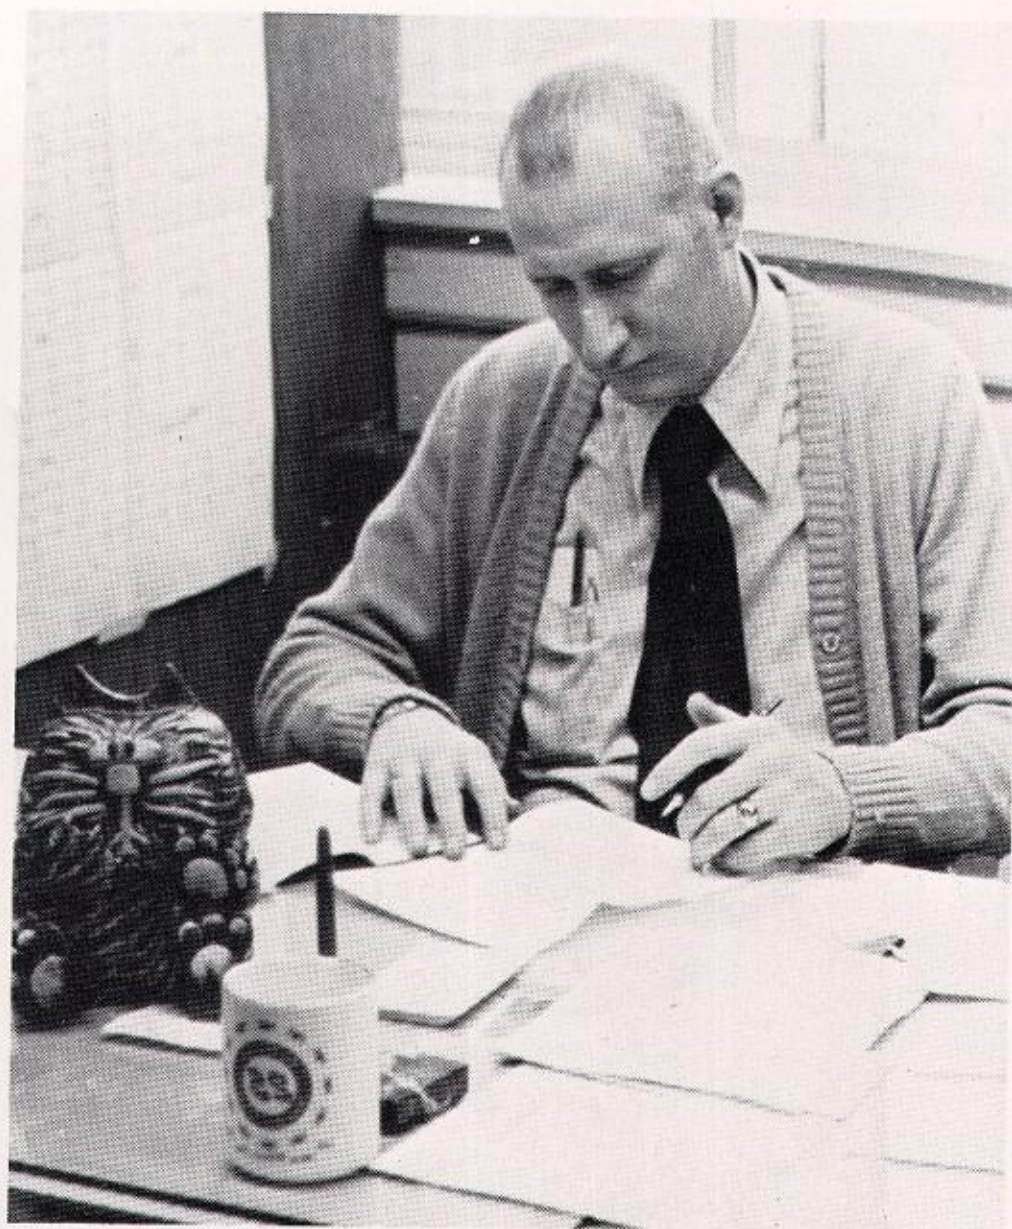

Made out of silk screening is this example of abstract art.

Atmosphere Reflects Good Art Work

Ann Chesney skillfully molds her clay into a pottery sculpture.

Mary Jo Shook, a Co-op student, busily runs the switchboard in the main office here at Central.

Mr. David Johnson, the counselor for all Co-op students is not always found in his office. We were just lucky to snap a picture of him working.

Co-op Popular With The Students

Making students primarily prepared for the work world was the basic objective of the Co-op classes.

This program was really a partnership between the seniors on Co-op and the various businesses that they may have been employed at.

In many cases, Mr. Raymond Duch, Co-op Co-ordinator, assigned in locating jobs for many students. It wasn't too easy considering the jobs were quite scarce this past year.

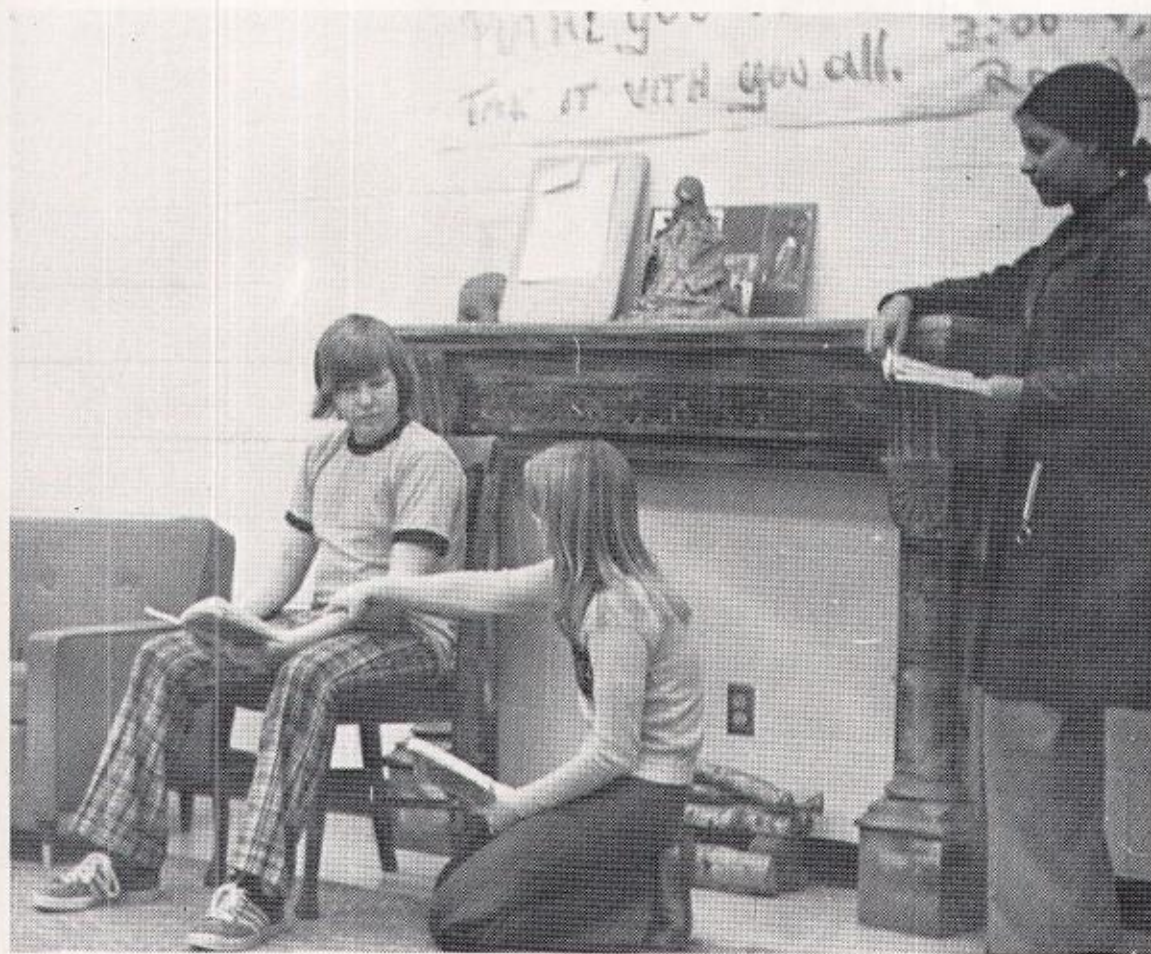

High school credit for ten hours per semester was given for training received on the job. The job must have involved a minimum of 15 hours of work per week.

Since the program was a part of the student's regular day, their classes were arranged to the individual's needs.

Working at the receiving desk in the Counseling Center is Michelle Roach. Co-op students work in the school at different administrative departments as well as outside jobs.

Drama Classes Help Play Production

Exploring the history of the theater was the main interest in Mrs. Ankettel's Drama classes. Starting as far back as primitive tribes and their first attempts at theater and then going on to Greek and Medieval then finally worked up through the Elizabethan Era.

Students taking Drama were encouraged to explore the Current theater activities. They were also made aware of any drama available in the area such as in local high schools, community theaters and colleges.

Drama students helped in the production of the two plays THE UNSUSPECTED- a murder mystery and YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU-a comedy, held this year by the Thespians. They designed all the props and costumes needed, did make-up jobs and arranged for publicity and tickets.

Doing a short scene to illustrate a play they are reading are Drama students Kevin Mead, Debbie Kuligowski and Kay Richardson.

Reciting lines from a play is Gayle Watson during Mrs. Ankettel's Drama class.

Assisting the students in a scene they are setting up to rehearse is Mrs. Ruth Ankettel.

Band Leader Attains Deserved Tribute

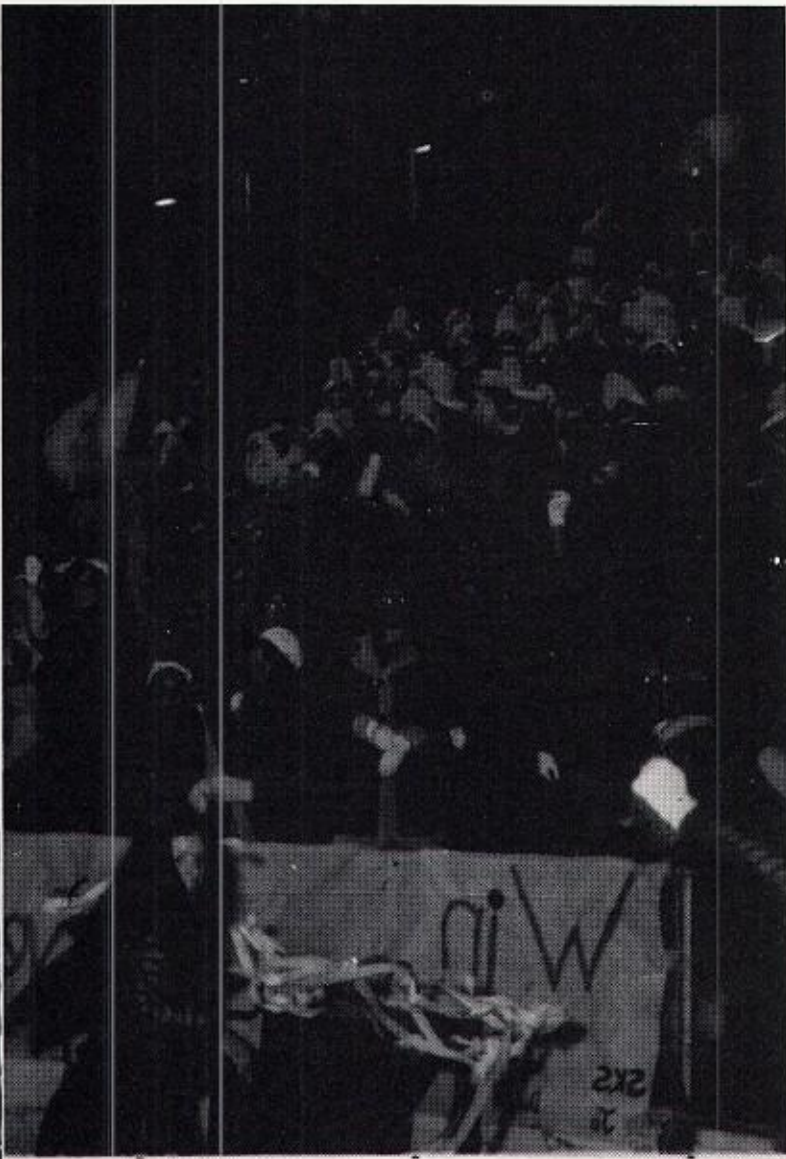

Added to the usual performances by the band a tribute to Mr. Walter Cramer was given. The festivities began at the stroke of 7:30, opening with pregame at which time recognition was given to our band director. Things progressed as the band formed a "Thirty" to signify his thirty years of service and leadership that he has given the youth of the Bay City Area.

Mr. Cramer has not only been awarded with the leadership of Centrals' Band, but also the successful summer music program that he contributes so much time unselfishly each summer.

Centrals' Marching Band drew top state honors for its' performance at Michigan State and also received an invitation to go back as a "Select Band" next year.

The crowd stands and cheers with excitement as the marching band enters in their quick step style at the beginning of the Homecoming Game.

As the football team scores the band shows their spirit by playing the Central fight song.

The band shows their appreciation by forming a thirty during pregame to signify Mr. Cramers thirty years of leadership.

A puzzled look is caught on the face of Mr. Cramer as he awaits the band's next moves.

After realizing the thirty was being formed in his honor a cheer of delight was rendered.

While watching the closing of the tribute to him he enjoys a well deserved lasting smile.

Shown in full dress uniform is the 1974-75 Varsity Band directed by Mr. Cramer.

Bands Take Part In Fine Arts Festival

Starting our the 1974-75 school year the Bands had the use of their first full year of the new music rooms and facilities. Putting to use the welcomed and needed space, the Music Department headed by Mr. Walter Cramer completed a very fine year.

This years Varsity Band was chosen to represent all of the area high schools at the Governor's Inaugural Ceremonies at the State Capitol. Heading to Lansing by bus on January first, our band was there to greet Governor Milliken.

Besides performing at all the home football games the Varsity Band Participates in the Band-O-Rama held in November and also played in Band Bounce in the Spring.

Ending the season with one more display of their marching techniques, was the Band in the St. Patricks Day Parade.

Concentrating on the music while playing the Saxophone is Gail Sloan.

Doing their bit for Band-O-Rama are Dan and Joe Weist.

Doing a thorough job of directing the Band is Mr. Walter Cramer.

Playing at a home basketball game is Pep Band directed by Mr. Klass.

Chuck Hewitt tries to get up enough wind to hit another note.

Moving his equipment back from the Auditorium is Steve Bennett.

Showing off a marching step during Band-O-Rama is Cadet Band.

Band Chosen For Inaugural Ceremony

Ending the football season the Varsity Marching Band was split into two groups. These were the Symphonic and Concert Bands.

Covering a variety of music over the semester these two groups studied and played light classics, marching, concert and popular musical art.

Both the Symphonic and Concert Bands participated in the Fine Arts Festival held this year on March fourth and fifth in the Auditorium. They also performed in the 1974-75 Band Bounce which is in its 45th year this season.

Cadet Band another group playing at Central was for freshmen just beginning in the Music program. It helped prepare the students for the marching and playing skills they will need in the more advanced groups. The Cadet Band marched in a few half time shows and also played in Band-O-Rama and Band Bounce.

Assisting Andrea Hardy with her tie is Bob Grunder.

Taking time out from their busy schedule is the 1974-75 Concert Band.

Ambassadors For Friendship Again

Practice, practice, practice, was in store for sixty-one members of Central High's A'Cappella Choir. The choir was invited back a second time to Romania by the Romanian government. Directed by Mr. James Leonard, the choir earned the $40,000 needed to finance the trip.

The choir and chaperones toured throughout the whole Romanian countryside singing their songs of Friendship under the direction of Mr. Leonard and accompanied by Mr. Robert Sabourin. Among others, selections from Carousel, George M., Godspell and 1776 were featured.

Chaperones included Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Morse, Mr. Sabourin, Mrs. Mildred Sprague, Miss Catherine Wachowiak, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Wegener and Mr. Lee Yambura.

The trip turned out to be an enjoyable experience for both the members of the group as well as the Romanian people.

Sorry to be saying goodbye are the two guides, Mirela and Octavian. They acted as guides as well as interpreters.

"Wait a minute, Mr. Leonard, let me snap a picture!" It looks like he's having a wonderful time, here at the Black Sea.

*"This was a real nice clam bake," sings the A'Cappella Choir as they perform selections from the musical, Carousel. Many of the stages they performed on were outdoors.*

A sight to be seen is the sunrise at the Black Sea. The beach right on the Sea is the best place to view this beautiful sight at 4:30 in the morning.

These Romanian students were happy to hear the A'Cappella Choir perform and they especially liked their pictures taken.

The chaperones pose for this picture while waiting for the tour bus. From left to right, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Morse, Mr. Sabourin, Mr. and Mrs. Wegener and Mr. Yambura. In front are Miss Wachowiak and Mrs. Sprague which completes the list.

Choirs Learn To Sight Read All Music

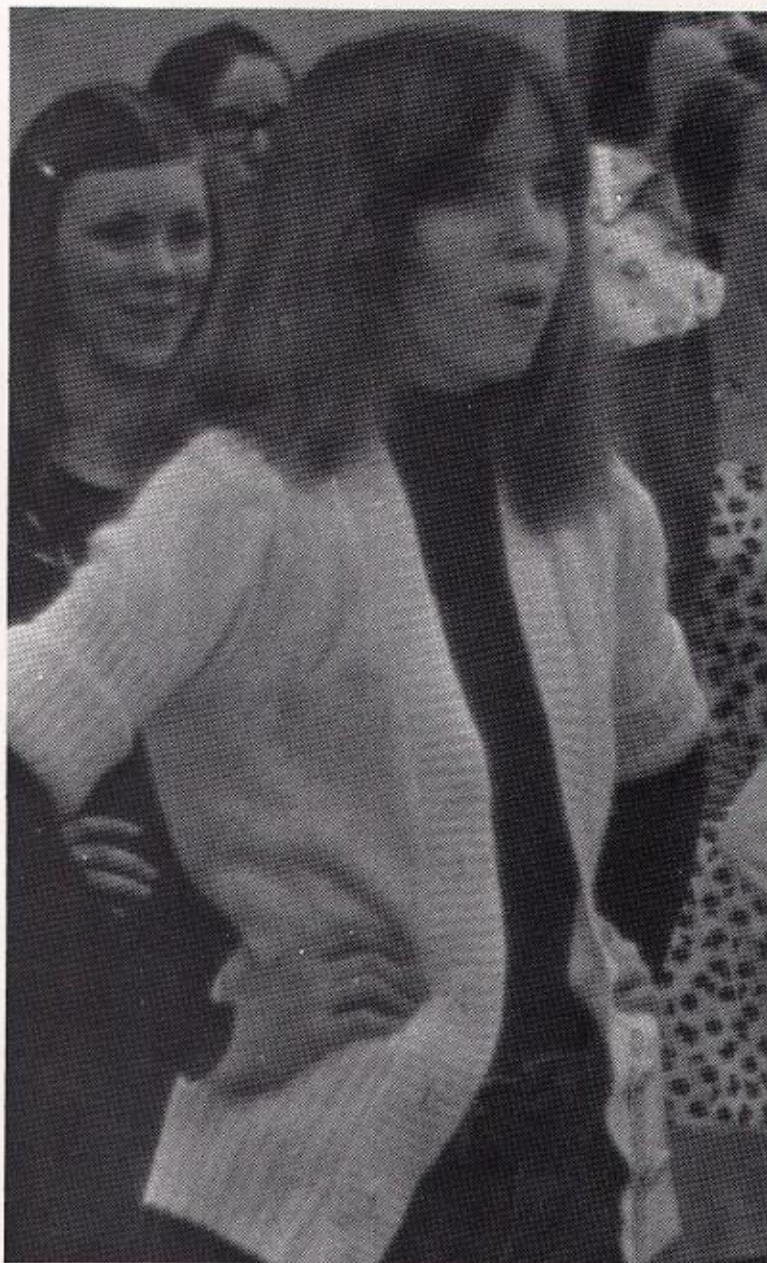

The Choraliers, perform in all the scheduled concerts and also sing in the District Festival.

Under the direction of Mr. James Leonard, Choral Music becomes more challenging than usual. The choirs do selections from Sacred Music to today's Pop Sound.

Beginning Boys or Girls Choir are the two classes where basics are taught. These classes are open to any student.

If a young man has earned his Varsity Letter, he is eligible for Varsity Men's Choir. This Choir meets everyday during the second semester only, giving letter winners of the first semester a chance to enter the choir.

The A'Cappella, a mixed chorus, and the Choraliers, an all girl choir, are the two formal concert choirs. Both groups perform in the District Festival. To be eligible for either group at least one year of choir is required or the instructors approval. There is also the Swing Choir, a small group from the A'Cappella Choir.

Practicing their songs is a must in Beginning Girls Choir.

These young men work hard at their songs in Beginning Boys Choir, and plan to eventually be in the A'Cappella Choir.
